How Ike 'Played Housewife' With Budget

By DON OBERDORFER

Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower administration huffed and puffed, but the cussed thing still wouldn't balance.

So the budget makers resorted to some tricks, the kind a wife might use to concoct a sample family budget to impress her husband.

Here's how they "balanced" it:

1—They had promised the International Monetary Fund a new subscription of $1,370,000,000. This would have thrown the new budget completely out of whack.

So the President in his budget message Monday asked Congress to give him the money right now, in a fiscal year that is already badly in the red.

This is like rushing out to buy that new TV set before the month is over, so it won't show up on the next month's budget.

Secretary of the Treasury Robert Anderson says the administration is eager to get the money in the old budget year because it promised to "expedite" this thing. The money will be used by the international fund to help stabilize soft currencies.

* * *

2—The administration is selling off 620 million dollars in certain government assets.

"This is like an individual selling off 100 shares of stock to take care of an expensive operation on his wife," explains Budget Bureau Director Maurice Stans.

In the old fiscal year the government sold only 100 million of these assets in this way, so it is really financing 520 million of expenditures by selling the assets.

Don't worry — the government isn't planning to sell the White House or the Washington Monument to balance the new budget.

The assets to be sold are loans in the portfolio of the Export-Import Bank, mortgages held by the Federal National Mortgage Association and bonds held under the college housing program.

* * *

3—The budget-makers made a deep cut in the allowance for contingencies, which is like slashing your budget allowance for pin money.

Last year the budget men included 300 million dollars as a general contingency allowance, plus a 500 million contingency allowance for defense. In the new budget, the contingency allowance is only 100 million.

If you charge the monetary fund money to the new fiscal year instead of the old, and hold the sales of assets and the contingency allowance to the old year's level, the Eisenhower 1960 budget would be $2,490,000,000 in the red.

Traveler's Finances To Suffer

Gasoline, Airline Hikes Suggested

By DAVID KRASLOW

Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The traveling American is in for a jolt in the pocketbook if tax proposals submitted Monday by President Eisenhower are approved by Congress.

The president asked for:

A 50 per cent boost (from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon) in federal tax on auto gasoline.

A 50 per cent boost (from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon) in the tax on aviation gas.

A new 4½ cents a gallon tax on jet fuel.

And the President made it clear he feels the individual air traveler should pick up the tab for the aviation fuel levies.

"I believe it fair and sound that such taxes be reflected in the rates of transportation paid by the passengers and shippers," Eisenhower said in his budget message.

In effect, this is an "invitation" to the Civil Aeronautics Board to raise airline fares so that the taxes (if approved by Congress) will be passed on to the traveler.

How much of a fare increase this would mean (if the CAB went along with the President) could not be determined immediately.

Some informed sources guessed it would take a five to six per cent fare boost to compensate for the taxes recommended by the President.

Eisenhower's thinking on passing on the taxes runs directly contrary to suggestions offered by CAB Chairman James R. Durfee and Member Louis J. Hector of Miami.

They have suggested that the way to fill seats on the huge jet airliners is to attract new passengers by lowering fares.

There has been a great debate in aviation circles over the problem of a large increase in seating capacity coming in with the use of jet aircraft.

The additional levies would come on top of the 10 per cent tax on domestic travel which has been in effect since during World War II.

It costs travelers an extra 10 cents for every $1 worth of airplane, railroad or bus ticket he buys.

And Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson made it clear in a briefing on the budget that the administration would strenuously oppose any move to repeal the travel tax this year.

Highest Peacetime Budget Hinges on Recovery Hopes

Highlights, Partial Text Page 7A

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower Monday submitted to an already questioning Congress a massive, precariously balanced budget totaling 77 billion dollars.

Heavy on defense allocations in an era of continuing Communist threats, this is the administration's proposed spending chart for the 1960 fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Never in peacetime has so big a budget been laid before the legislators at the opening of a new session. A year ago, Eisenhower proposed what was then a record peacetime budget just short of 74 billions.

But the recession sent government income down and spending up. So the spending figure for the present fiscal year ending June 30 now is estimated at nearly 81 billions.

And the half billion dollar surplus anticipated a year ago has turned into a deficit of almost 13 billions for the 1959 fiscal year. The estimated deficit is up nearly 700 millions since September.

Eisenhower told Congress it must raise the permanent limit on the national debt to 285 billions and provide a temporary limit even higher than that. The current temporary debt ceiling is 288 billion. It is due to drop to 283 billion next June 30.

The new budget is a bare 70 million dollars in the black. But it is what Eisenhower called a responsible, confident, positive, attainable budget, backed by glowing prospects of "continued vigorous economic recovery."

Over and over, he sounded that recovery refrain.

The budget counts on tapping taxpayers for a record sum while dangling before them a hope of tax reductions in the uncertain future.

The measure holds out promises to enhance domestic well-being and to protect personal savings and incomes from erosive inflation.

Yet it also calls for higher gasoline taxes that surely would be passed on to the consumer, and for another boost in postal rates. If Congress goes along—and it isn't at all sure that Congress will—the federal gas tax will jump from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon and it probably will cost a nickel instead of four cents to mail a letter.

Eisenhower said three dollars of every five in the budget—a total of $45,805,000,000 out of $77,030,000,000—must

Democrats Inherit Another Crisis--Adlai

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Adlai E. Stevenson said Monday President Eisenhower's policy of "thrift by drift" was partly responsible for America's "fat, dumb and happy" complacency toward Russia's determined Cold War challenge.

Stevenson

The greatest national need was "not to balance the budget but to wage peace," he said.

The next 10 years, Stevenson added, would "really prove" whether the American system of democratic government could match the rigid, dedicated communistic threat of Russia.

He said the prognosis was not good unless there was a change in America's "fatal addiction" to the short view and its unwillingness to face the facts.

The two-time presidential nominee of the Democratic Party told a jammed Woman's National Democratic Club luncheon audience that Americans today "fritter away their time on trivialities" in a "fatal addiction to the short view."

Contending the situation was "partly due to lack of leadership — guess where," he complained that "private satisfaction" received priority over "public necessity." More money was spent on entertainment than education, and on tobacco than on textbooks.

Stevenson said the Democrats seemed destined to come to power in times of crisis.

"We seem to be on the eve of inheriting another crisis," he said.

He said the Democratic Party apparently was the only party neither "afraid of the facts nor afraid of the people knowing the facts," and aware that "freedom is not a soft option — can be had cheap."

Walkout Alert on At Pan Am

Contract Snagged Over Work Hours

By DOM BONAFEDE and DAN BROWN

Herald Staff Writers

Pan American World Airways ground personnel — including 3,000 in Miami and 1,500 at Cape Canaveral — were put on a strike alert Monday while union and management met in eleventh hour negotiations.

A walkout by members of the Transport Workers Union could cripple the world-wide airline — and seriously hamper the nation's missile research development program.

Union officials, who have been meeting with company representatives and a federal mediator in New York City for the past week, reported a "pushbutton" strategy setup has been devised to call a strike within 24 hours.

About 8,000 systemwide employes are employed in the dispute. The union is seeking higher wages, shorter hours and improved working conditions.

"We are waiting word from New York to walk out at any time," commented Art Hallgren, vice president of Miami Local 500, TWU.

The last union contract expired Dec. 1 and both sides have been meeting off and on since then.

Negotiations finally came to a climax a week ago and talks were pushed up to reach a new settlement.

In New York, a PAA spokesman said that the big issue was the union's demand for a cut in weekly working hours. He said TWU workers, presently on a 40-hour week, are seeking a 37½ hour week because of worker fears fewer ground crew members will be required when PAA starts using jet airliners on a big scale.

The union first asked for a 32-hour week but later reduced their demands.

"Strike standby" telegrams were sent to union members at all PAA installations Monday.

Meanwhile, company and union representatives settled a jurisdictional dispute which caused a sit down strike at the Cape Canaveral missile base last Friday.

The dispute involved the working requirements of PAA stock clerks.

Company officials termed the squabble a "misunderstanding."

Mercury Will Begin Climb Today

It'll be nice in Miami Tuesday, while folks in some parts of North Florida still shiver, the weatherman said.

The warm-up should spread throughout the state by Wednesday, he added.

"We'll be in the low to mid-70s here," Weatherman Philip Ackerman said.

"The outlook is nice, at least for the next few days. In the winter, you can't tell beyond that."

Parts of northernmost Florida will have temperatures in the 40s early Tuesday, warming up during the day.

There was scattered frost in North Florida Monday, but little or no crop damage, the Frost Warning Service said.

Dade escaped frost, Ackerman said, when the winds shifted from north to northeast.

U.S., State Decisions Similar

Florida Schools in Clear, 2A

RICHMOND, Va. —(AP)— Virginia's legal barriers against racial integration, under which nine white schools have been shuttered since September, toppled Monday in the State Supreme Court.

The unappealable 5-2 decision brought the immediate prospect of some classroom race mixing before the Legislature can attempt to erect new blockades.

It also brought from Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. an expression of "faith in the ability and judgment" of the seven members of the state court, plus the announcement he will confer with other state leaders on the best course to take.

The state court opinion followed by minutes the decision of a three-judge federal court in Norfolk striking down the state law under which six Norfolk schools have been kept closed. The federal court said it wasn't attempting to tell Virginia — aside from state constitutional requirements — it had to operate public schools.

But as long as the state did operate such a system, it added, the closing of some of the schools, or even grades of the schools, violates the rights of a citizen to equal protection under the law.

The State Supreme Court, however, ruled that Virginia still was subject to a requirement of the state constitution to operate a public school system throughout the state.

This was the nub of the Almond administration's test of the so-called massive resistance laws before the court.

The court held the closure and state seizure violated a constitutional section vesting supervision of local schools in local school boards; that the governor has no authority to set up a substitute state school system; that the governor has no authority to close any schools in areas, or near areas, policed by federal forces; and that the Legislature's efforts to restrict state school funds to segregated schools are illegal.

The court then proceeded to throw out the school closing law which has been invoked in Norfolk affecting 10,000 pupils; Charlottesville, affecting 1,700, and Warren County High at Front Royal, 1,000. Almost all of the displaced pupils in Warren and Charlottesville have been attending makeshift private classes in churches and other community buildings. About 4,500 of the displaced Norfolk pupils are in private classes or tutoring groups.

Will Try to Attend Mass Rally

Pneumonia Strikes Castro After Bout With the Flu

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Revolutionary Leader Fidel Castro has pneumonia and is running a high fever, his secretary said Monday night.

Castro was confined to his suite in the Havana Hilton Hotel during the weekend by an attack of influenza, but he continued to transact official business from his sickbed and to receive callers until late Monday.

His secretary, Mrs. Blanco de Poce, indicated the pulmonary complication may force him to curb his activities.

Asked whether the latest development would affect Castro's scheduled appearance at the mass rally scheduled for Wednesday, the secretary said the doctor planned to keep him abed until the last minute in an effort to enable him to attend, but that it was too early to state definitely that he would be there.

Before the disclosure of Castro's worsened condition was made, revolutionary "war crimes" trials were postponed or suspended throughout Cuba Monday.

Castro had announced he had invited five U.S. senators and five representatives to witness the trials. Most of those invited sharply rejected the bid.

Sen. George A. Smathers was among those who rejected the bid.

"As a longtime friend of your country," Smathers cabled the rebel chieftain, from Washington, "I have a deep and abiding interest in its affairs.

"However, no useful purpose can be served by my presence or my comments on this occasion.

"I think too much already has been said by individuals who at present know too little about what is going on in your country.

"I join . . . in prayers for forbearance and a sensible approach to many problems with which you are now confronted," Smathers cabled.

Sen. Wayne Morse, (D., Ore.), who has been severely critical of the executions of alleged "war criminals," and Sens. John Sparkman (D., Ala.), and Homer Capehart (R., Ind.) also rejected invitations.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D., N.Y.), one of the House members invited, planned to accept Castro's invitation. Powell, a Negro, has defended the new rebel regime. It was understood that he suggested some of the names of the congressmen invited by Castro.

Besides Smathers and Morse, other senators invited were Theodore Francis Green (D., R. I.), Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) and John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.).

Two House members invited indicated they might make the trip Wednesday.

Rep. Wayne Hays (D., Ohio)

Cold Vaccine Seen Before End of Year

NEW YORK — (AP) — Parke, Davis & Co. hopes to have both a common cold vaccine and a measles vaccine on the market before the end of the year, President Harry J. Loynd said Monday.

The cold vaccine may take care of about 75 per cent of the causes of the common cold, he told the New York Society of Security Analysts.

Loynd also disclosed the company is working on a mumps vaccine, which it hopes may be ready for marketing within two years, and has under clinical study a combination vaccine for diphtheria, tetanus, whooping cough and polio.

The concern also is working on a vaccine against so called echo viruses which recently have been found to cause a paralytic disease similar to polio, Loynd said. This would be combined with the polio vaccine.

It was no clear whether the Parke, Davis vaccine is similar to another common cold vaccine now being tested by Vick Chemical Co. A Vick executive said that concern was working intensively on such a vaccine, but he did not know when trials might be concluded. Nor could he say when or if Vick planned to bring a vaccine to market.

Mikoyan Wins On Side Issues, Loses Big Ones

By ROBERT S. HOYT
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Anastas I. Mikoyan goes home to Russia today with half a loaf, which — he'd be the first to tell you — is better than none.

He and U.S. officials played footsie for days, with official conferences sandwiched in between the popping flash bulbs.

Not until Monday was it made completely clear by our State Department that we weren't giving an inch on his official requests for better trade conditions.

But the No. 2 Russian had the U. S. eating out of his hand all the varied side dishes he served up, everything but the main course.

With American businessmen he apparently built a fire which has our officials chanting: "Ruskie Go Home." While he may have started public opinion thinking along lines that could ultimately result in more trade, he failed to accomplish what he himself said he came after.

He wanted three things:

Changing the rules so Russia could be extended long-term credit to buy in the U. S.

Favorable tariff conditions for U. S. S. R. goods coming here.

Changes in our policy of not allowing strategic goods to be sent behind the Iron Curtain.

Though he protested that the U. S. is "inflexible," the State Department told him curtly that "when conditions change policies will change," and that was that.

While he was given a reception that by all accounts was "friendly," there wasn't a day without either a public snub by a U. S. official who wouldn't be caught at a luncheon table with him or a picket line of Hungarians lurking around the corner.

Anastas did not come through the experience unscathed, but he gave better than he got from the many sharp questioners he encountered.

And, in the process, he dropped a gem or two worthy of study by our experts:

ASKED ABOUT the migration from East to West Berlin, he suggested that such flights might be prompted more by a desire for a higher standard of living than by a thirst for freedom.

ASKED IF China's Mao Tse-tung was not the world's leading Communist theoretician, Mikoyan said: "He is as good a theoretician as he was."

ASKED ABOUT the truth of claims that Russia has an atomic-powered airplane, he said: "I have not tried to learn military secrets while here, and you should do likewise."

ASKED WHAT would happen if the U. S. used force to supply Berlin, Mikoyan said: "force meets with force, usually."

ABOUT former President Harry S. Truman, he remarked bluntly that "it is a good thing" he "is no longer in office." He said Truman "seems to fear the American people will have a better opinion of the Soviet Union." He said it was during Truman's administration that Russian-U. S. relations began to deteriorate.

AS FOR EISENHOWER, Mikoyan said he likes him "and the reason is clear." He didn't elaborate.

IN ANSWER to questions about the need of the U. S. and the U. S. S. R. to get along, Mikoyan declared himself in favor of peace. He had the audacity even to suggest that godly and ungodly materialism could live side-by-side in the world if leaders of both countries put their minds to it.

And so, as Anastas wings his way over the ocean, into the rising sun, he might well be framing the answers he will have for Premier Nikita Khrushchev about his journey.

He could tell his boss: "In Waukegan we killed 'em, but at the State Department we didn't do so good."

'Florida Schools In Clear'

The court-ordered end of Virginia's school segregation laws cannot affect Florida schools, state and county officials said Monday.

Attorney General Richard Ervin said he had requested copies of the decision, but that it could "have no effect on Florida's Pupil Assignment Law."

School Board attorneys here said the board would go ahead with its plans to make a major decision Wednesday — whether any or all of a group of four Negro children can be admitted to all-white Orchard Villa Elementary School, 5720 NW 13th Ave.

Florida's assignment law, passed by a special session in 1956, has never been challenged in court. It calls for school boards to assign pupils on the basis of factors other than race.

Gov. LeRoy Collins frequently has warned, although none of Florida's public schools have integrated, that extreme segregation measures may be interpreted as "Massive defiance."

A Florida law calls for automatic closing of public schools if federal troops are ordered into the state to enforce integration.

Women Seek Bahamas Vote

NASSAU, Bahamas — (AP) — A group of women bearing placards demanding the right to vote converged on the Bahamas Assembly Monday.

The legislators declined to hear the delegation in the House chamber but adjourned to the courthouse and listened to the petition there.

Only male freeholders over 21 are allowed to vote in the Bahamas at present.

Secretary of State Lennox Boyd last year ordered the Legislature to provide for universal male suffrage but said women hadn't shown enough interest for him to urge their enfranchisement.

The legislature still has taken no action on female suffrage.

Russia's Moving of Jews Hit

Mikoyan Urged To Block Plan

The American Jewish Committee reported Monday that it is "gravely concerned" over reports of a large scale forced movement of Soviet Jews to the Birobidzhan district in Siberia.

The report, released in Miami, said the move may be proposed at the Soviet Party Communist Congress which opens next week in Moscow.

Representatives of the AJC appealed to Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan in New York to intercede in blocking the forced migration plan.

The Russian official is reported by Jessica P. Schwarz, executive assistant of the AJC here, to have responded:

"The reported plan for the recreation of a Jewish State in Birobidzhan and the large scale transfer of Jewish population in Russia to there is without foundation."

The AJC says it opposes the forced move of Jews or anyone else.

"The fundamental right of the individual to preserve or change his dwelling place and cultural environment in accordance with his own needs and aspirations has been sanctioned by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights," the AJC maintains.

"The basic difficulty in regard to Birobidzhan consists in the inherent artificiality of the idea of settling an urban European element in a primitive Asian area adjacent to the Chinese border, to which no historic, sociological and spiritual ties bind them."

The Birobidzhan district has been labeled by some Soviets as "an autonomous Jewish region."

The AJC group says Jews constitute only one-fifth the population of this district "in which almost all expressions of Jewish cultural life such as schools, theaters, publishing houses have been surpressed."

It added that "the renewal of the scheme (to settle Jews there) would be completely devoid of any incentive for Jews to accept voluntarily the enormous sacrifices and burdens involved."

Seine Rising Above Paris

PARIS —(UPI)— The Seine River rose Monday to more than six inches above its official danger point, inflicting widespread damage outside Paris, but officials said it would recede before Paris itself was threatened.

Sandbag barricades kept the waters out of all but a few basements along the river bank, but the water seeped into some subway lines. Two railroad lines which run parallel with the river a few feet below the ground were closed.

Vast regions of the surrounding countryside were under water and more than 600 persons were homeless. Property damage was estimated in the millions.

Cold Wave Cuts Into Midwest

CHICAGO —(AP)— A new cold wave knifed into the Midwest Monday. The eastward surge of Arctic air brought the threat of more snow in storm-buffeted areas of New York State and western Pennsylvania.

The Atlantic Seaboard northward to New England enjoyed a brief warmup in advance of the cold front.

Readings pushed into the 60s along the gulf from Texas to Florida. Houston and Brownsville, Tex., had temperatures in the 70s.

But portions of Minnesota and North Dakota shivered in sub-zero cold at midday. Overnight temperatures were expected to slide down to 20 below in Minnesota and Wisconsin and to near zero in Chicago.

New York State was a sea of snow. The fall, starting Friday and running into the weekend, ranged from 67 inches near Lake Ontario to 16 inches in northern New York and a trace in New York City.

A dozen deaths in New York State were attributed to exertion heart attacks or storm-connected accidents. Numerous motorists in western New York abandoned their cars in vaults of snow and ice.

Snow drifts three to four feet high blocked some roads in the Erie, Pa. area. Many rural schools remained closed because buses could not travel over the snow-clogged roads.

Snow flurries and occasional squalls with considerable blowing and drifting snow were on tap for the snow-plagued eastern Great Lakes region today.

Drifting snow also closed schools north of Muskegon, Mich., after 12½ inches of new snow fell in the area.

The new cold front extended from the Great Lakes across the Ohio Valley and into central Texas by midday Monday and was expected to spread into the middle and North Atlantic states and New England today.

Cities Put in Bids

GOP's Hunting Convention Site

DES MOINES, Iowa—(UPI) — Republican leaders began their search for a 1960 convention site Monday without ruling out the home territory of either of the major possibilities for the 1960 presidential nomination.

Arguments were heard Monday for New York, the home of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. Spokesmen will be heard today for Los Angeles, the home field of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and for San Francisco, which also is in his home state of California.

The site committee heard bids Monday from Philadelphia and Miami Beach, Fla., as well. Chicago also will be heard today.

For Miami Beach, Mayor Kenneth Oka presented a cash offer of $350,000 and said other benefits would be worth $40,000 to $50,000.

The Democratic site committee decided at New Orleans Sunday to recommend Los Angeles for its 1960 convention. The final decision will be made at the Democratic National Committee meeting at Washington Feb. 27.

The GOP national committee probably will give much thought to picking a more neutral site than either Los Angeles or New York for its convention.

said, "I am free and I've got a bag." The office of Rep. Charles O. Porter (D., Ore.) said he was inclined to accept the Castro invitation.

Castro issued the invitation in hopes of stilling growing criticism in the U.S. against the trial and execution of more than 200 "war criminals" accused of murders and other crimes while they were serving deposed dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Castro was getting increasing support at home for his campaign against the Batistianos whom the revolutionary government has accused of murdering 20,000 men, women and children during the six-year Batista regime.

Msgr. Alfredo Muller, auxiliary bishop of Havana who is the No. 2 Roman Catholic Cleric in Cuba, said he and the church were usually opposed to capital punishment "but in the case of the current proceedings here in Cuba it is justified."

In Havana it was announced that Castro personally will prosecute a group of war crimes defendants in a showcase trial some time this week at Havana's La Cabana Fortress.

The decision to start the trials rests with Provisional President Manuel Urrutia, Castro said. "Urrutia is making the decision. I am not a strong man and I do not want to be one, either," he said.

GALVESTON, Tex. — (AP) — Six persons, including four small children, were killed in a butane gas explosion that wrecked a small house near the Galveston Bay fishing and resort community of Kemah Monday.

Sheriff's Deputy Truman Stone identified the charred bodies as Mr. and Mrs. Bennet Neal Odem and their four children, Barbara, seven, Carol, six, Neal Jr., four, and Deborah, two.

Firemen said the explosion apparently resulted from an accumulation of the liquefied petroleum gas, a byproduct of natural gas.

Ike Puts Stress On Recovery in 77 Million Budget

go to keeping the U.S. military structure ready to meet any threat with weapons operating from the bottom of the sea and through the fringes of space.

Key members of Congress questioned in advance whether the budget would carry enough money for defense. The total is down 315 millions from the current year's expenditures for the Defense Department, atomic energy, stockpiling of strategic materials, and military aid to allies.

For the Defense Department alone, the spending figure is up 145 millions, to a total of $40,850,000,000. Some Democrats and a number of Republicans on Capitol Hill have criticized sums of that size as inadequate.

In contrast with last year's budget message, this new 30,000-word document speaks of a persisting rather than a growing military danger from the Communist world.

But it all but calls a halt on continued whittling down of military manpower. It places less emphasis on planes and more on missiles — some 800 million dollars more.

It proposes to push spending for scientific research and space development to a record level. Eisenhower mentioned a million-pound thrust engine, and a nuclear rocket engine.

Expenditures for the Atomic Energy Commission also are expected to hit a record high of $2,700,000,000, with development and production of nuclear weapons kept at high levels.

No new funds are requested for testing such weapons in the 1960 fiscal year because of negotiations with Russia over suspending tests.

Foreign aid is a favorite target of the congressional pruning knife. But Eisenhower beat the lawmakers to it this time with a plan for cutting the total for next year by 383 millions, to $3,498,000,000.

That would be a net reduction, with boosts for technical assistance and economic help for friendly countries partly offsetting a slash in military assistance.

As Eisenhower sees it, the domestic economic outlook has changed, bringing opportunities for advances at home and abroad.

Eisenhower has had his differences with Congress in the past — and probably will again — on foreign aid, airport construction, aid to areas with chronic unemployment, repairing of slums, and school construction.

In this budget, he proposed programs of his own for all these except schools. But they may not be exactly acceptable in a Congress whose Democratic leaders have said they intend to write their own ticket on legislation and spending.

To keep the vast interstate highway building program on a pay-as-you-go basis, he said, the federal tax on motor fuels must go up from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon.

He urged, too, that the tax on aviation gas be hiked from 2 to 4½ cents a gallon and that a new tax of 4½ cents be applied to jet fuel. Eisenhower invited airlines to pass these taxes on to passengers and shippers if Congress imposes them. He said that would be fair and sound.

The President asked that excise and corporation tax rates be kept at present levels. The corporation levies and some excises are due to drop next summer unless Congress extends them.

All in all, of the $77,100,000,000 the government plans to take in during the next fiscal year, Eisenhower said 76½ billion will come from increased receipts under present tax rates and 600 million from new taxes and proposed boosts in such things as patent fees and postal rates.

He wants 350 millions from the higher postal rates to cut down the post office deficit. In his budget message, Eisenhower did not spell out just what rates he wants raised, but the administration has pushed in the past for a five-cent letter stamp. Details on Eisenhower's postal proposals are expected to go to Congress later.

Nothing much can be done about cutting down the second biggest item in the budget—a whopping $8,096,000,000 for interest on the national debt.

But the third largest category of expenditures — for agriculture and agricultural resources — is coming down by nearly 800 millions. The new figure is $5,996,000,000.

For the time being, Eisenhower said, heavy expenditures for veterans benefits will be dropping — by 110 millions in the upcoming fiscal year. They still will hit $5,088,000,000 — the fourth biggest item in the budget.

Without spelling out specifics, the president said there should be a modification of benefits to veterans and their families for disability or death not related to military service — an idea likely to strike sparks from some veterans organizations.

For Hawaii, statehood; for the District of Columbia, home rule. Eisenhower said it is unconscionable to delay either any longer.

This is a budget that had a little something for nearly everybody:

For Hawaii, statehood; for the District of Columbia, home rule. Eisenhower said it is unconscionable to delay either any longer.

For the thirsty, a start is proposed on plans for a plant to make salt water fit for farm, industrial and municipal use.

For House members there is a dig at their new office building. Mainly because of construction of that and other federal office buildings, Eisenhower said, the costs of the government's administrative and housekeeping operations is going up by 62 millions, to $1,735,000,000.

The chief executive didn't mention it, but buried in tables of figures attached to the budget message is a line showing that expenses of keeping up the White House mansion and grounds are expected to mount from $497,000 to $531,000.

On the side of economy, Eisenhower considered it "both possible and prudent to take a breathing spell" in the starting of new public works projects, such as veterans hospitals and water resources developments.

Rights Official Found Dead

WASHINGTON — (AP) — J. Ernest Wilkins, 64, a member of the Civil Rights Commission, was found dead at his home here Monday, police reported.

The body of the attorney, one of two Negroes to hold a "little cabinet" post, was discovered by a maid when she reported for work Monday morning, Lt. Charles Burns of the homicide squad said.

Wilkins was assistant secretary of labor from 1954 to 1958, resigning last November.

Rain, Snow Precede Cold Wave Trends in Central Strip of Nation

Forecasts For Today

MIAMI AND VICINITY — Fair with high temperatures near 75 today. East and Southeast winds, 10 to 20 miles an hour.

SMALL BOAT BULLETIN — East and southeast winds, 15 to 22 miles an hour. Seas moderate and inland waters rather choppy. Fair weather.

WESTERN CARIBBEAN — Easterly 15 to 22 mile an hour winds. Partly cloudy with widely scattered showers.

National Summary

High pressure that maintained a pattern of cool weather in the East over the weekend drifted off the south Atlantic coast Monday with southerly breezes spreading warmer air from the Gulf states into New England.

By noon 60 degree temperatures warmed the Gulf regions from Florida into Texas with Houston and Brownsville recording readings in the 70s.

The eastward sweep of the cold air mass from the plains to the New England states will drop temperatures at a cold wave rate into Illinois and Indiana.

The brief warming trend ahead of the cold front will give snow, sleet and then rain in an area from southern New England into the mountains of western North Carolina early Tuesday.

Warm air in the southern states will stay the cold long enough to develop a band of showers and thunderstorms from central Texas to the lower Mississippi Valley.

Pacific air across the Rockies will spread snow from the Continental Divide across the western side of the cold air mass from Montana to Oklahoma and northern New Mexico.

Fair weather will prevail in the northern plains with dawn temperatures down to 20 below in Minnesota and Wisconsin and in the southwest with mild temperatures.

Sliding Frolic On Icy Mountain Injures 16 Girls

NORTH CONWAY, N.Y. —(AP)— Sixteen terrified teenage girls were injured, one seriously, when they went sliding dizzily down an ice-glazed ski trail on 3,000-foot high Cranmore Mountain.

The trail had been closed to skiing as hazardous. None of the girls had brought their skis, but in a frolicsome mood they decided to try sliding.

Almost instantly their speed was beyond their control and they were thrown against trees, brush and rocks as they plummeted 100 yards down the steep, icy trail.

About an inch of glare ice, left by freezing rain, encrusted a foot of snow.

When found, they were strewn about the trail, bruised and bleeding, some unable to stand.

Because vehicles could not negotiate the mountain, men skilled in mountain climbing donned spiked and hob-hailed boots to reach the injured.

The rescurers built fires to keep the girls warm until they could be transported on toboggans almost a mile down the mountain to an ambulance and to a hospital.

Most seriously injured was Carol Di Spirito, 16, who suffered pelvic and lumbar spinal fractures and bladder injury. Five girls were held at Memorial Hospital for less serious injuries. Ten other girls were treated at the hospital and released.

10 Likely Successors Named

Rockefeller Makes Ike's Personal 'Best-Blessed' List

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller are among the 10 men President Eisenhower would support for the presidency in 1960, the magazine "U.S. News and World Report" said Monday.

Eisenhower told the National Press Club last Wednesday that he could, but wouldn't, give a list of "a half dozen, or 10 or maybe a dozen fine, virile men in the Republican Party that I would gladly support."

The magazine said in a copyrighted article that both Nixon and Rockefeller, considered the leading contenders for the 1960 GOP presidential nomination, are on the President's list. The magazine said it obtained its information from Eisenhower's "close friends."

At least two men on the list could not be considered "young." They are Former Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, 68, and Chief Justice Earl Warren, 67.

The others listed are Treasury Secretary Robert A. Anderson; Defense Secretary Neil H. McElroy; Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell; Attorney General William P. Rogers; Arthur S. Flemming, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, and Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, president of the Red Cross, former NATO commander, and a personal friend of the President.

High School Vandalized

VALDOSTA, Ga. — (AP) — Vandals broke into the Valdosta Junior High school over the weekend, causing damage estimated at more than $10,000.

Police Chief Wilbur Perkerson said he believes juveniles are responsible. He said the damage was discovered Monday by Janitor George Stoney.

Police said they broke typewriters, cut telephone lines, slashed rice bags in the cafeteria store room, splattered ink on walls and floors, mutilated band instruments and uniforms and hacked wooden doors with sharp instruments.

Mitchell: We're Seen as Hypocrites

LABOR SECRETARY James P. Mitchell says that in the eyes of many people in underdeveloped countries Americans "appear to be hypocrites" in professing to want to help them.

MITCHELL

For instance, he said, Africans do not believe the U.S. is interested in their progress when they read of American schools being closed to block racial integration.

South American farmers scoff at American aid, he said, when they see their fellow countrymen subjected to low wages, poor sanitation and no schools in U.S. migrant labor camps.

"There is no way we can be believed, and genuinely, deeply believed," the secretary said, "until we make our practices entirely consistent with our ideals — right down the line."

Rossellini Going To Paris Hearing

ROBERTO ROSSELLINI is going to Paris Wednesday to present his side in a court fight with Ingrid Bergman for custody of their three children.

ROSSELLINI

Judge Rene Drouillat postponed a preliminary ruling to allow the Italian film director to appear. The judge's action was a disappointment to Miss Bergman, who sat nervously chain-smoking cigarets through the 11-minute proceeding.

The hearing is to determine whether the French court has jurisdiction in Miss Bergman's suit for custody. Rossellini has brought a custody suit of his own in a Rome court for the three children, Robertino, 8, and the twins, Isotta and Ingrid, 6.

He contends the children, now living outside Paris with Miss Bergman and her new Swedish husband, Lars Schmidt, should be given to him for "moral, religious and practical reasons." He said Miss Bergman had been living with Schmidt for a long time, and gave that as the moral reason.

Both Schmidt and Miss Bergman are Protestants, he said, while the children have been baptized Roman Catholics.

The actress' proxy marriage to Rossellini in Mexico has been annulled by an Italian court, but the Italian state prosecutor has appealed the ruling.

5,000 Go to See Eaton's Gift Horses

ALTHOUGH the thermometer was down around 12 in Cleveland, a crowd of 5,000 was at Thistledown Race Track Monday to see the troika Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev gave Cyrus S. Eaton.

Three white horses — Nature Boy, Cone and Answer — twice winners of the Russian national troika team championship, trotted and cantered around the track, pulling the sleek carriage. The horses were a part of the gift to Eaton.

Congressman James Roosevelt (D., Calif.) accompanied Eaton on the first ride.

Most of the exhibition, however, was conducted by Vladimir I. Fomin of Moscow, who was sent here to teach Eaton's Acadia Farms help how to handle the horses, which are hitched abreast in a fan-like shape.

WALLINGFORD, Conn. — (AP) — Averell Harriman, recently defeated in his try for re-election as governor of New York, says he's never again going to run for office.

HARRIMAN

In an interview, Harriman, a Democrat, said he's ready to take a quieter role in politics from now on.

"I've had enough," he said. "I am 67 years old. I'll remain active in politics as a private citizen, but I will not seek elective office again."

Harriman said he will visit Russia in the spring.

Envoy to Philippines Called Back for Washington Talks

MANILA — (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador to the Phillipines Charles E. Bohlen has been instructed to fly to Washington immediately for consultations on U.S.-Philippine relations, the embassy announced Monday.

Bohlen was scheduled to leave Manila tonight by a Pan American Airways plane.

The announcement of Bohlen's sudden return to Washington came amid rising demands in The Philippines for American economic aid.

Philippine Sen. Claro M. Recto, long-time opponent of traditional U.S.-Philippine ties, proposed in the Senate last week that the Philippines turn to Communist nations for aid if the U.S. fails to offer substantial loans.

Charles E. Bohlen
. . . sudden journey

Earlier, President Carlos P. Garcia said there is rising congressional feeling that the U.S. is "taking The Philippines for granted."

Garcia asked for an immediate 400-million-dollar currency stabilization loan.

Garcia said his country is ready to accept assistance from non-Communist countries other than the U.S.

"We don't get all we need from America," Garcia said by way of justifying his decision.

The president said, however, he was against accepting aid from Communist nations. He reiterated his firm stand against trade relations with countries belonging to the Soviet camp.

Stops Constipation Due to "Aging Colon"

New laxative discovery re-creates 3 essentials for normal regularity.

As you grow older, the internal muscles of your colon wall also age, lose the strength that propels waste from the body. Stagnant bowel contents become so dry and shrunken that they fail to stimulate the urge to purge.

Relief, doctors say, lies in a new laxative principle. Old-style bulks and moisteners may create gas, take 3 or 4 days for relief. Old-style salts and drugs cramp and gripe the entire system. Of all laxatives, only new COLONAID gives you its special 3-way relief that works only on the lower colon (area of constipation).

(1) COLONAID moisturizes dry, hardened waste for easy passage without pain or strain. (2) COLONAID's unequalled rebulking action helps retone flabby colon muscles. (3) And COLONAID acts gently, on the nerve reflexes that stimulate the vital "mass movement" of your lower colon.

The Budget: Balanced, But On A Tightrope

The $77 Billion Question

CONGRESS has the official word from President Eisenhower on what it will cost to support the federal government in fiscal 1959-60.

As advertised, the budget figure is $77 billion, or $4 billion more than Mr. Eisenhower's first proposal for 1958-59. The budget as such has these special characteristics:

It is "balanced," says the President, which means he thinks income will exceed outgo by a tiny margin.

It is a "prosperity" budget, he emphasizes, which means that the Administration believes times will be good and that budget expenditures will stimulate them further.

It gives debt reduction priority over tax relief, and this is presidential bravery.

It proposes a cent and one-half increase in federal gasoline taxes, higher postal rates, extension of present excise and corporate tax rates due to expire in June, and minor tax adjustments.

So now the fun begins.

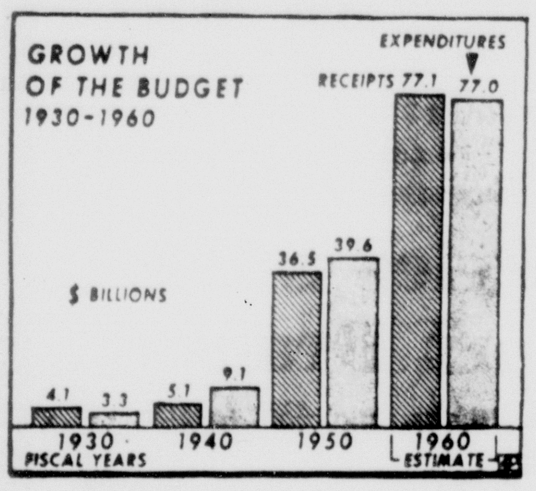
THERE are two schools of budgetary thought in the United States today.

One believes in federal pump-priming through unbalanced budgets, arguing that the whole economy is enlivened by spending. An offshoot of this school would spend on the theory that sheer spending is a great economic leveler.



The second school believes in the balanced budget and orderly retirement of the mountainous federal debt, funded in this budget at $8 billion a year, or twice the whole cost of the federal government in the 1930's.

President Eisenhower is holding classes somewhere in between these two schools. He adheres to the theory of the balanced budget. Yet, as we have pointed out before, his figure of $77 billion may well be only a starting figure — and it starts considerably higher than the $73.9 billion figure of a year ago.

And the trend, as the illustration for this editorial shows so mournfully, is ever upward.

●

IN SOBER truth, a budget of $77 billion is too staggering to analyze in any depth.

One observation at once obvious is that this budget, like those projected ever since 1950, is a "cold war" budget. We are still fiscal prisoners of a political and military situation.

Another is that it is a challenge to the spenders — but not much of a one. A canny Democratic Congress may well sense that it was not penny-pinching but dollar-pitching that disturbed the voters last November, and thus do its own balancing on a ledger that will contemplate adequate defense and foreign aid needs as well as the essential domestic services which the people and the states cannot provide for themselves. In this connection the President merits a well-done for calling on state and local governments to assume more of the burden.

FINALLY, it must be emphasized that this is (1) a "gambler's" budget, so to speak, and thus is (2) not the final one.

Mr. Eisenhower predicates his spending on a hoped-for increase of more than $9 billion in revenues. This is a risky calculation — it proved false last year — but the government perforce is required to budget to a terminal point 18 months ahead. In other words, it takes a calculated risk that the money will be there when the fiscal year ends.

We hope it is, if indeed this is the tightest budget that can be projected at this time. But the taxpayer will be well advised to keep his fingers crossed. The test of any fiscal policy is time, and time often is a tricky arbiter.

It's Just Taxes

EVERYBODY loves good old Joe Martin — good old Joe Martin! — and the House of Representatives loves him most of all.

Last week it voted him a new $11,000 limousine and $26,400 extra for assistants and clerks, not because he is still minority floor leader (who is entitled to such perquisites), but because he isn't. Everybody had been feeling sorry for Joe — most of all Joe himself — and so he is joined officially and fiscally by 435 other congressmen, including the new one from Alaska.

We're touched by the sentiment. We're also — all of us — touched in the pocketbook to the merry tune of $37,400. However, this is only taxpayers' money, and if you complain as usual that there's cronyism in Congress, too, you'll be so right but so ignored.

More Miracles Of The Atom

TWO MARVELS of the atomic age, unveiled in the past three days, provide fascinating proof that nuclear fission, properly used, foreshadows man's golden age rather than threatens his destruction.

In one demonstration at the White House, nuclear scientists showed a five-pound atomic generator, costing only $15,000, that furnished power equal to a steam locomotive weighing many tons.

In another spine-tingling experiment Swedish surgeons used an "atomic knife" for a delicate brain operation. The scientists were not even in the room with their human patient, directing the invisible proton rays while they watched on television.

Thus man progresses. A tiny power plant the size of a man's hat, yet generating enough light and power to operate an entire farm or factory, would revolutionize industry and agriculture, particularly in the backward, overpopulated areas which bear the seeds of future wars and woes.

BUT the uncanny precision of the nuclear scalpel which sliced away diseased tissue inside the skull without cutting or bloodletting has more wideranging possibilities. It hints of the eradication of cancer, the mending of damaged hearts and the end of deep-seated ailments which nowadays carry most of us off. Conservatively, the surgeons hailed its use for the elimination of chronic pain in some cases, the treatment of mental illness and of Parkinson's disease.

The news of a rocket soaring past the moon is dramatic. The word of a test nuclear explosion that disintegrates steel and stone is terrifying. These latest developments in the weird and wonderful field of nuclear physics is reassuring. We can use all the reassurance we can get in these days when the first reaction to progress in any field seems to be: Has Russia got it yet?

They Said It, And Bravely

COURAGE has been shown by the 17 lawyers and laymen who make up the Florida Judicial Council. They have proposed a complete overhaul of the state's judicial system.

Instead of the present hodge-podge, they suggest streamlining all trial courts into three tiers — Circuit Courts, County Courts and Magistrate Courts. All would be administered by the State Supreme Court, thus tightening up the whole system and giving it unified direction.

The plan isn't perfect, of course. For example, it offers no improvement in the method of selecting judges, which is by election. Nor does it spell out a cure for certain other weaknesses in the court system.

Even so, the proposal is basically meritorious. It probably faces rough going when it reaches the Legislature this spring. That can be no secret to the members of the Judicial Council, yet they have bravely said what they think ought to be done.

Well . . Congratulations, California (!)

GOV. LeROY COLLINS said we will be good losers about missing out on our bid to get the Democratic National Convention — and now probably the GOP, too — for Miami Beach.

We will be just that, Governor. We wish the Angelenos the best of luck as hosts for the Democrats in 1960 and are glad to note that the convention committee chose their city because it was "friendly Democratic country." Now the Republicans, who are expected to select the same site, must find another reason for their choice.

We will be good losers but we can't resist pointing out that the 1960 conclave will cope with a host of new conditions. Decisions will be made, for instance, not in smoke-filled but smog-filled rooms.

●

SERIOUSLY, Gov. Collins was quite right in pointing out that national racial tensions took the conventions from Miami Beach. In every other yardstick and factor considered by the convention committee, we equalled or exceeded the offers of Los Angeles. We pledged the same amount of money for party war chests; we have unparalleled facilities, unlimited hotel rooms and restaurants and the finest transportation anywhere — less than four hours by air from two-thirds of the nation's voting strength.

But we are in the South and it was doubtful from the outset that either convention would come to the South during the current debates over segregation and civil rights.

Being good losers we can console ourselves with the fact that we are better equipped than Los Angeles, or any other city, to handle the great American political circuses that play to an entranced nation every four years. Some day, as surely as the Florida sun shines and the blue Gulf Stream flows, we will play host to the political leaders for the quadrennial rite of picking the man who would be President.

Editorial Background – The Sound Dollar

Shape Of Things To Come In USA 1969

By JEANNE BELLAMY
Herald Editorial Writer

Bellamy

TO SEE WHY the buying power of the dollar is the great issue of our time, let's look at a typical American of 1969. That is just 10 years from now.

He is 35 years old, a white-collar worker, earning nearly $7,000 a year in 1959 dollars.

He is a college graduate, married and has three children, all in school. His wife is looking forward to the day when the children will be old enough for her to get a job and augment the family income.

Their home is in the suburbs of a big city. Their budget covers payments on the mortgage, insurance and their new car. However, he has a modest savings account and a few shares of stock.

The family enjoys reading, music and a yearly vacation trip, sometimes to visit his parents or hers.

Mr. Typical American of 1969 isn't thinking about retirement yet, but is working toward it through Social Security, a company pension and income from investments.

He knows his life-long standard of living depends on guarding his savings from the thief called inflation.

* * *

THIS PORTRAIT emerges from experts' charts, graphs and other projections of what is happening in the United States today. For instance:

Half the families in the country now have income of $5,000 a year or more. This has been true since 1957.

Two-thirds of the nation's people live in metropolitan areas, and the proportion is rising.

Average marriage age is 23 for men, 20 for women, and parents want more children — three instead of two.

More than 100 million Americans already have some stake in the stock market, directly or indirectly.

White - collar workers outnumber blue-collar workers by 27.7 million to 23.8 million.

Automation is fast downgrading muscle power and upgrading brain power. The number of college graduates is expected to double in the next 10 years. Even foremen and supervisors in large factories will have college degrees.

Now 60 per cent of the 19 million women working outside the home are married and run households. The proportion will grow, especially for women in the 45-to-54 age group who have reared their children. Nearly half the women of middle age will be working by the late 1960's.

Today's 15 million men and women over age 65 will increase to 20 million by 1969. The number drawing Social Security benefits of all kinds will rise far above the present level of 12½ million, especially if the program is broadened.

* * *

WHAT WILL all this mean to the order of society in the United States 10 years from now? These changes appear most likely:

CITIZENS who are better educated and therefore less easily fooled. Voters will want facts and reason instead of demagoguery.

LESS political power for labor leaders unless unions can recruit white-collar workers, now 91 per cent unorganized, and working women, now 82 per cent unorganized. Otherwise, says an AFL-CIO spokesman, "organized labor would be lucky to maintain its present membership of 17 or 18 million over the next decade. It would then become a very diminished minority in the U.S."

MORE power in the ballots of the 20 million persons over 65 — all of voting age. Most of them will be living on Social Security or other pensions.

* * *

A SOUND dollar is in its infancy as the No. 1 public issue for most Americans. The leading voice in expounding it is that of President Eisenhower:

"Inflation would reduce job opportunities, price us out of world markets, shrink the value of savings and penalize the thrift so essential to finance a growing economy.

"Inflation is not a Robin Hood, taking from the rich to give to the poor. Rather, it deals most cruelly with those who can least protect themselves. It strikes hardest those millions of our citizens whose incomes do not quickly rise with the cost of living.

"When prices soar, the pensioner and the widow see their security undermined, the man of thrift sees his savings melt away, the white-collar worker, the minister and the teacher see their standards of living dragged down.

"Inflation can be prevented. But this demands statesmanship on the part of business and labor leaders and of government at all levels. We must encourage the self-discipline, the restraint necessary to curb the wage-price spiral and except only in critical emergency, we must meet current costs from current revenue."

The very groups mentioned by Ike as the chief victims of inflation already have enough voting strength to enforce fiscal sanity. They will use it if alerted to their true interests.

Just Leave Cuba To Cubans

Editor The Herald: Why is so much importance being given to the trials and shooting of war criminals from the Batista regime, when there were so few comments made—in the name of the highest human principles—during the seven long years when those same criminals were torturing and assassinating the defenseless people of Cuba?

Such trials have been short, because the crimes committed by those sentenced to death were so many and so frequently repeated by the same men. The proofs accumulated through the years are more than enough to condemn them.

History has shown that at the end of every war, criminals of the belligerent countries have been given capital punishment in order to avoid the repetition of such cases. Example: End of World War II.

Perhaps for some countries the Cuban civil war has not been a war, possibly because of lack of honest information from their respective embassies or because they have not felt it on their own flesh. But to Cuba — which apparently many seem to forget is a free and sovereign country — this has been her worst war and it is therefore the Cuban people who must determine and decide.

It is rather contradictory that in a country like the United States, where even TV bad men can never go unpunished, that a publicity campaign is promoted to confuse public opinion in detriment to a neighboring country and to its liberator, Fidel Castro, whom I personally consider is a blessing to Cuba.

Let's leave Cuba to Cubans!

Silent Then

Editor The Herald: When Batista was ruling Cuba with a bloody hand where did Washington or the U. S. papers show their feelings for justice?

Our country has the knack of being a "Fair Weather Charlie." The time for criticism was months ago, and against Batista. But for some reason, and I suspect politics, very rarely was a good strong protest seen or heard from except by Cuban sympathizers and nationals.

These are murderers and torturers that are known to be just that without any doubt that are being killed and there is bitter hate in the hearts of those who felt the heavy hand of Batista justice.

I am not Cuban, have no interests or relatives in Cuba but like most South Floridians have followed the Cuba situation closely. I think it would be wise for the U.S. to keep its nose out of something for once. It already lost part of it with Batista!

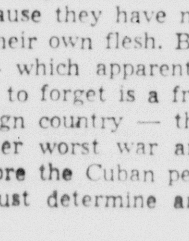
Why Not Try Horse Sense?

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS



Harris

AS SOME anonymous French wit once said, most of us use ideas the way a drunk uses a lamppost — for support, and not for illumination.

Consider the two contrary notions of "common sense" and "expert knowledge." Which do we believe in? Whichever one happens to suit us best at the time.

When we disagree with expert knowledge, we call upon common sense. When common sense seems to be against us, we take refuge in expert opinion.

I know a woman who used to drive her children nearly crazy this way. When they were ill, and the doctor recommended something she disapproved of, she would say, "Well, the doctors don't know everything — you sometimes have to rely on your common sense."

However, at other times, when the children rebelled at some medicine the doctor had prescribed, she would say, "You have to follow medical advice — after all, the doctor's paid to know what's best for you."

* * *

SUCH inconsistency is ludicrous and infuriating; but most of us do much the same sort of thing in our daily lives.

What we fail to realize is that neither common sense nor expert opinion is sufficient unto itself. The two continually need to be joined together in a sensitive blend.

Common sense can take you only so far, and then it comes up against the blank wall of ignorance. Without some study and specialized knowledge, the most perceptive mind in the world is working without adequate tools.

Likewise, the expertise of the professionals cannot exist in vacuum. The world is full of educated fools who think that their titles or degrees give them a command of their subjects, and who lose sight of the human application of their theories.

* * *

A BALANCED personality is one which knows how to reach a delicate equilibrium between the two — neither scorning the intellectual approach of the expert, nor despising the intuitive attitude of the ordinary man.

Whenever I hear a person praise "common sense," I suspect he is an ignoramus; and whenever I run across a smug expert citing "authorities," I suspect he would be lost without his reference books. The only man who can help us — the only man who can help himself — is the one who can drive these two horses together, with an easy hand on the reins.

Miami Is Lawyers' Mecca This Year

By JOHN PENNEKAMP

IF YOU ARE having trouble getting in touch with your lawyer, it may be because:

Miami, within the next few months, probably will witness the greatest gathering of legal talent on record.

Your attorney may be busy at the extra-curricular task of meeting with one of the committees on arrangements for one of the five conventions of lawyers which are scheduled.

Pennekamp

Each convention has a variety of committees, and their memberships penetrate deep into the estimated 3,000 attorneys in Dade County.

Other memberships are scattered among the remaining 4,000 attorneys throughout the state.

The number of legal conventions scheduled has created something of a scramble for talent to speak at the various luncheons, dinners and meetings as well as to preside and participate in the panels.

In addition, the cost of financing the conventions is expected to exceed by many thousands of dollars the income from registrations and reservations.

So, the lawyers and their clients who may be benefited are being asked to "help defray —."

* * *

THE SCHEDULE:

Federation of Insurance Counsels, which is a double, or triple header.

The organization will meet at the Americana, Miami Beach, February 19-22, then at the Havana Hilton, Havana, February 22-23.

The members will return to the Fontainebleau early in August for a meeting preceeding that of the American Bar Association.

American College of Trial Lawyers will meet at the Americana Hotel April 6-8.

Inter-American Bar Association will meet in Miami April 10-19 with headquarters in the Dupont Plaza.

Florida Bar Association will meet at the Deauville, May 21-23.

American Bar Association, the biggest, will meet August 19-25 with headquarters at the Americana Hotel.

Kenneth B. Sherouse Jr. will be general manager of the first four, and William P. Simmons Jr., will be in charge of the American Bar Association meeting.

* * *

BECAUSE of Miami's relationship with Latin America, the meeting of the Inter-American Bar Association will have extra interest here.

Its president is Cody Fowler, of Tampa, a former president of the American Bar Association. It got its start in 1940 under the guidance of William Roy Vallance, its general secretary, who is a retired attache of the State Department.

He organized the association outside his official work as the legal profession's contribution to furthering hemispheric understanding and solidarity, and continues to devote his time to it.

The group meets every two years, alternating between Latin American countries and the United States. The meeting here will be the eleventh.

* * *

SOME of the details of setting up its Miami convention will give you an insight into how many lawyers are serving on committees for all of the conventions.

The work of the conference itself covers 16 general subjects. Committees must arrange a program and a meeting place and time schedule for each, and be sure that no two are in serious conflict.

They must also arrange for the housing of the delegates and visitors, and for the entertainment of those who will not be at the meetings.

It is estimated that this one conference will require a minimum of $25,000 of contributions in excess of income.

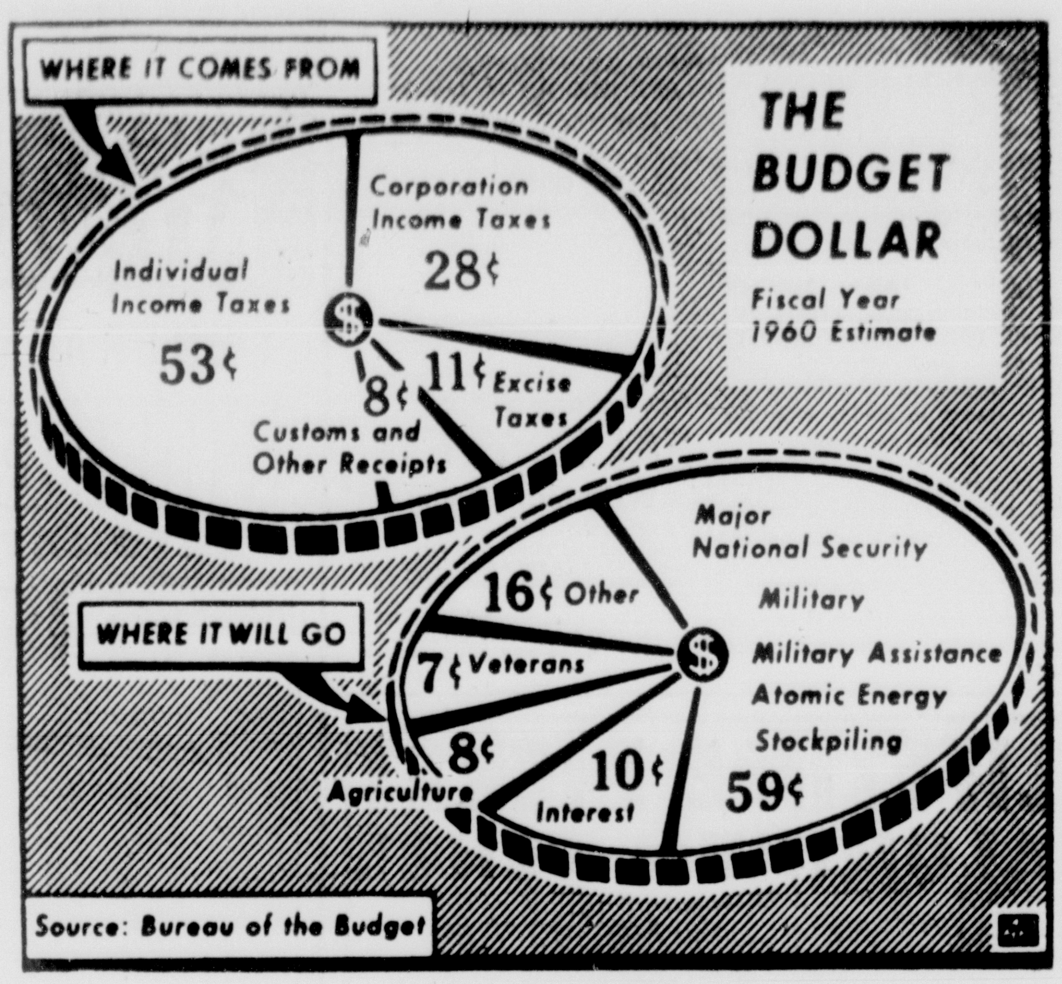
Ike Says Budget's 'Confident, Responsible'



Source: Bureau of the Budget

Your Budget Share: $431

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The administration's new spending budget for fiscal 1960 adds up to $431 for every man, woman and child in the country.

This compares with estimated per capita spending of $460 in the current fiscal year.

The per capita debt would be about $1,594 a person.

* * *

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Following is a partial text of the budget message transmitted to Congress Monday by President Eisenhower:

The situation we face today as a nation differs significantly from that a year ago. We are now entering a period of national prosperity and high employment.

This is a time for the government to conduct itself so as best to help the nation move forward strongly and confidently in economic and social progress at home, while fulfilling our responsibilities abroad.

The budget of the United States for the fiscal year 1960, transmitted herewith, will effectively and responsibly carry out the government's role in dealing with the problems and the opportunities of the period ahead.

This budget proposes to increase our military effectiveness, to enhance domestic well-being, to help friendly nations to foster their development, to preserve fiscal soundness, and to encourage economic growth and stability, not only in the fiscal year 1960 but in the years beyond. And it clearly shows that these things can be done within our income.

We cannot, of course, undertake to satisfy all proposals for government spending. But as we choose which ones the government should accept, we must always remember that freedom and the long-run strength of our economy are prerequisite to attainment of our national goals. Otherwise, we cannot, for long, meet the imperatives of individual freedom, national security, and the many other necessary responsibilities of government.

In short, this budget fits the conditions of today because:

1. IT IS A BALANCED BUDGET. — My recommendations call for an approximate equally between revenues and expenditures, with a small surplus.
2. IT IS A RESPONSIBLE BUDGET. — By avoiding a dificit, it will help prevent further increases in the cost of living and the hidden and unfair tax that inflation imposes on personal savings and incomes.
3. IT IS A CONFIDENT BUDGET. — It anticipates, in a rapidly advancing economy, increases in revenues without new general taxes, and counts upon the unity and good judgment of the American people in supporting a level of government activity which such revenues will make possible.
4. IT IS A POSITIVE BUDGET. — It responds to national needs, with due regard to urgencies and priorities, without being either extravagant or unduly limiting.
5. IT IS AN ATTAINABLE BUDGET. — Its proposals are realistic and can be achieved with the cooperation of Congress . . .

* * *

REVENUES. — The resurgence of our economy has been stronger than was assumed in the budget estimates that were published last September. Consequently, budget receipts for the fiscal year 1959 are now expected to total 68 billion dollars instead of the 67 billion dollars estimated at that time.

Our nation's population and labor force will continue to increase. The output per hour of work on our farms and in our factories can also be expected to grow as it has in the past . . .

With a balance in our finances in 1960, we can look forward to tax reduction in the reasonably foreseeable future . . .

FISCAL SOUNDNESS AND PROGRESS. — Both domestic and defense needs require that we keep our financial house in order. This means that we must adhere to two policies:

First, we must review all government activities as a part of the continuing budgetary process from year to year . . .

Second, we must examine new programs and proposals with a critical eye. Desirability alone is not a sound criterion for adding to federal responsibilities. The impact today and tomorrow on the entire nation must be carefully assessed . . .

* * *

BUDGET EXPENDITURES are proposed to be held to 77 billion dollars in fiscal 1960, which is 3.9 billion dollars less than the estimated 1959 level of 80.9 billion dollars.

With continued vigorous economic recovery, and with the relatively few new tax adjustments proposed herein, budget receipts in fiscal 1960 are expected to reach a total of 77.1 billion dollars, an increase of 9.1 billion dollars over fiscal 1959.

Thus a very modest surplus of about 0.1 billion dollars is estimated for 1960, compared with a recession-induced deficit of 12.9 billion dollars in the current fiscal year. This estimated balance assumes enactment of recommendations for extending present excises and corporation income taxes scheduled for reduction under existing law, for some new tax legislation to remove inequities and loopholes, for increased charges for special services, and for reductions in some current programs.

It also assumes that certain programs can be made self-financing by stepping up the sale of portfolio assets . . .

BUDGET RECEIPTS—Extension of present tax rates.— The budget outlook for 1960 makes it essential to extend present tax rates on corporation profits and certain excise taxes another year beyond their present expiration date of June 30, 1959.

DEVELOPMENT OF A MORE EQUITABLE TAX SYSTEM. — Considerable progress was made last year in removing unintended benefits and hardships from the tax laws. Continued attention is necessary in this area. As the budget permits, additional reforms should be undertaken to increase the fairness of the tax system, to reduce the tax restraints on incentives to work and invest, and wherever feasible to simplify the laws. I hope that the committees of the Congress will work with the Treasury Department in preparing further adjustments of our tax laws for the future . . .

OTHER CHANGES IN TAX RATES. — In order to make highway-related taxes support our vast highway expenditures, excises on motor fuels need to be increased 1½ cents a gallon to 4½ cents. These receipts will go into the highway trust fund and preserve the pay-as-we-go principle, so that contributions from general tax funds to build federal-aid highways will not be necessary . .

MAJOR NATIONAL SECURITY — The changes in emphasis in the four major national security programs for the fiscal year 1960 reflect the growing armed strength of the United States and its Allies and the continuing modernization of defense methods.

The Department of Defense will significantly increase expenditures for procurement of missiles and for development and evaluation of new weapons, while reducing expenditures for other procurement and for construction.

The Atomic Energy Commission is advancing all phases of its programs, particularly research in the peaceful uses of atomic energy.

Our Allies' progress in equipping their armed forces and the deliveries under military assistance in 1959 and prior years permit a reduction in military assistance expenditures.

Expenditures for stockpiling and expansion of defense production will be reduced because basic stockpiling objectives for most materials are now fulfilled and because many defense production expansion contracts have already been completed.

Total expenditures for major national security programs in fiscal 1960 are estimated to be 45.8 billion dollars.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE — MILITARY FUNCTIONS. — The defense program for 1960 calls for new appropriations of 40,850 million dollars. This is 288 million dollars less than the appropriations estimated for 1959. However, approximately 0.7 billion dollars of the funds appropriated by the Congress for 1959 in excess of the amounts recommended will be added to the 1960 program.

Expenditures in 1960 are estimated at 40,945 million dollars, which is 145 million dollars more than in 1959 and about 1.9 billion dollars more than the amount spent in 1958 — continuing the upward trend which began in 1956.

Over the 5-year period from 1955 to 1960, annual expenditures for defense will have increased by over 5.4 billion dollars.

RECENT DEVELOPMENTS — In the 1959 budget message I recommended a substantial acceleration of our defense effort in selected areas to enable our military strategy, techniques, and organization to keep pace with the rapid strides in science and technology.

During the last year we have made substantial progress in accelerating or starting key programs . . .

DEVELOPMENT AND CONTROL OF ATOMIC ENERGY — Expenditures by the Atomic Energy Commission are expected to reach an all-time high of 2.7 billion dollars in fiscal 1960. This large amount reflects our determination to maintain our position of world leadership in the field of nuclear military armaments until such armaments are brought under adequate international control and to promote the development of peaceful applications of atomic energy.

In the light of our offer to suspend tests of nuclear weapons for a one-year period starting Oct. 31, 1958, and in view of the negotiations for further suspension, the budget does not provide for any weapons tests in the fiscal year 1960.

Under the circumstances, testing grounds in Nevada and the Pacific will be kept on a standby basis.

A satisfactory test suspension agreement, of course, is but a first step toward reducing the grave threat of nuclear warfare. This administration intends to explore all possible means of attaining armament control under adequate inspection guaranties despite the recent suspension of negotiations on means of avoiding surprise attack.

I hope that we shall succeed. Until an acceptable agreement is reached, however, financial authorizations must be provided to continue development and production of nuclear weapons at current high levels to meet a variety of military needs . . .

MUTUAL SECURITY PROGRAM —The mutual security program is designed to help strengthen the defense and bolster the political and economic stability of the free world. Through it the United States shares in worldwide efforts to meet the Communist threat and to help improve the standard of living of people in less developed nations. For the fiscal year 1960, I am recommending new obligational authority of $3,930 million for the mutual security program. Expenditures are estimated to be $3,498 million, which is $383 million less than in fiscal 1959 . . .

The estimate of new obligational authority for military assistance in the fiscal year 1960 is 1,600 million dollars.

HIGHWAYS — The comprehensive highway program enacted in 1956 established the principle that highway users, rather than the general taxpayers, should pay the cost of federal-aid highways. The larger contract authority enacted in 1958, however, will create a cumulative deficit in the highway trust fund under present law of 241 million dollars by the end of the fiscal year 1960, and about 2.2 billion dollars by the end of 1962.

To maintain the trust fund on a self-supporting basis, I am recommending a temporary increase of 1½ cents in highway fuel taxes, to become effective July 1, 1959, and to remain in effect through the fiscal year 1964.

This increase is necessary to assure availability of the entire 1961 and 1962 federal-aid highway authorizations without waiving provisions in the basic legislation which limit expenditures to the amounts available in the trust fund.

POSTAL SERVICE—Since 1953 this administration has been using every available method to improve the efficiency of the postal service, and to place its operations on a self-supporting basis, except for a few subsidized uses authorized by law.

In the last session the Congress took an important step by enacting the first comprehensive increases in postal rates in a quarter century. The increases, however, were considerably short of the minimum necessary amounts which I had requested and were made more inadequate by pay increases for postal employes for which no additional financing was provided . . . further revisions in rates should be enacted adequate to provide at least 350 million dollars of additional revenues in 1960. Legislation for this purpose will be proposed in the near future.

THE CONGRESS SHOULD ACT promptly upon four major revisions in the urban renewal laws: (one change follows)

(A) Assure the states and cities of continuing federal support for urban renewal by authorizing capital grants of 1,350 million dollars for the next 6 years. For each of the first 3 years, 1960-62, 250 million dollars should be authorized, with 200 million dollars annually for 1963-65. This forward authorization, together with administrative steps already taken to allocate the available funds equitably, should enable each community to develop a long-term community-wide plan which may then be financed in realistic annual installments . . .

AREA ASSISTANCE. — In disapproving the area redevelopment legislation enacted in the closing days of the last Congress, I expressed the hope that the next Congress would promptly pass a more soundly conceived program. The revised legislation which this administration is proposing would:

(A) PLACE THE MAJOR responsibility on local citizens;

(B) AUTHORIZE LOANS to areas where unemployment has been well above the national average for 2 or more years;

(C) AUTHORIZE GRANTS for technical assistance to these areas and to localities dependent upon a single industry or situated in rural low-income areas;

(D) PLACE LEADERSHIP in the department of commerce, with the assistance of other federal agencies.

To finance this program, I recommend initial appropriations in fiscal 1960 of 55 million dollars. Based on the successful, comparable programs conducted by certain states, these appropriations should be adequate to meet the federal share for redevelopment of all areas expected to qualify under the proposed legislation . . .

AGRICULTURE AND AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES — Legislation is urgently needed . . . to make further revisions in the price support program. Recommendations will be sent to the Congress in a special message on agriculture. In this budget I am recommending extension of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (Public Law 480) and the Sugar Act, major changes in the rural credit programs, and a reduction in the advance authorization for the agricultural conservation program.

Estimated expenditures for agricultural programs in fiscal year 1960 are 6 billion dollars, which is 779 million dollars less than the estimate for the current year, but 1.6 billion dollars more than was actually spent in 1958.

The main part of the decrease expected in 1960 is in the soil bank program, because the acreage reserve portion terminated at the end of the 1958 crop year . . .

NATURAL RESOURCES— Expenditures for the development and conservation of natural resources are estimated at 1.7 billion dollars in 1960, approximately the same as in 1959, which itself will be higher than any previous year. About two-thirds of the expenditures in 1960 will be for the development of water resources . . . no funds are provided in the 1960 budget for starting construction of new water resources projects . . .

LABOR AND MANPOWER. — . . . This budget provides 329 million dollars of appropriations for grants to states for administration of employment service and unemployment insurance offices . . .

Our unemployment compensation system has again demonstrated its importance in providing income for the unemployed and thereby supporting the economy while alleviating hardship.

Temporary assistance of the kind provided by the temporary unemployment compensation act of 1958 is in no sense a substitute for widening the coverage of unemployment compensation and extending duration of benefits and increasing benefit amounts under the federal-state system. I have many times urged such action.

I urge it again now with added conviction as a result of last year's experience.

I am again urging prompt enactment of effective statutory protection for workers and the public from the racketeering, corruption, and abuse of democratic processes which have been disclosed in the field of labor-management relations will likewise be proposed to promote equity and stability in the relations among workers, unions, and employers. I shall make specific proposals in a special message on labor affairs . . .

PUBLIC HEALTH. — Expenditures by the department of health, education, and welfare for health programs, including those for research and construction of health facilities in fiscal 1960 are estimated at $675 million — more than double the amount 5 years earlier.

VETERANS' SERVICES AND BENEFITS — PENSIONS. — We must continue veterans' pensions and increase pension rates for those who are without other resources, particularly if they have families . . . I have, accordingly, asked the administrator of veterans affairs to present to the Congress legislation both to provide more equitable treatment of needy veterans and to modernize the veterans' pension program in the light of social developments and changes . . .

STATEHOOD FOR HAWAII AND HOME RULE FOR DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA. — I again recommend that the Congress enact legislation to admit Hawaii into the union as a state, and to grant home rule to the District of Columbia. It would be unconscionable if either of these actions were delayed any longer.

ALASKA. — I am highly gratified to be the first president in 47 years to have had the privilege of welcoming a new state into the union. Alaska takes its place as the equal of the other 48 states with both the privileges and responsibilities that go with statehood. Recommendations will be transmitted to the Congress concerning certain changes needed in federal law as a result of Alaska's admission to the union in order to apply to Alaska the same general laws, rules, and policies as are applicable to other states . . .

CONCLUSION—This budget is designed to serve the needs of the nation as a whole as effectively as possible. It rejects the philosophy that the national welfare is best served by satisfying every demand for federal expenditures.

Our objective, as a free nation, must be to prepare for the momentous decade ahead by entering the fiscal year 1960 with a world at peace, and with a strong and free economy as the prerequisite for healthy growth in the years to follow.

This can be achieved through government actions which help foster private economic recovery and development, and which restrain the forces that would drive prices higher, and thereby cheapen our money and erode our personal savings. The first step is to avoid a budget deficit by having the government live within its means, especially during prosperous, peacetime periods.

The 1960 budget reflects our determination to do this.

Budget Highlights

WASHINGTON —(UPI)— President Eisenhower's major fiscal 1960 budget proposals:

TAXES—Raise federal gasoline tax from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon to meet rising highway construction costs. Boost aviation gasoline tax from 2 to 4½ cents a gallon and impose a new 4½ tax on jet fuel — passing both on to consumers. Extend present corporate and excise tax rates another year until June 30, 1960. Tax cuts "in the reasonable forseeable future" if budget stays balanced, but none in fiscal 1960.

* * *

DEFENSE—$40,945,000,000 for defense, about 145 million dollars more than fiscal 1959, with heavy emphasis on missiles and atomic-air power. No stepup in atomic-powered plane project. Provides for 2,500,000 men under arms backed by 29,000 planes and 864 ships.

* * *

SPACE—National Aeronautics and Space Administration would get 280 million dollars next year and 45 million more on top of this year's 153 million.

* * *

POSTAL RATES — Another 350 million dollar increase. Specific proposals will come later, but a request for a five-cent letter is likely.

* * *

EDUCATION—150 million dollars for loans to college students and grants to states under science-keyed defense education program.

* * *

AVIATION — A four-year program to share costs of building runways and control towers, but withdrawal from airport grants in the future.

* * *

FOREIGN AID—Total of $3,498,000,000, with overall reduction of 383 million dollars from this year. Military aid would drop 462 million dollars, but economic aid would rise 79 million, with increased emphasis on repayable "development loans."

Strike Paralyzes Buenos Aires

TERRANEO A
EN PLAZA DE MAYO

BUENOS AIRES —(UPI)— A general strike against President Arturo Frondizi's drastic austerity program virtually paralyzed this city of nearly 6,000,000 inhabitants today. It was estimated that some 2,000,000 workers were idle.

With Frondizi off to the U.S. on an official visit, the government was reported ready to strike a crushing counter-blow to bring to an end the recurring labor troubles sparked by followers of ousted Dictator Juan D. Peron.

(President Frondizi flew into Charleston, S.C., Monday and is scheduled to arrive in Washington today.)

According to sources close to the government, both the Peronist Party — now known as the Justicialista or Social Justice Party — and the Communist Party will be outlawed, and the 62 pro-Peron labor unions which sparked the general stoppage will be placed under government commissioners.

The interior ministry admitted that the stoppage was almost complete and a government statement estimated daily losses at 25 million dollars.

Authoritative sources predicted, however, that the strike would be a failure politically because it goaded the government into adopting measures that may prove crippling to the Peronist opposition.

Indicative of the government's determination to curb the mounting political labor agitation, mass arrests, especially of labor leaders, continued throughout Monday.

City streets appeared almost deserted as no buses, trolley-buses, taxis or street cars were running. A few enterprising truck drivers tried to provide an improvised passenger service.

On the other hand, almost all government offices operated normally; all banks but two opened, and train service in and out of the city was reported normal. The armed forces have been in control of the railways since last Nov. 18, when workers who sought to paralyze them were mobilized into the armed services.

Monoxide Poisoning Snuffs Out 2 Lives

Two carbon monoxide suicides reported Monday left seven children fatherless.

The victims in almost identical suicides were Tech. Sgt. William Charles Miller, 39, Homestead AFB, father of four, and Musician John J. Morrison, 46, of 1311 NE 154th St., who had three children.

Police found Miller's body early Monday in his closed car near the Naranja Elementary School. Morrison was found in his station wagon, parked near 16454 Biscayne Blvd.

Both had connected hoses to exhaust pipes of their cars and then run the hoses inside the cars.

Morrison left several notes in his car, one of them addressed to his wife, Dorothy Vincent, a Miami Beach singer. Miller, of Cincinnati, reportedly despondent over ill health, left no notes, police said. Names of his children were not released by the Air Force.

Services for Morrison, who came here five years ago from Detroit, will be at 3 p.m. Wednesday at Lithgow's 150th St. Center.

In addition to his wife and children, James, William and Kathy Jo, he is survived by his mother and a sister, both of Detroit.

Commission Lines Up To Favor Roadblocks

It looks as if Miami's police "license check points" are going to be endorsed by the City Commission — but only by a whisker.

Commissioners, in their informal meeting Monday, stacked up three for and two against the controversial roadblocks:

Municipal Judges Mitchell M. Goldman and Francis Sobieski, Police Chief Walter E. Headley, and other department officials, met with the commission to decide whether the blocks will continue.

Commissioner Otis Shiver said he will present a resolution Wednesday calling on the police department to "cease and desist" operating the blocks.

"They'll beat it," Shiver said, "and I want them on the record."

Advocates summed up their positions this way:

B. E. HEARN — "As far as I'm concerned, you can put up roadblocks at every corner."

JAMES HIGH — "I don't want any so-and-so who's lost his license running over my little boy."

GEORGE — DuBREUIL — "Just use discretion in operating them, Chief."

Gov. Patterson Warns Negroes

MONTGOMERY, Ala. —(AP)— John Patterson was sworn in as governor Monday with a warning to Alabama Negroes that continued pressure for integration will mean the closing of their schools.

He promised to use every power to keep the schools segregated, and appealed to Negroes to turn against "the agitators of your own race whose aim is to destroy our school system."

"If you do not do so, and these agitators continue at their present pace," Patterson admonished, "in a short time you will have no public school system at all."

Girl, 8, Clawed By Caged Lioness

ALICE, Tex. —(AP)— A circus lioness reached from her cage and mauled an eight-year-old girl.

Attendants said the child, Nikki Knowles, of Corpus Christi, Tex., was slashed and bruised on her back and right arm but her condition did not appear serious.

Deputy Sheriff Bob Miller said the lioness pawed through a six-inch feeding slot after the little girl ventured too close at the winter quarters of Hagen Bros. Circus.

Arson Blamed In School Fire

CHICAGO —(AP)— An extra alarm fire billowed through the four-story Arnold Public Grammar School on the near north side early Monday. Fire Commissioner Robert Quinn said the blaze was started by arsonists.

No one was in the school when the fire broke out and no injuries were reported.

Fifty pieces of fire equipment were sent to the fire which firemen fought three hours.

Korean Pickets The White House

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A lone Korean in a black homburg picketed the White House Monday in protest against what he termed the dictatorship of South Korean President Syngman Rhee.

The picket, Byung Choll Koh, marched in 20-degree weather with a sign saying:

"S. O. S. Rescue Korean civil liberties. Down with dictatorship and communism."

Koh said he was protesting passage of a new national security law in Korea. That statute, the picket added, denies Koreans any right to criticize their government.

Mama's Bonus Is Ulcer Like Papa's

NOT Exclusive!

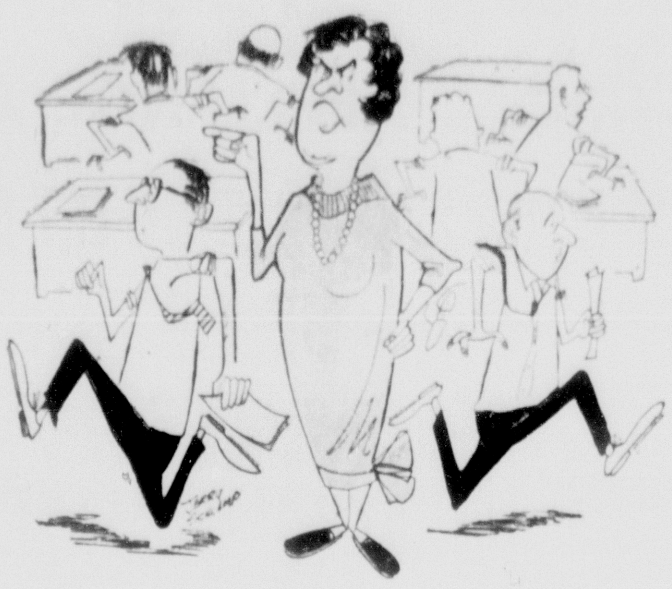
There was a time when ulcers were considered an ailment exclusive to the male species. This wasn't really true. However, it wasn't until women became common breadwinners that their stomachaches were more often diagnosed as ulcers. This recent development in the ulcer situation is spotlighted by the writer (who has one) in this article, third in a series.

By HERBERT KAMM

THE TABLEAU of American domestic life has undergone a radical change in recent years. In millions of homes across the country, father no longer stands alone as the family breadwinner, the lone defender of the threshold against economic erosion.

Father has company. He's got mother.

One-third of all the women in the U.S., according to the National Manpower Council, now work outside the home. In fact, one-fifth of the nation's salaries and wages is paid to women. Four out of 10 are mothers with children of school age, and 2.5 million are mothers whose children are under six years.



Mama's in the Business World

. . . and rising in the ulcer league

All this means that more American families are living better than ever before—economically, that is. They have more money and more material wealth.

It also means that, because mama has wandered from the hearth, families are being subjected to greater emotional stresses, and medical authorities point to this as a likely significant reason for the increase in peptic ulcers among women and children.

Ulcers—10 per cent of the population has them, and 1.4 million new cases are recorded every year—never were an ailment exclusive to the male of the species. Still, there was a time when they were considered quite rare among the now beefed-up weaker sex.

* * *

Rosie the Riveter Was 'Insulated'

ROSIE THE RIVETER, glorified in song during World War II, perhaps was insulated by patriotism against the juiced-up pressures that lead to ulcers. But it's a different story now that Rosie has piled her hair high upon her head, fitted herself with stylish glasses and taken over management of the place—all this while worrying whether Billy and Suzie are fighting with the maid.

Women have invaded just about every domain of men in business and industry. It is only natural that they should begin to pay the male price in health.

Sometimes the situation develops a strange twist. I know one businesswoman who came down with a duodenal ulcer several years ago. Because she is intelligent and sensible, she manages it quite successfully. But her husband is miserable.

"One of the greatest pleasures of a man," he told me, "is to be able to come home from the office and tell his sympathetic, uncomplicated wife all about the problems and irritations of the day. Since Nancy came down with an ulcer, I have to listen to her complaints.

"Then there's the matter of food. I've got a cast-iron stomach and can eat anything. But I can't expect her to cook fancy dishes for me and watch me eat them while she toys with a potcheese salad. So I go along with her diet.

"I've got a bellyache, too," he said sourly. "But it's from hunger."

* * *

Domestic Problems Take Their Toll

DOMESTIC PROBLEMS, whether induced by the fact that both parents work or whether the result of more normal distractions, also are believed at least partly responsible for the increased incidence of ulcers among children.

Cases are so common that ulcer should be one of the first diagnoses considered in a child who has chronic abdominal pains, the American College of Gastroenterology was told at its recent convention.

Dr. Joseph Shaiken, associate professor of medicine at Marquette University's School of Medicine, reported on 109 children seen in private practice who has gastrointestinal X-ray studies because of abdominal pain and other symptoms. He found 18 cases of duodenal ulcer and five of gastric (stomach) ulcer.

A child with such symptoms should have an X-ray examination, particularly if there is a history of ulcers in the family, the doctor advised. While many of the factors that contribute to ulcers in adults, including smoking and drinking, are not present among children, nervous tension is present and important, he said.

Another physician, Dr. Robert B. Tudor of Bismarck, N. D., has reported that one to five per cent of all children have ulcers in some form. He is convinced, he said, that the rate actually is higher, that many cases are not properly diagnosed.

* * *

Children's Ulcers May Go Undetected

"THE CLASSIC SYMPTOM for adults is a stomach pain," said Dr. Tudor. "They drink some milk and find temporary relief. Because children's symptoms differ, their ulcers go unrecognized and they are dismissed as neurotic, finicky or feeding problems.

"The sorry part," he added, "is that children are really so easy to treat. Very often, within four to six weeks after treatment has begun, all symptoms are gone and X-ray evidence of the ulcer has disappeared."

Ulcers come and go in some individuals without letting anyone know they've been there. In most cases, though, they cause acute distress.

As a rule, a duodenal ulcer signals itself by a sharply localized pain on the right side of the abdomen, just below the ribs. A gastric ulcer produces similar pain on the left side. The pain is usually a gnawing or aching sensation, but sometimes it is a burning or cramp-like feeling.

* * *

Once Pain's Noted, Call for a Doctor

IN DUODENAL ULCER, the pain usually comes one to four hours after a meal. In stomach ulcer, it may appear when the stomach is empty.

These are the signs to watch for whether the victim is a man, a woman or a child. Once the pain is noted, self-diagnosis should end. It's then time to call in a doctor.

As for self-treatment, authorities are pretty much in agreement that peace of mind, nebulous though the term may be, is a powerful weapon.

It helps if father can avoid bringing home his headaches from the office. It helps if mother can concentrate on her role as a hearthwarmer and heart-warmer. It helps if the kids can be spared the confusion of trying to figure out who's the boss in the family—and who's on first.

Bomb Threat Nets Thief $10,000 at N.J. Bank

MORRISTOWN, N. J.—(AP)—The First National Iron Bank has a small branch in the shopping center here for customers who want to drive up and do business through tellers' windows that open on the sidewalk.

A tough customer took advantage of the service. He just drove up, robbed $10,000 and drove away.

The man hopped out of his car and flung a bundle he said was a bomb into a deposit chute between two tellers' windows. He told one of the girl tellers, "Give me your money or this bomb will go off."

She gave him about $10,000. Then he went to the other window and told the girl there to hand over her money too. But the second teller took her chances on the "bomb" and pressed an alarm.

The bandit, figuring his day's business was over, hopped back into his convertible and drove off.

Committee Urges Milk Board End

Study Group Hits Agriculture Dept.

By JOHN BOYLES
Capital Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins' study committee Monday harpooned the Florida Department of Agriculture, terming it a hodge-podge of costly duplication of government.

The committee headed by Sen. Tom Adams of Orange Park said, "the office of commissioner of agriculture professes to be a department consisting of 12 divisions which have grown by reason of executive fiat rather than legislative direction."

Nathan Mayo, commissioner of agriculture for 36 years, is ill at his Ocala home and was unavailable for comment.

Gov. Collins said he had not yet personally received the 88-page report.

The first of six public hearings over the state on the committee's recommendations to the 1959 Legislature will be held here Tuesday.

The committee recommended that the Florida Milk Commission be abolished, asserting that as long as the committee exists "the milk industry in Florida will never be adequately stabilized."

The committee called for creation of a department of agriculture consisting of the following divisions: administration, animal industry, plant industry, chemistry, citrus and vegetable inspection, standards and marketing.

The committee also recommended that an advisory council composed of representatives of all agricultural interests be formed to help guide the commissioner on policies, and that the office of assistant commissioner of agriculture be established.

It also recommended a full-time legal staff be set up within the department with a prohibition against the hiring of private attorneys by agricultural agencies.

Calling for abolition of several independent boards and commissions, Adam's committee said "more agricultural services are rendered agriculture in Florida by governmental agencies outside the commissioner's office than within."

It said the State Plant Board should be removed from the Board of Control, which regulates state universities, and transferred to the new Agriculture Department.

The Plant Board administers such programs as fruit fly and fire ant extermination.

"The lack of enforcement by the commissioner's office of the citrus code has become so apparent, the committee said, "that other interested bodies have been compelled to employ their own inspectors."

"The type of inspection service rendered by the commissioner's office is of little benefit to either the poultry industry or the consumer and the fees charged in the light of the benefit received are excessive," the committee said.

It said activities of the Immigration Bureau within the commissioner's office "are in competition with the authorized activities of the Florida Development Commission, and have duplicated the efforts of the Agricultural Extension Service (at the University of Florida)."

The Immigration Bureau publishes multicolored books promoting Florida which often duplicate and parallel similar publications of the development commission.

The committee asserted that trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund are better suited to conduct the business of the State Land Office than the office of commissioner of agriculture.

The report did not deal with the commissioner's constitutional authority over the state prison at Raiford, but it said the commissioner is burdened with many non-agricultural activities which take his time from agriculture.

And the report added that within the office of commissioner of agriculture "there is much disorganization and divided authority."

Navy Stands Firm On Key West Plan

Herald Service

WASHINGTON — Transfer of 10 vessels with crews totaling 1,600 men, from Key West to Charleston, S.C., was ordered because the warships will operate in the Atlantic as a part of a large fleet, Thomas Gates, Secretary of the Navy, told Key West and Miami delegations here Monday.

News About Florida

The Navy will not rescind the transfer orders for eight submarines, a submarine tender, and a submarine rescue ship, Gates told the group. The meeting was arranged by Florida's Senators, George Smathers and Spessard Holland, and by Rep. Dante Fascell.

Miami Mayor Robert King High and Metro Commissioner Robert Haverfield said "Miami merchants will take it on the chin" as a result of the transfer of the ships.

High declared 90 per cent of the provisions for the Key West Naval base came from Miami firms and estimated the transfer would mean a loss of "between 15 and 20 million dollars annually" to Miami business firms.

Gates assured the group the Navy plans no cutback in shore installations at Key West, including the fleet sonar school and the air station. "The Navy has no intention of getting out of Key West," the secretary said.

Perjury Trial To Open Today

BARTOW—Three of the defendants in the highly publicized Harry King perjury case of 1956 face retrial in criminal court today.

The state indicated it would seek to bring King, 56-year-old former state senator from Winter Haven, to trial first. King received a five-year prison sentence following the first trial.

He was granted a separate hearing for the retrial.

Other defendants are former Sheriff Pat Gordon and former deputy Sentell Monk.

Mother Tries To Burn Tots

BARTOW — A 21-year-old mother, charged with trying to burn her two children to death because they were "interfering with her love life," told officers Monday she couldn't carry out the scheme after she heard their agonizing screams.

Mrs. Juanita Irene Hamil was charged with pouring gasoline over her children, aged three and four, putting them in the bathroom, throwing a match on them and locking the door.

The incident occurred Sunday at her home at nearby Polk City.

Slain Man's Grave Sought

JACKSONVILLE — A field, 10 miles south of Jacksonville was searched Monday for the makeshift grave of a Florida businessman identified by a California convict as his robbery slaying victim.

If the story told by Roy Victor Olson, 23, checks, the contents of the grave should be identifiable. Olson said he buried personal papers, a watch and the weapon with the body of James Eugene Harrison, 34, of Indian River City Oct. 7 or 8.

Moonshine Is Drying Up

TALLAHASSEE — An intensified enforcement drive has sent Florida's moonshine production into an eclipse, State Beverage Director H. C. Cochran reported Monday.

Results have been particulary noticeable the past six months, he said.

While the number of arrests, convictions and fines mounted, the number of stills found and the amount of mash destroyed took a sharp dip.

Fashionable Cafe Destroyed

CLEARWATER—A $250,000 fire destroyed the fashionable Heilman's Beachcomber Restaurant here Monday.

The blaze broke out about 4 p.m. and firemen fought for almost two hours before they extinguished it. The flames raged out of control for almost 30 minutes.

More Bogus $100 Bills Found Here

Eight more counterfeit $100 bills —of the same bogus type which have turned up here and in Cuba — were reported by Miami banks Monday.

Secret Service Agent John Marshall said they were turned in by persons who didn't know they were phony.

Eighteen of the bogus c-notes have been found here in the past five days.

Marshall said all the bills are on the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. One type has the designation K-21 on the front plate and 110 on the back. The other type has L-21 on the front and 110 on the back plate.

Ablon Case A Mistrial

A federal jury reported Monday it was deadlocked on whether the strange death of Harry Ablon was suicide. Judge Emett Choate declared a mistrial.

Insurance premiums totaling $70,000 were at issue in the case, in which the widow of the former Ohio car dealer sued an insurance company for double indemnity claims.

Ablon was found dying at the wheel of his car, with a bullet through his left temple. The car crashed into a home at NW 90th Street on Sept. 12, 1957.

Evidence at the hearing cast doubt on the police theory the death was a suicide. A pistol Ablon was said to have purchased a short time before his death was found near his feet.

Plans are being made to try the case again when crowded court calendars will permit.

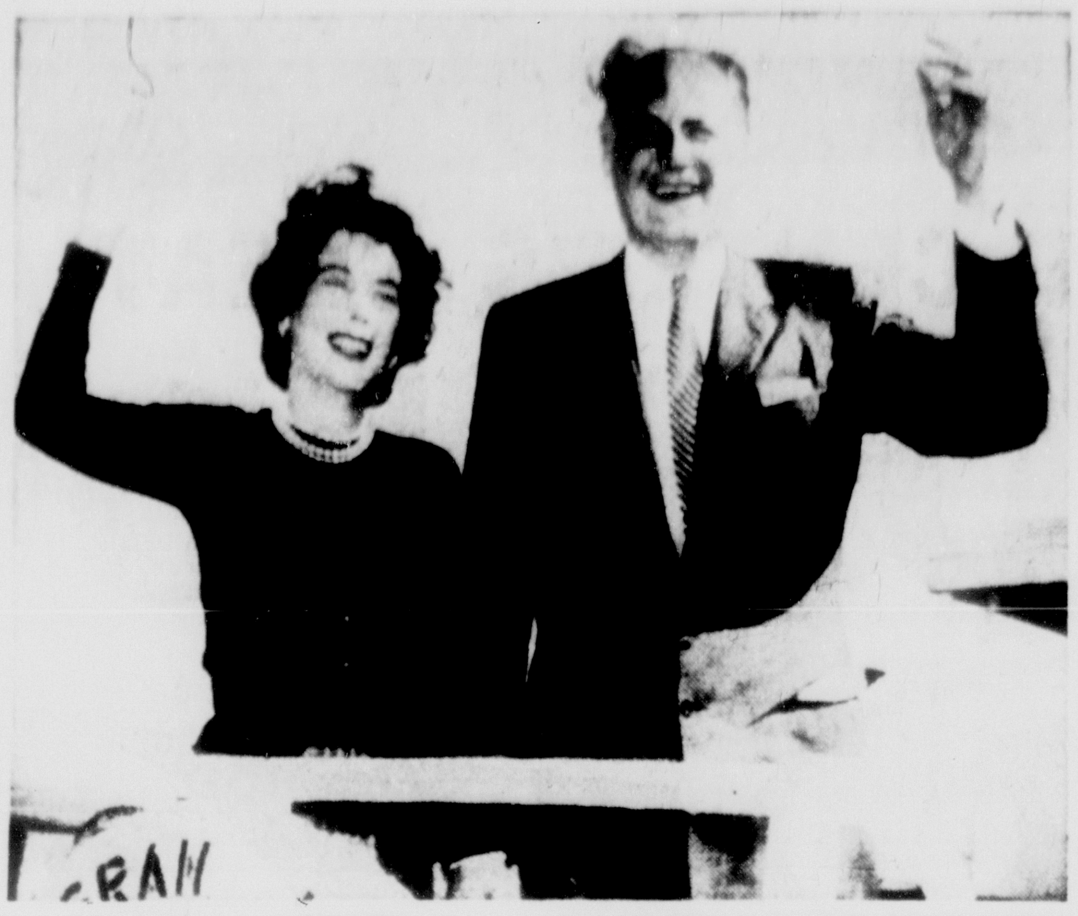
Dade Highways Get Shot in Arm

Dade County's highway system got a couple of booster shots Monday.

In Tallahassee, the Circuit Court validated a 25-million dollar bond issue to finance the 36th Street Causeway and other Dade road work.

And State Road Board Member William Singer said that construction of a two-million dollar link of the Palmetto Road bypass is scheduled to begin by Jan. 24.

The project will extend from NW 53rd Street to the Palmetto Road-Okeechobee Road interchange on State Road 826.



Adios, Cuba

Retiring U.S. Ambassador to Cuba Earl E. T. Smith and his wife Monday waved from the West Indies Fruit and Steamship Co. Ferry, New Grand Haven, as they left Havana for Palm Beach. Smith expressed his good wishes for Cuba's revolutionary government. More than 50 friends and diplomats, including Ambassador Porfirio Rubirosa of the Dominican Republic, where ex-president Fulgencio Batista is living in exile, came to the pier to bid Smith farewell.

OKs Dade Group's Plea

Collins Lends Aid To Canal Building

By JOHN BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

Gov. LeRoy Collins Monday pledged his support to a move to assure completion of Dade County flood control projects within the Central and South Florida Flood Control District.

Collins said he would direct D. Dail, director of the flood control district, to confer with the Dade County Commission and that he would ask the Florida Congressional delegation to press for stepped up activity on the part of the U.S. Corps of Engineers.

The governor also suggested that the Dade Commission emphasize the importance of the project in briefing the Dade legislative delegation.

Former House Speaker Ted Davis of Hollywood told Collins: "Dade County has been waiting patiently in the bread line and now it is concerned as to whether there is going to be any bread available."

David accompanied Dade Commission Chairman Walter Weiss, Commissioner Alex Gordon, County Manager O. W. (Hump) Campbell and Dade Flood Control Engineer Frank Park to Tallahassee.

The Dade officials said they were not complaining because they realized that projects north of Dade in the 17-county flood control district had to be completed first, but now they were concerned the Corps of Engineers might let the rest of the project drag on for several years.

Chairman Weiss told Collins that land reclamation is only an incidental feature of the work that has to be done with water conservation and water control being the prime factors.

Weiss said congressional help is needed either to get the engineers to modify their position or to give early authorization for the reclamation project.

Park told the governor there was also concern over whether there will be enough state money to raise the federal contribution. He also pointed out Dade County pays about 65 per cent of the funds contributed by the 17 counties.

Park said the flood control district anticipates about eight million dollars in 1959 and in excess of that in 1960. This would require, as the flood control district has requested, a state appropriation of 11 million dollars.

Collins warned "because of the state's present financial pinch, chances are extremely slim for increasing the state's appropriation."

The current state contribution is 3½ million dollars annually.

Polio Work Wins Honors

A. J. (Jack) Cleary was honored Monday for 20 years of fighting polio.

Cleary, chairman emeritus of the Dade County Chapter of the National Polio Foundation, was presented a plaque by Robert Pentland Jr., chairman of the current March of Dimes drive.

Cuba Arms Seizures Estimated

By ARTHUR JOHNSEY
Herald Staff Writer

U. S. Customs agents revealed Monday that some $429,047 in Cuban arms, planes, boats and automobiles were seized in the Florida area in five years of Cuban rebel gun-running before the downfall of the Batista regime.

Customs agents, busy with a long vigil against gun-running, only lately have tried to itemize the seizures. Their estimate of values was said to be conservative.

Unanswered, however, was what the U.S. will do if the new revolutionary government — for which the seized arms were destined — formally filed a claim for the war materiel.

Observers said seizures were made under arms shipping laws, but that since there is no precedent for returning arms to a government which once was a rebel movement, the problem — if it is raised — would fall into laps of Washington officials.

However, two armed B26 bombers flown to Florida in the last days of dictator Fulgencio Batista's reign by defecting pilots have already been handed over to the new Cuban government.

One plane was flown to Daytona Beach and the other to Miami.

Not Bad for Sick Folks, Either

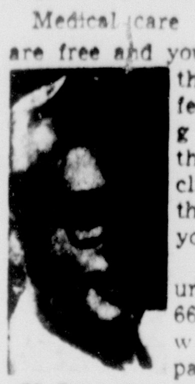
Russia's Free Medical System Is a Hypochondriac's Heaven

This is one of a series of reports by The Herald's John McDermott on his visit behind the Iron Curtain. Today's article was written in Moscow.

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT
Herald Staff Writer

Russia today is a hypochondriacs' heaven.

Medical care and treatment are free and you only have to think you are feeling bad to get treated at the neighborhood clinic or summon the doctor to your home.



McDermott

Official figures show that 66,500,000 visits were made by patients to Moscow clinics last year and more than eight million by doctors to patients' homes.

The Soviets place great stress on the "free" medical care in pushing their Communist philosophy.

The average young doctor here is taken into a clinic immediately upon completion of six years of intensive college training in medicine.

The physician's future is assured but the pay will never approximate that of a successful American practitioner. The monthly income of a young Moscow doctor, for example, is about 1,300 rubles a month — the price of a good suit of clothes here.

After five or six years, the M.D. will be earning about 1,900 rubles which compares favorably with the average wage of a coal miner, one of the higher paid workers in the U.S.S.R.

Basically, the Russians are as sanitation conscious as the Americans.

Soviet scientists have rid the vast U.S.S.R. of such death-dealing diseases as the plague.

They have curbed malaria and tuberculosis to a point where they no longer seriously threaten the population.

Virus shots, administered on a mass basis, have drastically cut influenza and allied illnesses.

The number of doctors in the Soviet Union is figured to be above 350,000, a fantastic high for the 200 million plus people of this country that spans two continents.

Women comprise about 80 per cent of the number.

One woman doctor commenting on the number of people employed in medical work and the government's financial backing of medical programs had this to say:

"Of course the party is behind our efforts 100 per cent. What better way is there to insure high production than to keep our workers healthy?"

"Sick workers don't produce. For the good of the state, everybody must produce."

The doctor's husband, a well-educated man who speaks four languages, is an interpreter. His salary is 900 rubles a month compared to his wife's 1,300.

The Moscow Health Service Department reported that as a result of intensified medical care accidents in factories have been cut drastically.

American observers figure that Russian physicians are still a bit behind their American colleagues in normal, every day treatment and handling of medical cases. But the Soviets are rapidly catching up.

Williams Heads YMCA Campaign

Ray Williams, assistant city manager, has been named general chairman of the Greater Miami YMCA membership drive which began Monday.

The goal is 2,600 adult members during the drive.

Exchange Club

C. Farris Bryant, former speaker of the Florida House, will address the Miami Exchange Club Tuesday at 12:15 p.m. in the Urmey Hotel. Bryant is expected to run for governor in 1960.

Lad Sends Plea to Pope --And Gets a Blessing

By MIKE MORGAN
Herald Staff Writer

His 11-year-old face, polished to perfection, couldn't hold the excitement that poured from his eyes.

His hands clenched a packet containing a rosary, a letter, and a packet of Vatican stamps — all sent by Pope John XXIII — which had just been presented officially to him by Bishop Coleman F. Carroll.

It all just goes to prove that a fellow never can tell what will happen — but it doesn't hurt to try.

The boy is Paul Vuturo of 260 NE 95th St., son of Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Vuturo.

Paul, his mom and dad, two younger brothers, and grandpa and grandma were in the Bishop's chancery for what must have been one of the biggest days of their lives.

It started a few weeks before Christmas when Paul sent Pope John a Christmas Card. It was his own idea.

With the card he enclosed a letter.

Paul wrote Pope John that he wanted to be a priest, and would the pope pray for him in this resolve.

And maybe give him some advice on when he should enter a seminary — and what order to choose. How old he should be?

Paul sent the card on its way — never mentioned a word of it to mom or dad.

After all, maybe they wouldn't see eye to eye with him on where to seek advice.

A few days ago Bishop Carroll received a letter from papal authorities telling him about the letter.

What's more, there was a rosary, stamps, and an autographed picture of Pope John, plus a message from him to be transmitted to the boy.

The message, forwarded by the papal secretary of state, advised that Pope John had seen the letter in which the boy "opens his heart telling he wishes to be a priest."

It added that the pope was happy to hear from Paul; would pray for his hopes of being a priest. And sent him Christmas greetings.

He asked that Paul be presented with the souvenirs and the letter.

Which is what Bishop Carroll did in the name of the pope before an overwhelmed family and near-stunned lad.

Asked why he sent the letter to the pope, rather than a bishop or cardinal, Paul replied gravely — and correctly:

"Well, I thought he was the man who could probably give me the most help."

Power Squadron Elects Officers

Miami Beach Power Squadron has elected the following officers for 1959: William G. Reichert, commander; David Wasserman, lieutenant commander; Jerome G. Langer, first lieutenant; Arthur C. Bergen, secretary, and Larry Justin, treasurer.

Julius Levinsky, Saul Weinstein and Wally Oppenheimer make up the executive committee, and Arthur K. Pathman and Daniel I. Elson the auditing committee. Beginning in February, the squadron will offer courses in seamanship and piloting.

Goodwill Meeting Wednesday

Directors of Goodwill Industries of Greater Miami will meet at 2 p.m. Wednesday to hear reports that should show when this new welfare agency will begin to function here.

The agency, which gives jobs to handicapped workers by soliciting, repairing and selling used clothes, furniture and other articles, will soon announce the site of its plant, the name of its executive director, and plans for raising $50,000 for the first year's operations.

Much of that amount already has been pledged. After the first year, Goodwill Industries plants usually are 90 per cent self supporting.

Appointment of committees has been completed, James Ryder, president, announced.

J. N. McArthur is chairman of the executive board. In addition to Ryder, members are Glenn Gold, Robert Peterson, Charles Morgan, Roy A. Perry, Kenneth Calender, Horace F. Cordes, Tally Embry and Earl Smalley.

Committees are: sales, Horace F. Cordes, chairman; W. W. Edwards, Truly Nolen, Mrs. H. D. Freeman, and Michael Isenberg; personnel, Dr. Lewis N. Head, chairman, Leo Axlrod, Dr. P. M. Boyd, Mrs. E. D. Pearce; operations, Kenneth Calender, chairman, M. R. Harrison Jr., Allan Morris; finance, Earl Smalley, chairman, Lewis R. Bickley, Samuel Blank, Ray M. Earnest, Jose Ferre, Howe E. Moredock Jr., and Mrs. Sydney Weintraub; advertising and public relations, Tally Embry, chairman, Lawrence R. Thompson, John Keena, Charles Kelley.

'Twixt Twelve and Twenty—X

Popularity Can Bar Real Friendship

Pat Boone's personal rules for lasting friendships are discussed in the tenth installment of this exclusive serialization of his best-selling book of advice for teenagers, "'Twixt Twelve and Twenty."

BY Pat Boone

The Pat Boones at Home

. . . from top: Cherry, Lindy, baby Laury, Debby

I recently received a letter from a teenage girl in Indianapolis. "My mother," she wrote, "is worried because I am not as popular as she was at my age. It makes me feel pretty low and I guess I try too hard, or don't try hard enough, or try the wrong way or something, because it is true that I am not the type that attracts friends."

You'd be surprised at how many letters like this I see each week. Teenagers wanting to know — "How can I be more popular?" How can I make the girls like me? Or the boys? The old saying is that all the world loves a lover—but I believe that all the world wants and needs friendship.

But I don't think popularity and having friends are the same thing at all. Popularity—"manifest approval of the people in general"—can be a good, sound thing, but it can also be a personality freak.

I'd say we can be tops in the popularity cult and be so busy trying to win the approval of people in general that we may not make trustworthy or honest or loyal friends at all. This isn't sour grapes: Both my wife Shirley and I won popularity contests in high school. It was very nice but not permanent.

So my advice would be to learn the art of friendship first. Then, if general popularity follows, well and good. If it doesn't, you'll never miss it, because you'll be busy with your friends.

There isn't any need for us to be lonely. This girl must be trying too hard, or not trying hard enough, or trying in the wrong way, because all you have to do to have friends is be a friend. Even if we aren't lonely most of us have a lot to learn about the art of being a real pal.

Just what does it take to be a friend? Do we have it? Let's try an inventory, the good along with the bad, and find out. I'll take mine and you can try it on for size yourself.

AM I SINCERE? That I am. I really like people. And that's a big help in starting a friendship. Oh, now and then I'm friendly with a guy I don't particularly cherish — everybody has to be now and then. But on the whole I try to be very sincere in my dealings with folks.

AM I HONEST? I try to be, but I'm not always as tactful as I should be. I've always felt that a valuable friend will cut you off sharp, if you start goofing. But to keep us from picking on each other, I guess we should balance that with honest cheers when a friend does something nice or right. It isn't fair to pick on a guy's faults and take his virtues for granted.

AM I LOYAL? Definitely, almost to a fault. As teenagers we develop such feverish loyalties to one another that adults have a hard time understanding it. We can coverup for a friend some trouble or mistake that might better be out in the open. But I am all for real loyalty.

AM I TRUSTWORTHY? One of the things you like most in a teenage friend is to know you can trust him with your confidences. Friends fall out and we have to resist talking about them when our feelings are hurt or we're sore. We also have to resist the temptation to pass a confidence from one very good friend to another very good friend under an oath of secrecy.

AM I GOOD COMPANY? This is largely a matter of disposition, cheerfulness, kindness, that old ability to put others at their ease and make them feel good. It's also a question of common courtesy and good manners.

Before we hit the teenage, it is not unusual for one friend to hit another over the head with his toys if things don't go his way. But by the time we reach the teens we've discovered that our relationships just won't stand this violent-type friction. If we're the ones who create friction, we're squeaky wheels and not at all attractive.

Courtesy is simply the oil we use to keep the machinery of friendship running smoothly.

Let me tell you about Mack Craig. He is my idea of a real friend. Mack was principal at David Lipscomb High School in Tennessee while I was there. He now is dean of the college.

Because I trusted him completely to be sincere, honest, loyal, to keep my confidence—all the things we've been questioning ourselves on — he was the one I turned to with that big question of Shirley's and my elopement. Mack gave me what advice he could and then said that when we had decided honestly what we thought was right, he'd stick by us. He did.

Friendship has played a large part in my career, too. I was lucky enough to meet Jack Spina and Randy Wood, my co-managers, early in the game. We're in business together, true, but both of them have taken the trouble to understand my pesonal convictions and to help me stand by them professionally.

Isn't that some way to run a business? We get it done, painlessly, harmoniously, successfully, and have fun doing it. The reason it's possible is that every one of us is willing to put the good of the whole ahead of his personal good.

That's the secret of Cooga Mooga, which is the name of our corporation.

In another letter I received recently, a young fellow complains that he isn't well liked because "I don't excel at anything and I can't keep up with the rest because my dad's been out of a job and we need every penny at home."

I don't think that's an honest reason for crawling into your shell and giving up.

Look at it this way. Supposing I have a problem or burden and you have one. We're friends. I share mine with you and your understanding makes my heart easier. In the act of sharing our problem each one of us has lightened his load.

In this light doesn't everyone have something special to give?

Pat Boone Says

Being popular and having friends are not the same thing. Learning the art of friendship is more important. You have to be sincere, honest, loyal, trustworthy and good company to deserve lasting friendship. It is better to be a little shy than the pushy kind of person. Try to understand that everyone has something special to give, including yourself.

WE HEAR a lot about two kinds of people, the extrovert, or out-going type, and the introvert, or shy one. The extreme extrovert, during the teen age, is apt to be so overwhelming that he scares people off or embarrasses them.

This is the show-off, the palsy-walsy-loud-voiced-life-of-the-party enthusiast. He wants very much to give but he needs to tone down. This simply isn't the way to win friends or persuade anybody. Unhappily it has the reverse effect.

On the other hand, the shyness of the extreme introvert is agony to watch. A man who suffered from shyness right into adult life is Lawrence Welk. He tells the story on himself of being so nervous at a public appearance that he announced his Champagne Music Makers would give the audience some Shampoo Music.

Yet Welk says he came to feel that it was no disgrace to be shy. He even thinks that shy people have something special to give because they are usually very sensitive, very understanding and gentle, and truly sympathetic.

There isn't any sense in saying to these extremists "don't be so pushy" or "don't be so shy," because honestly, they don't do it on purpose. They want and need friends just as much as anyone does if not more (and if you personally don't happen to fall into either category this might be your opportunity to be a friend; to give instead of get). But if you do find you are being rejected for either of these reasons, try to understand that everyone has something fine and special to give (including you) and that there is someone waiting to receive it.

WANTED — SUBDIVISION

for direct VOLUME sales on terms of 10% to 30% down, 2 to 3 year contracts, some all cash.

Map sales up North by a group of professional MAP salesmen. Property sales in Florida by expert CLOSERS.

All salesmen experienced in selling HOUSES, a most profitable by-product. All house and lot buyers personally interviewed as to desirability.

I will "set-up" your deal, from raw acreage, if necessary, prepare forms, brochures, newspaper advertising, radio script and organize for you a strong New York and Florida sales force of seasoned PRODUCERS who have followed me for years on large and successful operations, outstanding subdivisions in New York and Florida where I have directed sales, sales promotion, advertising or publicity.

I am thoroughly familiar with all the techniques of current, promiscuous, MAIL ORDER selling, with millions invested at the start in National advertising and in expensive "Main Street" ground floor stores, MAIL ORDER with its "money-back guarantee," with its $10 down and hopeful waiting up to 7 years, with its high mortality of sales. THAT is for new, experimenting, huge corporations and multi-millionaires. YOU DON'T NEED IT.—Read my "brochure."

My direct volume selling plan requires only a nominal, initial investment. It is based on expert, professional promotional "know how" and efficient, experienced "sales power." You will make cash profits almost from the start.

And my plan can be quickly expanded, on "profits in pocket," from New York to other Northern cities. I have prepared a three page "brochure" showing the advantages of this plan and including my 25-year background in the subdivision field in New York and Florida. I shall be glad to mail it to owners of subdivisions and acreage who are interested in direct, volume sales.

Port Director Ignored It as 'Inconclusive'

Secret Report Warned of Bookie Tie-Ups

By DON BONAFEDE
Herald Staff Writer

Port Director George McSherry recommended an airport concession for Alfred Mart in the face of a secret report that linked Mart's businesses to bookie rackets, The Herald learned Monday.

Included in the special report was a warning by Dan Sullivan, director of the Greater Miami Crime Commission.

Sullivan confirmed Monday he had turned over the information to McSherry's private investigators in October after a Herald reporter made horse bets at "Alfie's," Mart's Miami Beach store.

Their report, which has been kept secret, was labeled "inconclusive" by McSherry, who then recommended Mart for the new terminal's sundry store contract.

Only last Saturday Mart was arrested in a bookie raid on Miami Beach's Commodore Hotel.

Miami Beach Councilman Melvin Richard also confirmed Monday he presented evidence to the private investigators purporting to link Mart's business establishments with gambling activities.

"I met them and gave them leads," Richard said. "I have a lot of respect for Charters and Wackenhut."

Eugene Charters and George Wackenhut were the ex-FBI men hired by McSherry to investigate Mart.

Despite the unfavorable report, McSherry supported Mart for the terminal contract and on Nov. 19 the Metro Commission, which sits as the Port Authority, approved it by a 6-5 vote.

Also named in the report were several Miami Beach residents, who reported bookmaking activities at the store, and a list of alleged customers.

One person questioned by the private sleuths had earlier turned over information to John Reed, assistant attorney general.

"Reed told me he knew more about it than I did," the informant told The Herald Monday.

Another of those quizzed, a former employe at the store, maintained that bets were accepted at the store while he worked there from 1955 to 1958.

The betting pattern uncovered by the investigators was identical to that disclosed by Herald Reporter James Buchanan who left bets on five races at the store.

Betting slips and money were placed in envelopes which were handed to the store's clerks. The envelopes were then placed in a special cigar box for pickup.

Charters and Wackenhut declined Monday to reveal information in the report since, they said, the report belongs to McSherry.

Nevertheless, they declared in a statement:

"In our opinion the results of the investigation were not inconclusive."

They added that information contained in the report served as a warning against granting the permit to Mart.

Repeated efforts to reach McSherry for comment were unsuccessful.

The Herald also learned that an investigation of Alfie's made by Miami Beach detectives gave the store a clean bill of health.

Ironically, one of those later questioned by Charters and Wackenhut was the wife of one of the Miami Beach detectives who participated in the probe.

The woman, who is now divorced from the detective, claimed that betting was going on at the store.

Meanwhile, Mart's attorney declared Monday that Mart does not intend to give up the lush terminal contract.

"He (Mart) has a lease and there is no legal manner in which the lease can be canceled," reported Attorney Ben Cohen.

The attorney contended that a morals clause in the contract refers only to violations committed on the premises of the terminal.

"Mart has spent a lot of money on this and he isn't pulling out now," Cohen commented.

Alfie's Case

Alfred Mart was awarded a nice fat sundry shop and cigar concession at the new Miami International airport. He retained it even after a horse book had been found at one of his Miami Beach stores.

Then Alfie was grabbed Saturday in a raid on a bookie room in the Commodore Hotel.

Of course Alfie hasn't been convicted yet — officially. Mebbe Ben Cohen will come up with a legal curve to pry him out of the jam. But —

The way I look at it is like so. Alfie was in the grease, but got the airport concession. A smart cookie, with that concession locked up, would have stayed a million miles from horse books from now on. It must be in Alfie's blood.

National Award

Gables Principal Among Top Five

Harry N. Rath, veteran principal of Coral Gables High School, was named one of the top five principals in the nation Monday.

He will receive a School Leadership Award from Arthur C. Croft Publications, publishers of a news letter for principals.

Nominated by all 102 teachers at the Coral Gables School, Rath was chosen on the basis of a statement submitted by them.

RATH

"The recognition that Coral Gables High has received is testimony of Mr. Rath's success" the teachers' nominating statement said.

"Glorifying those who achieve, rather than being satisfied with mediocrity, is the practice of our school.

"Mr. Rath never misses an opportunity to give credit for achievement and to express appreciation to the individual for the honor that he has brought to 'the school of distinction.'"

The teachers' statement also cited the school's award-winning yearbook, band, and athletic teams, as well as the $502,373 in scholarships won by last year's graduates.

Rath, of 617 Navarre Ave., Coral Gables, has been in the Dade school system 31 years, and a principal 30 years.

He became principal of Ponce de Leon Junior-Senior High school in 1932, and went to Gables High in 1950 when that became the senior high successor to Ponce.

The other top principals named for awards were John T. Warburton, Grossmont (Calif.) High School, who was named principal of the year; and George Birbich, St. John Township (Ind.) Schools; Malvin G. Bowden, Casis and Dill Schools of Austin, Tex., and David W. Finch, Reno (Nev.) High School.

Miami Beach Ponders $3 Million Playground

Son Finds Her

Sick, Jobless Model Shoots Self to Death

By AL FINKELSTEIN
Herald Staff Writer

A red-haired model — jobless and needing a cancer operation — shot herself to death with a .45 pistol Friday and was found by her six-year-old son.

"Mommy's bleeding . . . she's bleeding," little Paul May cried to neighbors.

His mother, Mrs. Lorraine May, 30, a divorcee, was pronounced dead of a bullet wound in the chest at her home, 1435 SW 70th St.

"She apparently killed herself on impulse," police said.

She was to have entered a hospital today for examination preceding a cancer operation, relatives said.

For the former New York model, who rode on a float in the Orange Bowl parade, it ended a life of disappointments which led her to write to her sister recently:

"Why do I have such hard luck? I try so hard. I'm so disgusted with myself, I'm sick."

Her landlord, Harry Davidson, said Mrs. May was a "devoted mother" to Paul and her 12-year-old son, Thomas.

Metro Detective Paul Morgan said Mrs. May drove to the apartment of a close friend and took a pistol while he was away.

The friend, William A. Johnson, a National Airlines flight engineer, did not return until an hour after the shooting.

Neighbors said Mrs. May took both her boys and a carload of their friends on a neighborhood canvass for Cerebral Palsy Campaign funds the day before.

"She looked as if she was enjoying herself so much," her brother-in-law, Godfrey E. Elikofer, 118 SW South River Dr. said.

He is taking care of the boys.

Mrs. May came here three years ago from New York and hadn't been able to find permanent employment since, relatives said.

Tax Checkup To Benefit City

A mixup in cigaret tax accounts in Jacksonville will dump an extra $18,142 in Miami's account, State Beverage Department officials said Monday.

The recheck also puts $36,039 more in the general fund, and gives New Smyrna Beach $3,013 and St. Augustine, $1,936, officials said.

'Lot' Of Trouble, He Says

By JOHN MORTON
Herald Staff Writer

His group likes to gather to eat at the Garden Restaurant, an irate Miami Planning and Zoning Board member said Monday, adding that would be fine except:

THEY PARK on a parking lot that they've already ruled the restaurant can't use.

The Garden Restaurant is at 2235 SW Eighth St., Joseph X. DuMond said.

And patrons there park on a SW Seventh St. lot, "in violation of zoning regulations," he said.

DuMond said the restaurant owner, Jack Horlick, asked for the board's okay in 1957, but was turned down.

"The board members know the lot is being used in violation," DuMond said. "We discussed it at our meeting there Jan. 6."

DuMond told Board Chairman David Simpson Jr. he believes lunches at the Garden "are highly inappropriate" and could be "construed as condoning a violation."

Said Horlick of the lot: "That is right. I'm using it for parking."

Miss Hedwig Ber, 2250 SW Seventh St., who lives next door to the lot said, "I've been trying to get them to do something about it for more than a year."

Child Burned By Cup of Tea

The year-old daughter of Metro Deputy Robert Craig and Mrs. Craig, of 4711 NW 178th Ter., was treated Monday for first and second degree burns caused when a cup of hot tea spilled on her.

Police said the child, Catherine Ruth, who has just learned to walk, is not in serious condition. They said she bumped into a high chair and spilled the tea on her chest and face.

Now Under Three Feet Of Water

By PHIL FORTMAN
Herald Staff Writer

A three million dollar "island" playground may be pumped up in Biscayne Bay, Miami Beach officials revealed Monday.

"It can be an area for family recreational facilities or a golf Course," City Manager Morris Lipp said.

The decision, he said, is up to the city council.

The site — now under three feet of water — is north of DiLido Island and south of the 36th St. Causeway, Lipp said. It's called Pelican "Island" even though it's under water.

The area is 175 acres and is part of a multi-million public improvement program suggested Monday by a consulting firm. The program also urged:

ENLARGEMENT of the public beach at 81st St., to include an area from 75th St. to 87th Ter.

EXTENSION of the present 600-foot South Beach municipal fishing pier another 300 feet.

CONSTRUCTION of a new city library.

WIDENING of Alton Rd. from the 36th St. Causeway area north of 63rd St., and also the widening of 71st St. and Normandy Drive.

A controversy is expected to develop over the golf course-vs-playground choice for Pelican Island, which the city bought from a private developer for $35,000 years ago.

Councilmen available for comment Monday night said they want to hear from the people before making a decision.

Lipp said that if a golf course were constructed, the beach would need permission from the state to raise additional land.

"There's not enough land now for a golf course," he said.

The Atlanta consulting firm of Harland Bartholomew and Associates, in a recommendation to the city, urged the land be made a public recreation area.

Money for the work will have to come from a bond issue, and be approved in a special election, Lipp said.

That could be at the same time as the general election in May, he added.

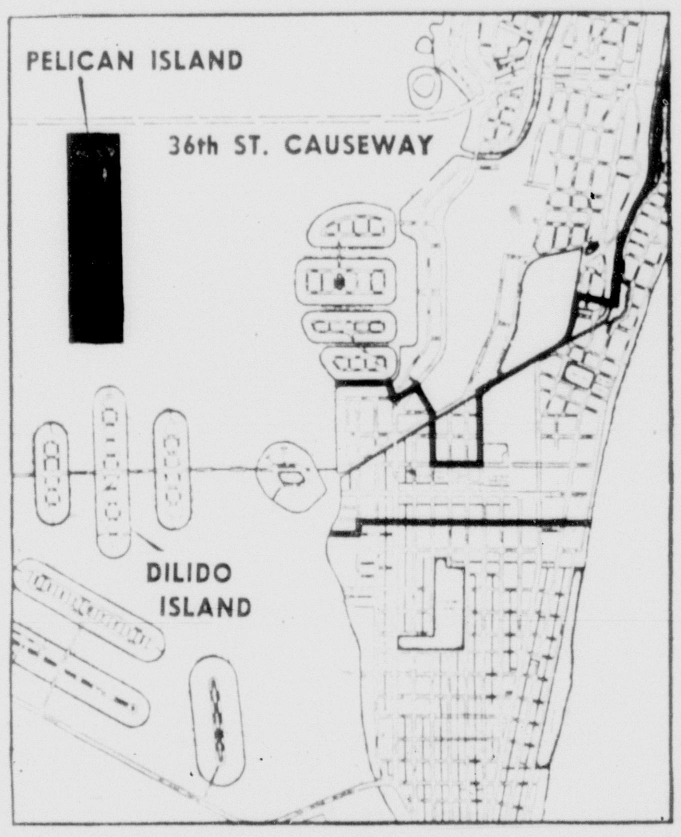
Dade Lawyers Nominate Two

Members of the Dade County Bar Association Monday voted to endorse — for the first time in their history — two candidates for president-elect of the Florida Bar.

Directors of the group previously had endorsed Reginald Williams. Then friends of C. Clyde Atkins, also of Miami, came up with a nomination for him.

At the Dade Bar luncheon Monday, U.S. Commissioner Roger E. Davis offered a resolution that the membership endorse both candidates. Members approved the resolution.

Insofar as attorneys here know, no other hats are in the ring for the office. In the past the post has been rotated among the various Florida areas and it is now regarded as Dade's "turn."



Says He's Insane

Defender Calls Suspect 'Killer'

By C. G. BERNING
Herald Staff Writer

Accused killer Bruce Magera scratched his head Monday as his own attorney labeled him "a dangerous man who should never be turned loose on society."

"We admit he killed," Defense Attorney Harry Willis told a surprised Circuit Court jury.

Magera went on trial for his life in the Oct. 1[illegible] hold-up-shooting of Grocer Homer McMillen.

Bruce Magera
. . . he winced

Natty in a blue suit, Magera winced once as Willis began his opening argument. But Willis added:

"We don't believe he knew what he was doing."

Willis paved the way for a defense of insanity, as State Attorney Irwin Block lined up a parade of witnesses to identify Magera as the killer.

McMillen was shot while working at the Charlie and Charlie Market, 3641 SW Eighth St.

E. V. McKeehan, a cashier who stood next to McMillen as he died, said Magera fired one shot into the ceiling before anyone realized "he meant business."

"I thought he was a friend of Mac's and was kidding him," McKeehan testified.

The jury got a look at the death weapon, a snub-nosed .38 six-shooter.

Miami Detective Sgt. John DiLucchio told of grabbing Magera eight minutes after the shooting, one bullet was still in his weapon.

"The gun went off as I held it to the ground trying to move the trigger to safety lock position," he told the jury.

Magera had $66 — the amount stolen — in his pocket when captured, DiLucchio said.

Magera was ordered to stand trial by Judge Harold Vann, after two of three doctors who examined him after the shooting said he was "faking" insanity.

'Drunk' Gets Orders To Drive His Auto

A Hialeah policeman admitted in court Monday he ordered a man to drive 20 blocks to the police station, then booked the man as a drunk.

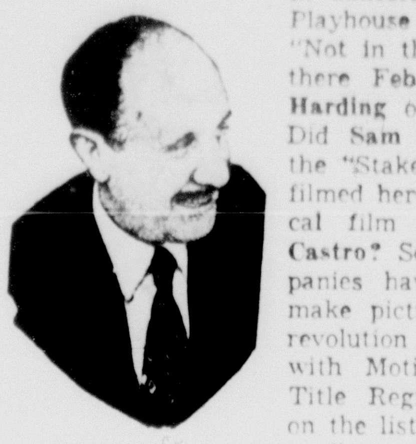
Donald E. Wright, 21, 741 NE Fifth St., told Hialeah Judge Frank Imand that Officer Harry Morris arrested him for public intoxication, then told him to drive his car to the station. He was jailed four hours.

"You mean to say you let a man you believed to be drunk drive to the station?" the judge asked Morris. The policeman admitted that it happened.

"Case dismissed," the judge said.

Nightlife with George Bourke

Faster and Fancier, Americana Revue Clicks



POSSIBLY the longest hop from one stand to another made by show veteran Edward Everett Horton will be the one which will take him from the Palm Springs Playhouse in California to Royal Poinciana Playhouse in Palm Beach, with "Not in the Book," which opens there Feb. 9, with either Ann Harding or Dorothy Stone . . . Did Sam Katzman step out of the "Stake-Out" TV series being filmed here to take on a theatrical film concerned with Fidel Castro? Several Hollywood companies have signified intent to make pictures about the Cuban revolution by registering title with Motion Picture Producers Title Registration Bureau. Not on the list was "Hi-Fidelity Castro."

* * *

Removal of Padding Helped

"A RAG, a Bone and a Ponytail" continues at Larry Tisch's Americana Hotel Bal Masque, but it is a fancier rag, a more meaty bone and a faster traveling ponytail than when it opened just before the holidays. The Sid Kuller-Selma Marlowe production was a rattling good bit of musical comedy in the original offering but it had about a half hour of needless padding.

Now that padding has been taken out and the sequence of acts adjusted, it's a lark from start to finish. The cast is the same — a solid collection of acts that have arrived but haven't yet been dubbed with stardom in the live variety field, such as the Blackburn Twins and Jerry Collins; Barbara Heller, whose impressions have been a click on television; Kay Cee Jones, who has had some success on records, Mara Lynn, Shirl Haven, Jack DeLeon, Mark Reddy, Skip Norman, Jay Salerno and others.

Best numbers are still "Funnel of Love" in which the whole cast indulges in a sophisticated switch of husbands and wives in the manner of "La Ronde;" a "Rainbow Blues" song interlude of great artistry — especially in the staging," and an atomic-paced "Celebrities on Parade" in which more than a score of impressions are done — also by the entire ensemble. "A Rag, a Bone and a Ponytail" is something different for the cafe goer — there's nary a dull moment in it.

Witch Way Now for Movie Muse?

WE'RE IN for a cycle of modern "witch" films since Dan Taradash did a splendid job on "Bell, Book and Candle." There's "Warlock," already in production at another studio, and now Robert Alda and Linda Christian have been signed for "Witchcraft." . . . Big Tubby Boots has taken on a big job at the Gaiety. He'll produce and star in the revues there . . . Sherry Britton may not want it known but she'll bring a brain into the Clover Club this week as well as a well-ordered body. She's been seen frequently on the legit stage.

Wonder whatever happened to Jane Bergmeier, once of the June Taylor Dancers? She's now Mrs. Mickey Manners, wife of the Singapore's entertainment director and has two children, Scott, 3, and Chris, 2 . . . Flip side of Cathy Carr's new hit, "First Anniversary," carries Ed "Harbor Lounge" Snyder's composition of "With Love." . . . Buzz and Frank Carroll — he's half of Carroll and Gorman, of the Martinique Hotel lounge — sold their Miami Beach home and hotel and moved to Miami.

'Auntie Mame' Prolongs Visit

FLORIDA STATE Theaters is having trouble evicting "Auntie Mame" from the Olympia, Beach and Gables Theaters, she has so many paying friends at the box-office — and so "Some Came Running," which was to have opened a run last week, will have to slow down until Wednesday.

Charles Chaplin has been invited to produce some movies in Russia. Not a remake of "The Dictator!" . . . Miamian George Campbell, who has been on Victor Borge's management staff for two years, has written a book about his travels called "You Won't Believe This." Why not "With Borge and Back?" . . . Jack Collins was keyboarding at Pit Lounge in Fort Lauderdale, but before you could say Pit Lounge he had opened at Robinson's Roost in Daytona.

Maestro to Conduct Own Work

MARIE GOODHART has been alerted to stand by for some more assignments in "Stake-Out," Screen Gems television series which is being filmed here. The Coronet model appeared in one produced by Sam Katzman late last year . . . Henry Levine, musical director of the Cavalcade of Stars band at the Deauville, has composed a work called "Flight 49." He will conduct when it is done at Bayfront Park on Friday night.

Ben Yomen has produced a musical play about two moon people on earth in search of the formula for peace in the Universe for the Miami Beach Community Singers. It will be premiered at Miami Beach Auditorium Feb. 22.

Is Burl Ives recuperating from a recent illness at his Bahamas hideaway? . . . Joe Cohen reports that the Zombie is not dead! He means the alcoholic concoction called the Zombie, of course, and based his claim on its continuing popularity at Luau . . . Music test: Name two singers from Cannonsburg, Pa.? Perry Como and . . . Perry Como and — I give up. It's Perry Como and Mitzi Welch. She's featured with her husband, Ken, at Polo Room of the Shamrock Isle hotel. Jerry Twitchell takes over as maestro there Friday.

Comics Phil Ford and Mimi Hines have told us not to miss a car called the Mafia at the up-coming foreign and sports car show here. It has a hood under the hood and a .45 heater is standard equipment . . . Dancer-comedian Danny Windsor of the Red Carpet has a part in a coming Playhouse 90 musical called "The Lady and the Gambler," with Jane Powell featured . . . Ruben Gonzalez opens with his Latin-American band in the Mirage Room of the Sahara on Jan. 29.

SWITCH in a delinquency story is "Johnny Rocco" in which it is the father who, played by Stephen McNally, needs the reformation and Richard Eyer, the son, who tries to effect it. Film, in which James Flavin, center, is featured, opens Tuesday at Paramount, Coral and Colony.

'Go' to Africa

Africa will be the next stop in the travel film series presented at the Miami Public Library, on Thursday. Showings will be at 1, 3:30 and 8 p.m.

Admissions are by free tickets, available, for as long as they last at the Main Library. Tickets may also be obtained at the branch libraries by requesting them, in advance.

GOVERNOR Nelson Rockefeller's inaugural ball was a de luxe affair. The shindig was enlivened by two bands, a skyful of stars and a spectacular production. Rockefeller paid for the wingding. Morgan's famous advice to a prospective yacht buyer: "If you've got to know how much an inaugural ball costs, you can't afford it."

Gretchen's Tunes Match Her Taps

This Wyler Girl Is Doubly Talented

By JACK ANDERSON
Herald Staff Writer

Cafe Review

It is not often in show business that you come across a dancer who sings well, and vice versa. One talent inevitably overshadows the other. And it's seldom a dancer will attempt both functions simultaneously.

That's why Gretchen Wyler, headlining the new show in the Diplomat Hotel's Cafe Cristal is something of a phenomenon. She can and does do both with verve and charm.

The tall, sinuous Broadway star has a rangy musical comedy pair of lungs so dependable that she can almost "dance" her ditties. And all with a very minimum of huff and puff.

Starting with a fast opening, "This is the Kind of Night," she gains momentum with "A Fine Romance," a medley of "Damn Yankee" numbers and hits high gear with "Mac the Black," "Once in Love With Amy," and "Frankie and Johnny."

It's a repertoire of pace and content that leaves the customers winded even if Miss Wyler herself exits as unruffled as a sleeping beauty.

Miss Wyler is preceded on the bill by the Dorman Brothers who, as a comedy act, are something of a phenomenon, too. They manage to be funny without the slightest soiled material. The wit is dry and sharp and they employ an audience participation gag or two that is quite hilarious.

Held over are the Step Brothers, four whirlwinds whose dance routines almost have the Cafe Cristal's metallic palm trees nodding in the draft.

Trombone Has Tricky Accent

NEW YORK —(AP)— There's more to a trombone than the sound it makes, says Meredith Willson. There's the way you pronounce the word.

"I figure I stepped across from amateur to professional the first time I said it with the accent on the second syllable," says the composer of Broadway's hit "The Music Man."

"For some reason people who aren't musicians always accent it the other way."

These 2 Shows Differ And Yet They're Alike

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK—(UPI)—The Rifleman and Naked City stand back to back on the Tuesday night ABC-TV schedule.

It is quite fitting therefore that they should face in different directions.

Both shows, as I said back on Sept. 30 when they bowed in, are respectable additions to the TV catalogue.

The Rifleman is a Western of good manners and occasional penetration.

Naked City is a cops and robbers piece, photographed in New York, and possessed of a keen eye for the city's frumpish disunion.

* * *

EACH IS SET in a period following one of the two great traumas this nation has undergone—the Civil War and the Great Depression—and each carries the scars of these experiences.

However, there is a sharp difference in the attitude of each show.

The Rifleman, like most good Westerns, has a feeling of unbounded space built into it.

The horizon seems unlimited and so does the potential of each life.

The Western is a container for the American dream. And therein, lies its great attraction—it reassures us.

* * *

IN NAKED CITY, the dream has been shattered. The people of Naked City feel a terrible need for space, for freedom. They are hemmed in, squeezed. They talk about touching the sky.

"Mama all my life I've lived under a rug—like dust," is the way one character Tuesday night put it. And the people in Naked City break out in the one way they know how—through violence.

Despite their differences in attitude — one rooted in the myth, the other faced with the loss of the myth—the two shows do meet on one common ground. For want of a better word, I'll call that ground compassion.

The hero of the Rifleman, a former Union officer, feels a deep concern for binding up the wounds caused by hatred, stupidity, intolerance. He carries within him the built of the winner.

Last Tuesday night, for example the plot centered around a maimed Confederate veteran, horrible in appearance, dubious in character.

"I can't stand to look at him," cried the hero's son.

"Neither can I, son," replied the hero, "which means we're in worse shape than he is."

This, I would say, is several cuts above the usual TV gush.

* * *

WITHIN NAKED CITY, charity also is frequently the note struck.

It recognizes that not all juvenile delinquents are punks, that violence is a sympton of something out of joint, that life isn't merely a matter of the good guys versus the bad guys.

And although its plots are usually thin, sorrow and pity wash over its flesh.

It faces up to the human condition, unlike other slicker action shows like, say Peter Gunn or 77 Sunset Strip.

Sex in Business 'Exposed'

MURROW

NEW YORK — (UPI) — A nationwide radio expose charged Monday that prostitution has become so important to big businesss that a famous madam issues an annual handbook of call girls for executives who want to hire girls by the dozen to help close deals with customers.

In a 55-minute "for-adults-only" presentation of "The Business of Sex," narrated by Edward R. Murrow, the Columbia Broadcasting System aired charges that some businesses have prostitutes on their payrolls full-time as members of their "public relations" staffs.

The voices of anonymous executives, call girls and others associated with the alleged coast-to-coast sex date activities were presented, along with comments by an anthropologist, a psychologist and a Roman Catholic priest.

Murrow said his staff had not been able to determine how many prostitutes there were, but that the number of highly paid call girls operating through the country as a part of big business operations was large.

Among the statements made by various participants in the program were:

—Call girls are used to help persuade bank presidents and mortgage officers to make loans or grant mortgages.

—The person being entertained for business reasons often does not know his date is a prostitute. He is told she is a show girl or secretary who is just out for a good time.

—Call girls have become a standard entertainment feature of conventions.

It Was Safe, Shallow

By JACK E. ANDERSON
Herald Radio-TV Editor

Here's what lies behind radio's new "expose approach" as unveiled Monday night by Edward R. Murrow on CBS:

The program, broadcast in Miami by WGBS, is one of an intermittent series of special airings by the network to put CBS back strong in radio broadcasting against the competition of local music-and-news stations.

The program consisted in the main of successive testimonials by anonymous witnesses to or participants in the prostitution - can - help - a-sale practice.

Unlike a deep-digging newspaper which would have been more specific about who was doing what to whom CBS covered its research tracks so that not an incriminating detail was showing.

The effect was to leave business in general as suspect, that every hidden expense account overcoat must be wrapped around a shady lady.

he only identified voices on the program, outside of Murrow's, were those of Margaret Mead, the anthropologist, Judge Ann Kross, expert in penology and Dr. Howard Greenwald, a psychoanalyst.

They analysed and deplored which got at least something concrete on the record. The rest of the documentary left prostitution like the weather — something to talk about but not do much about.

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	1 ♠	Pass	Pass
Double	Pass	2 ♦	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♥	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of hearts.

Declarer pulled off a rare but interesting unblocking maneuver today to land an enterprising game contract.

South opened the bidding with one club since he had a shade too much for one no trump. When West's overcall of one spade was passed back to him, he quite properly doubled. When North bid two diamonds, South elected to trot out his heart suit. North's hand, though lacking in high cards, had distributional merits, so he raised, and South proceeded to game.

West opened the king of spades. Declarer won the ace and laid down the ace of hearts. When East's honor dropped, South discontinued the trumps and established diamonds by playing the ace and then the jack. West won and cashed the queen of spades. When South's ten dropped, West wisely decided to discontinue the suit for he could see that the dummy was now established and nothing could be gained by forcing declarer's hand. So he switched to a club in an effort to weaken the dummy's trump holding.

Declarer could not afford to ruff in dummy, so he permitted the lead to ride. But he had to be circumspect in his choice of discard from dummy. Throwing the worthless spade would have been fatal. Instead he parted with one of the established diamonds. East took in the ace and returned a club. South won the king and discarded another diamond from dummy.

A heart was led and dummy played the eight to finesse against West's ten. Then the carefully retained six of spades was played and South ruffed with the king. The remaining small heart was led and dummy's nine finessed. The jack of hearts drew West's remaining trump and permitted South to discard the blocking nine of diamonds. Dummy was now high. Note that had South failed to retain dummy's six of spades for ruffing purposes, he would have been unable to get rid of the high diamond from his hand.

Success Story: FDIC Marking Its 25th Year

By SYLVIA PORTER
Financial Analyst

At least a half-dozen banks probably will fail in our country in 1959 — and each will come as an absolute shock to its community; most failures will be due to embezzlement of funds by trusted officials or to serious mismanagement; all will hit countless thousands of innocent families.

But there will be no panic, no dreaded run on other banks in the community because of the failure of one, no terror even among the families directly involved.

For it was 25 years ago this month that banking panics were outlawed forever in our nation.

It was precisely a quarter-century ago that the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. came into existence to insure us against bank disasters and to guarantee that you and I will never relive the anguish of our parents during the virtual collapse of America's banking system in the early '30s.

SYLVIA PORTER

Perhaps the highest tribute being paid to the FDIC is that its birthday milestone is passing unnoticed. Perhaps the FDIC has become so solid a part of our bread-and-butter lives, has moved so firmly into history as one of the greatest financial reforms of the 20th century that no one feels the need to recall its beginnings.

* * *

Banks Fell, Savings Vanished

But I was old enough 25 years ago to remember how it was as banks crashed on every side and my own family and millions like us could do nothing but watch in mute horror as the savings of a lifetime disappeared into the chaos of the depression. If you were older than an infant in 1933, you'll never be able to forget it either.

And I was old enough then to remember how fierce was the opposition of many respected businessmen and bankers to the concept of "Government" insurance of bank deposits. It's difficult to believe how many well-meaning men fumed at the time that the insurance system would "encourage recklessness" among bankers, "discredit honesty," invite "incredible abuses." But that is what they said, and the brittle newspaper clippings of that era are before me now to prove it.

Thus, in this silver anniversary month of the FDIC, a note on where the organization stands now seems more than warranted.

* * *

96 Pct. of Savings Insured

As of today, the FDIC is insuring deposits in 13,383 of our nation's 14,095 commercial and mutual savings banks. The insured banks hold 96 per cent of all bank deposits.

Of the 712 banks which are not insured, about one-fifth aren't eligible for the insurance because of their setup. The rest haven't joined because they resent the cost of the insurance, or insist they don't need insurance, or they just don't like the system or the supervision inherent in it.

The insurance maximum is $10,000 for each depositor — meaning that if you have several accounts in different banks, each will be insured to $10,000. At the start, the insurance limit was $2,500; it was raised first to $5,000 and then to $10,000.

About 98 per cent of all deposit accounts involve balances of less than $10,000 so the vast majority of accounts are fully insured.

Over the quarter-century the FDIC has built a hefty nestegg of more than $1.8 billion. It gets its funds by assessing member banks at the rate of 1-12 of 1 per cent of the insured bank's deposits but it has been doing so well that is has been returning about 60 per cent of the assessment to the banks.

* * *

Defense Against Depression

During its lifetime the agency has paid out more than $343 million in insurance to about 1,500,000 depositors in 432 banks.

In some instances the FDIC has handled a closed bank by paying off depositors to the insured maximum. In others, it has merged a sick bank with a healthy one. In still other cases, it has taken over the bad assets of a closed bank and helped to set up a new institution.

The spectacular success of this independent agency of the U.S. Government has surpassed even the most enthusiastic predictions, pulverized the doubters.

As much as anything, though, this anniversary dramatizes to me the fact that it was way back during the decade of the '30s that we began to build our powerful defenses against depression.

Now, hopefully, in the decade of the '60s we'll begin to build just as powerful defenses against inflation.

A Sign of Strength

7.5 Pct. Not High For Borrowing

By ED KANDLIK
Miami Herald-Chicago News Wire

CHICAGO — A 7½ per cent rate is not high for a successful growing corporation to pay for borrowings via income debentures, according to Ernest Henderson, president, Sheraton Corp. of America.

It is a sign of strength rather than weakness, he said.

Queried about Sheraton's new issue of $25 million of 7½ per cent capital income debentures, the hotel chain president outlined some theories about finance that may be unorthodox but thus far have been highly successful.

Financing by means of income debentures with either a conversion privilege or stock purchase warrants attached can be far more expensive than paying a high interest rate, he pointed out.

About five years ago Sheraton issued 3.3 million dollars of debentures and gave stock purchase warrants to obtain a low coupon rate. The warrants are now worth close to 5 million dollars, he said, or more than the original principal involved.

The company could have paid a 50 per cent interest rate, he pointed out, and over five years the premium on the financing would have cost the stockholders only about 125 per cent, compared with about 150 per cent through use of stock purchase warrants.

Tax Dollars

When Is Billion Worth 20

NEW YORK — (UPI) — When is a billion dollars worth only $20 to you and your family?

Right now, as far as the federal government's budget is concerned.

The tax foundation figures that every $1 billion reduction in federal spending represents a $20 tax cut for the average American family.

President Eisenhower's proposed balanced $77 billion budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1—if achieved—would mark a reduction of approximately $3 billion from this year's spending level.

On the basis of the foundation's figuring, that would mean a savings of $60 per family. However, it is doubtful taxes will be cut in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1960.

The Tax Foundation notes that federal, state and local spending may reach $145 billion by the end of the current fiscal year, which would be equivalent to $2,700 per family. The family burden in 1948 was $1,250.

The foundation estimates that collections by federal, state and local governments will total $110 billion in fiscal 1959, or $2,050 per family. In 1948 collections worked out to $1,200 per family.

Magill said the taxpayer must "comprehend that every time he asks for more government services . . . he is voting for a heavier tax burden on himself and his fellow citizens."

Dade Increases Bond Purchases

Dade Countians invested $11,912,013 in Series E and H savings bonds in 1958, a 12.3 per cent increase over the previous year, the Treasury Department reported.

County Chairman H. Hood Bassett said the state as a whole went 15 per cent above the Department's assigned quota with total bond purchases of $72,796,278.

NEW YORK — (UPI) — Americans spent more than $200 million last year for relief of the common headache.

The headache and its sidekick — the hangover — are under investigation by doctors and drug makers who are intensifying their campaign to conquer these common maladies.

Some Coffee Prices Drop Again; Dip 4 Cents a Pound This Time

Coffee prices took another tumble Monday at two major grocery chains in Greater Miami.

The cost of the lowest priced brands at Food Fair and A & P remained the same — 59 cents a pound. But the more expensive brands put out by both chains dropped.

Food Fair's "Lady Fair" brand dropped from 67 to 63 cents. Its can coffee was cut from 75 to 71 cents.

The same four-cent reduction was announced by A&P on three of its four premium coffee brands. It's "Red Circle" brand, for example, dropped four cents to 63 cents a pound.

This brought total reductions of these brands to eight cents a pound in the past five weeks.

The explanation: A new weakening of green coffee markets in Brazil and Colombia.

But independent wholesalers here had another explanation.

One said the recent devaluation of the Brazilian cruziero — the official monetary unit — made a difference in the selling price for Brazil's green coffee.

It's been known for months that Brazil is overloaded with coffee. The result has been a succession of drops in the bag price on the supermarket shelves.

Both the Food Fair and A&P coffee price cuts were systemwide.

This Tax Is Likely To Stay

TALLAHASSEE — (AP) — Senate President Designate Dewey M. Johnson said Monday he sees no chance the 1959 legislature will repeal the 1957 law that doubled the tax on bank deposits and stocks and bond holdings.

Johnson also said he does not believe any effort to repeal the inventory tax will succeed this year.

Legislators from several of the larger counties have given notice they will seek to knock out the 1957 act that increased the tax on bank deposits from 1-20th to 1-10th mill and on stocks and bond holdings from one to two mills.

The additional levy produces an estimated six million dollars a year.

The Retail Merchants Assn. has indicated it will try again to have the inventory tax repealed.

"I do not see how the legislature in good conscience could vote to repeal any tax at a time when we are being forced to cut all governmental spending to the bone to keep our budget balanced," Johnson said.

South Expanding

ATLANTA — (UPI) — Carrol M. Shanks, president of the Prudential Insurance Co., says the South will be the "progress capital" of the country for the next century.

"Recessions and economic adjustments are likely to be felt less acutely here, just as this last one very nearly missed the South altogether, and growing prosperity is likely to be more strongly here than anywhere except, possibly, in some sections of the West," he said in a speech here.

High Court Reaffirms Natural Gas Ruling

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday refused to reconsider its Dec. 8 decision that natural gas pipe line companies may raise their rates without prior approval by the Federal Power Commission.

Reconsideration was asked by the light, gas and water division of the city of Memphis, Tenn., and the Mississippi Valley Gas Co.

The Dec. 8 ruling overturned what was known as the "Memphis decision" by the U.S. Court of Appeals here. The appeals court had held that pipe line companies could not raise their rates without FPC approval unless their customers agreed to the rise.

Monday, the Supreme Court simply announced it was denying the petition for reconsideration. It did not give its reasons.

Transistors Changed Them

Most Hearing Aids Are 'Invisible' Now

NEW YORK —(UPI)— Thirty-five years ago a man who was hard of hearing needed a wheelbarrow to cart around his 185-pound hearing aid.

Today for the one out of 10 persons with some form of hearing impairment, tiny hearing aids are practically invisible behind the ear, in eyeglasses, a tie clip, a hair barrette or even inside the ear itself.

David H. Barnow, president of the Hearing Aid Industry Conference, a trade-group with a membership of 25 manufacturers, says the midget-size hearing units "have largely changed the public attitude toward hearing loss."

He said the newer aids are so small and inconspicuous that persons with hearing impairments are starting to use them when hearing trouble first develops. Formerly, most poeple waited around five years before doing anything to correct the loss.

The key to the minute size of hearing aids was the development of the tiny germanium transistor in 1952, used to replace vacuum tubes.

Transistors have a minimum life of almost 100,000 hours or more than 20 year's hearing aid use.

Barnow noted that as a result of this development, operating costs of hearing aids have been cut by more than 90 per cent and general efficiency increased by more than 300 per cent.

The transistor units have practically blanketed the hearing aid market, Barnow reported. He predicted that in 1959 more than 90 per cent of the aids sold will be of this so-called "invisible" type.

Today there are some hearing aids on the market that weigh less than two ounces.

That's a far cry from the first electric hearing aid developed in 1924, which weighed 185 pounds. It was run by a six-volt automobile storage battery and another 135-volt battery.

7 STOCKS LIKELY TO TRIPLE?
Our Editors have newly analysed an extraordinary list of 66 growth stocks — each picked by one or more professional analysts as likely to triple in the next 3 years. After intensive study, we now recommend 7 of these 66 stocks. All 7 are featured in our new Special Report. It is titled: '7 New Growth Stocks Most Likely to Triple in the Next 3 Years'. These 7 stocks remind us of outstanding profit-makers like Thiokol Chemical (8⅛ to 70⅛ in rocket fuels). And stocks like Ventures, Ltd. (4 to 42⅛ in mining and oil). Two of these 7 stocks are special 'atomic' stocks. One is in guided missiles. One is in electronic controls. Another is in 'stereo' sound. A copy of our new Report featuring these '7 Stocks to Triple' is yours as a bonus now when you send just $1 (new readers only) to try our weekly advisory service 'The Growth Stock Letter' for the next two weeks. ATTENTION, LARGE INHUMAN CORPORATIONS!!

(also human-type investors)

Small, inhuman Florida Corp., manufacturing and distributing greeting cards, nationally, has expension program rolling in spite of itself. Needs heavy capitalization. You can be selfish and buy the WHOLE corporation for $100,000, or be conservative and buy only a piece. Don't count on this as a tax loss, because it insists upon making a profit. For detailed information, write "Corporation, Box 864, Stuart, Fla." Please give references, for consideration. No brokers, please.

Final Tally: 515 Gain 521 Lose

NEW YORK — (AP) — The stock market retreated mildly from its latest peak Monday but there was a good assortment of gainers.

As the bullish drive lost its edge, volume dropped to 3,840,000 shares from 4,300,000 on Friday — a good omen to those who want stocks to go higher.

The losing side was well enough represented in the popular averages to put these barometers moderately lower. For the overall market, however, there were 515 gainers to 521 losers among the 1,264 issues traded. New highs for 1958-'59 totaled 129.

Among pivotal issues losses ran generally from fractions to a point or more. A few leading stocks posted gains ranging beyond 2 points.

The weekend news brought no abrupt change in the market atmosphere. Wall Street in general seemed to expect a higher market after the present consolidation is completed.

A lower tone prevailed among steels, rails, oils and nonferrous metals. Chemicals, drugs and tobaccos were mixed. Rubbers, electronics and airlines were higher. Utilities, despite a drop of 1½ in American Telephone, maintained a slight edge to the upside.

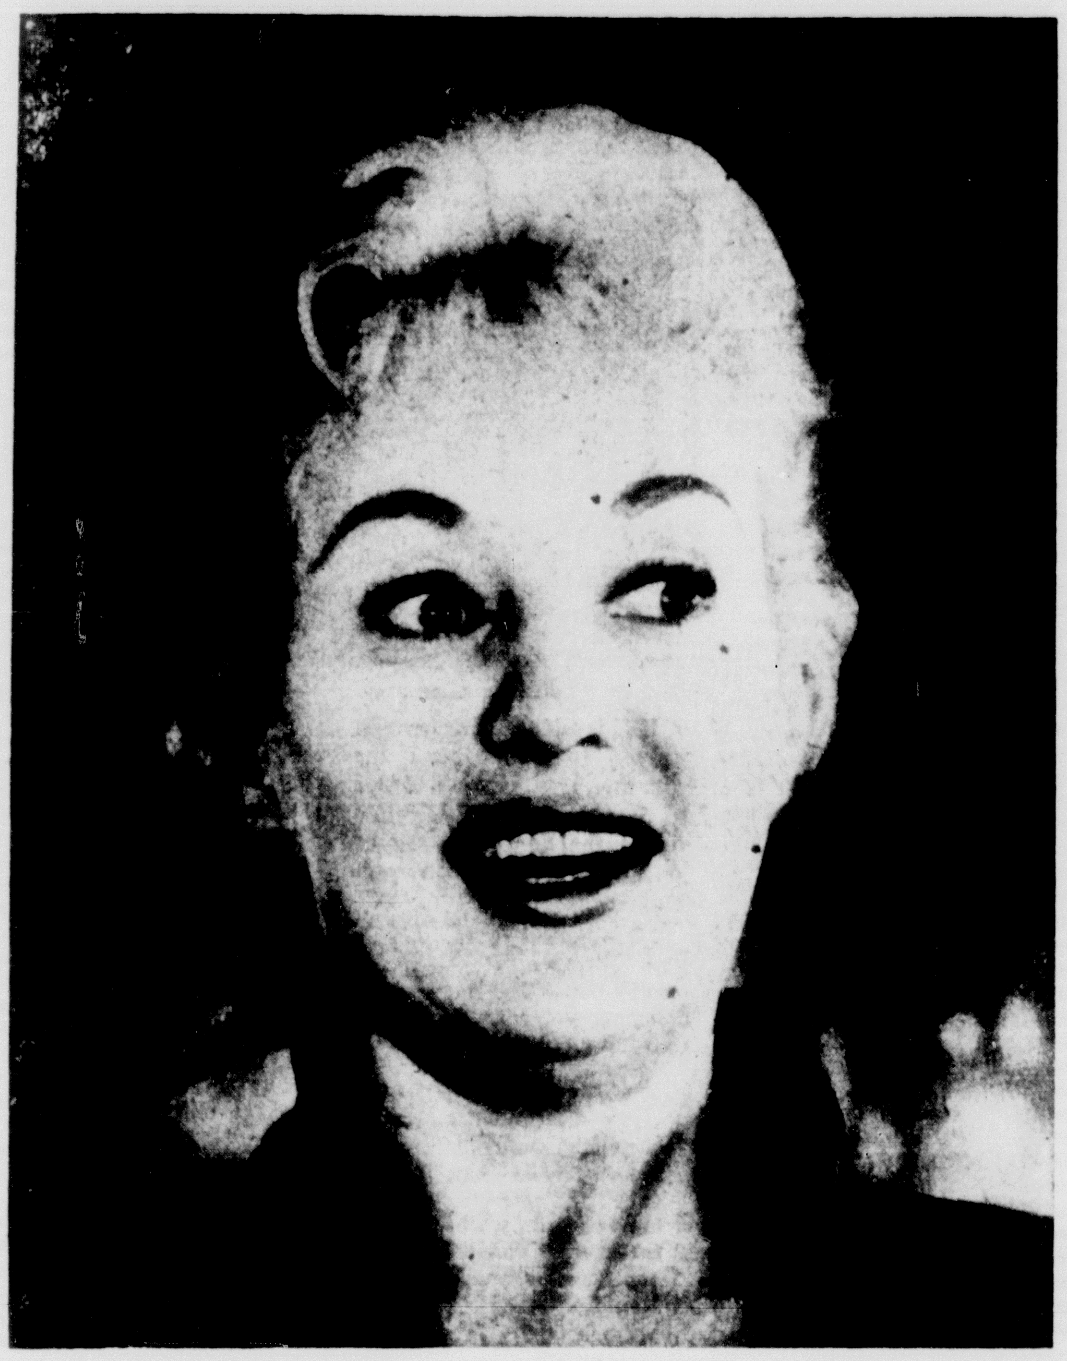
Betty Grable—A Portrait of Her at 42



'I'm not the glamorous type,' says Betty Grable
. . . who's in Miami for four weeks

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

Celebrity Parade

"Sorry to have kept you waiting," Betty Grable said in a voice known to millions of movie-goers — a voice that had a slight early-morning-frog note, for she had arrived the night before by train from California.

". . . but I was up late last night. Oh, that train trip nearly killed me . . . oh, I don't fly," she said. "I have a funny feeling about it." Even during World War II when Betty Grable was the darling of the armed forces, their favorite Pin Up Girl, she took trains when she visited training camps.

Betty has leased a Palm Island house for 4 weeks while she fulfills a three-week Latin Quarter engagement. She loves the view from the picture window.

Doesn't she have the sunshine-waterfront scene in her state? "Yeah, but with a smog. And it's not on the water like this — you know? This is wonderful," and she almost sighed the words as she smiled her famous smile. "It's like going from soot to clean."

* * *

DOES SHE LOOK HER AGE? Well, first you have to find out that age. And Betty is not talking. (Reference books list her age as 42.)

"No, I don't tell my age. What woman does? To begin with, they wouldn't believe me, if I did." But she constantly refers to her movies (which she's never seen) as "a long time ago," without a trace of false pride.

The Grable skin is unbelievably smooth, a little lax at the chinline — no, not a double chin, but rather thick around the vocal chords, like many singers. She had on "the eyelashes" for photographs, blue eye shadow on lids of deep blue eyes, and a beauty mark on one cheek. Her platinum hair was pulled back in a pony tail.

Betty wore dungarees, well-tapered, with a matching striped top. Her figure would make a teenager today envious. No diet, she says, and, except for rehearsing, no exercise. "It's just luck that it didn't turn to flab."

She's friendly and fun to talk with.

"Yes, I always dress like this at home. I'm not the glamorous type. On the stage I love to do all the glamorous stuff — the jewelry and the costumes." She shrugged. "But that's on the stage."

She stopped abruptly. "Ohhh, look!" she said and jumped up from the sofa. "The man's FISHING. That's my favorite pastime. I've never been deep sea, but I've fished on lakes and rivers. I'm the type who can sit all day. I have the patience."

This is her way of talking — rather fast, down to earth about anything she sees and often drawing it into the talk with a voice as small and intimate as though she's showing you a new born kitten.

* * *

SHE'S A WOMAN summed up by Adela Rogers St. John as "tough as a top sergeant, steady as a rock and shrewd as a Washington taxi driver."

Miss Grable admits to being "lazy" and a "poor businesswoman." But she's a keen judge of her own talents.

She took a suspension once for refusing a dramatic role. "I was sincere. Here I'm trying to tell them how I feel and I'm crying and they say, 'Of course, you can do it, just cry — exactly what you're doing now.' I tried to tell them that I wasn't acting THEN, that THAT was completely different."

Once during suspension, when she lost $50,000 in salary, a James horse came in to win a $100,000 purse. She and husband trumpeter Harry James own a money-making race horse farm in the San Fernando Valley. Their home is in Beverly Hills.

* * *

WHAT ABOUT the James children — Vicki, 14, a Beverly Hills High student, and Jessica (Jesse James, 11, a Beverly Hills Catholic School student?

"They don't take lessons. There's a piano if they're interested . . . No, they haven't taken dancing lessons . . . I think dancing is the greatest thing in the world for a girl, but I'm not going to force lessons . . .

"They're having a childhood that I didn't have — social life, high school. They're so BUSY."

* * *

IN SPITE OF her movie success, Miss Grable likes doing night clubs now. She started slightly over a year ago ("No more 5 a.m. calls to the studio," she says happily).

Miamians will see her for the first time here, although she was here for the movie premier of "Moon Over Miami."

"I love playing nightclubs," she said. "Especially where there are slot machines. I love to shoot dice, play blackjack . . . No, I'm not a big bettor, but I just like the excitement of it."

Future plans? She'd like to do television. "I think I'd be better off doing a series." And she'd like it to be with husband Harry, but not the Ozzie Nelson-type thing. "Me pushing a vacuum cleaner about might be going too far."

'We Give Our Children Love, But We Insist That They Mind'

Column with a Heart

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I too am a four foot, 11 inch mother like Column Reader. I have a son 14 and a daughter 10. I had the first lesson on how to make my children mind when he was six months old.

Being the first grandchild, he had two doting grandmothers. As soon as I saw they were spoiling him, I put my foot down. Thank goodness, my husband was on my side.

We became strict, and when we said no, we meant it. We give our children all the love and affection any two parents can give their children, but we insist they mind.

Today my son is five feet seven, but he still respects this small hand of mine.

I am a working mother, not for pleasure, but out of necessity, and both children have their chores. When my husband and I get home at night, the beds are made, house straightened up, dusted, ash trays emptied and table set.

When I started to work a year ago, I explained to the children the importance of my working, and asked for their help. They have been wonderful.

Our rule is to be firm but give love and understanding with it. If they break something and it was an accident, pick up the pieces and forget it. If it was broken out of spite, punishment that they dislike works wonders.

Columns' Readers's children are young and can be taught to mind.

Start Child's Discipline Early

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

My thanks to Sister Mary for giving me the incentive to write this letter. I was told that you can start discipline as early as six months and I did. My daughter is now 26 months old and all I have to do is say no.

Of course, sometimes I have to smack her hands, and sometimes she gets it on the bottom, but she hasn't gotten a complex yet!

As Sister Mary says, a child has to cry instead of doing for itself as we do. When mine cried, I changed her. If she still cried, I fed her. I never got exasperated in front of her as though she were an imposition.

My sister-in-law, mother of five, had an operation and I filled in until her mother came down. I told them that if I had to speak more than once, I wouldn't come after them empty handed. They were almost angels, and we had fun.

I have another sister-in-law who's a nervous wreck. Once I counted 23 times that she begged, threatened and pleaded with her kids before they came in.

I never pitched a screaming tantrum, stamped my feet or said no to my mother because I knew better.

You can't tell a mother about her Little Iodine or Dennis the Menace, but maybe some will take a hint reading this column.

HAPPY MOTHER

Eleanor Hart.

Winter Season Party Pace Is In High Gear

By HELEN WELLS
Herald Society Editor

The dizzy party pace so typical of our winter season just isn't slowing down for a minute. Invitation after invitation keeps rolling in. And our big formal balls aren't over by any means, either.

* * *

Amusing invitation from Beverly and John Muckerman says on the front "We'd like to have you for dinner . . ." Inside there's a picture of two hungry cannibals stirring an iron pot! Their date is Feb. 2nd at their home on Alton Road.

Ruth and Jim Dixon are inviting friends for cocktails and dancing on Feb. 13 at the Surf Club, 6 til 8.

* * *

Helen and Wallace Gilroy

Here's an intriguing invitation from Helen and Wallace Gilroy. It says the Gilroys "will welcome you backstage in the Green Room between the first and second acts of Rigoletto (Monday at Dade County Auditorium). A delightful refresher is in store for you which will make Grand Opera grander . . ." In fine print the invitation also says, "This is strictly private . . ."

* * *

That intime ball, usually the same guest list each year, the Polio Ball, headed as usual by dynamic Nancy (Mrs. Robert) Greene is on the date book for Feb. 3 at La Bastille.

* * *

Plans for the Heart or Jewel Ball are in the making for Feb. 22 at the Fontainebleau Hotel. Marianne Reynolds is heading this benefit ball again this year.

* * *

'This Is Our Golden Year'

A golden card with pictures of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Breit taken in 1909 and 1959 says "this is our Golden Year." Their 50th wedding anniversary was Sunday and they marked it with a solemn high mass at St. Joseph's Church in Surfside.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Breit

The Breits have been coming to Miami Beach since 1923 from their home in Evanston, Ill. They are members of Indian Creek Country Club and Bal Harbour Club. Their winter home is in Bal Harbour.

* * *

Not a pleasant trip but a necessary one is on Grace (Mrs. Mercer) Moseley's agenda. She goes into Mt. Sinai Hospital on Tuesday for her sixth eye operation.

Arriving on Sunday to be with Mrs. M. was her daughter, Ruth, Mrs. Lyle E. Pritchard of New York.

* * *

Winter Visitors Arrive

Back in Miami for a six month's stay are Stella and Forrest Withers, who have been living in Hendersonville, N.C. They have taken an apartment at 185 SE Eighth St.

* * *

A Pleasant Informal Party

Keynote of a cocktail soiree Tanga and Bud Sorgatz gave at their apartment on E. Bay Harbor Drive on Sunday was pleasant informality. If the men didn't find a convenient chair, they sat on the floor. In fact, Sue Fitzgerald had Jack Butler at her feet Eddie Cohen on one side and Larry Haugen on the other!

Bud Sorgatz

This was the first time many of Bud's friends had met his attractive English wife whom he met in Bermuda. They were married last spring and lived in Pompano during the summer. Bud's two children stayed with them during the summer months. "We were well chaperoned on our honeymoon!" he remarked.

Mrs. Sorgatz is tiny with brown hair and intelligent hazel eyes. She is the former Eileen MacCormick and came by the nickname of 'Tanga' because she lived in Tanganika, Africa, for seven years where her former husband was, and still is, a member, of Parliament. In answer to the usual question, yes, she likes living in Florida, especially Miami Beach.

* * *

The classic profile you see of Miss Liberty on our silver dollar is that of Anne Willis Williams, chosen for her beauty to be the Goddess of Liberty in 1876.

Her cousin, Margaret Uler of Denton, Md., is here for her annual winter stay at the Johnson Apartment Hotel. She always carries a silver dollar in her purse!

* * *

Macaroni Dishes To Serve a Crowd

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

Many a mother knows the feeling of having a lively household seemingly forever filled with young people — and the problem of what to feed them. You never know how many you're liable to have.

Mrs. Edward Toner of Essex Fells, N. J., knows the feeling well. And her answer is: macaroni dishes.

A small, lively person with slightly graying hair, Mrs. Toner is the wife of an executive of a macaroni products company. She is here with him to attend the annual meeting of the National Macaroni Manufacturers Association.

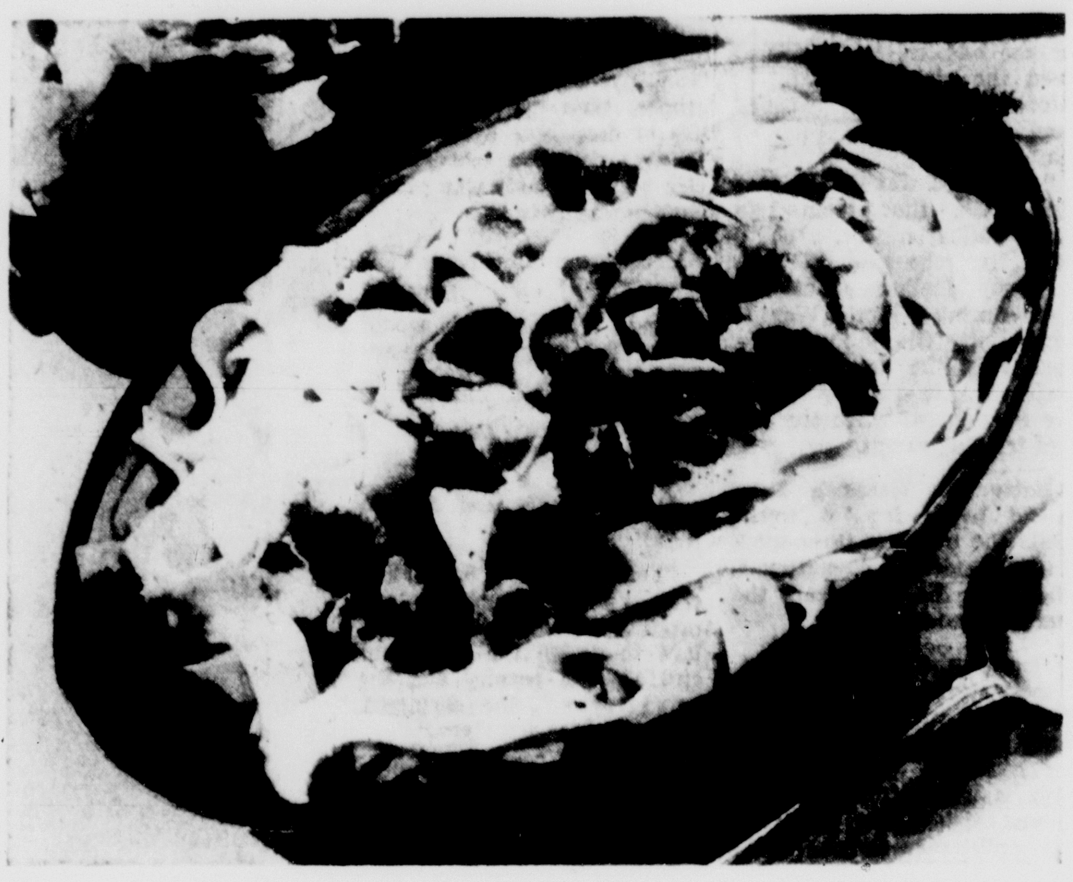
Back home she has gained a reputation for being a highly successful hostess through her years of rising to the occasion of many an impromptu party of the Toner children.

The Toners have two daughters and a son, all in their 20's, who frequently convert the Toner home into an open house for the young married set or college crowd.

And the "open house" has been going on for years. For when they were in high school and college they were forever bringing in extra friends for spur-of-the-moment parties, just supper or spending the night after the dance.

* * *

HERE ARE some of Mrs. Toner's favorite recipes for this type of informal party:



Pennsylvania Dutch Noodles
. . . wonderful dish for impromptu parties

PENNSYLVANIA DUTCH NOODLES

1 tablespoon salt
3 quarts boiling water
8 ounces wide egg noodles (about 4 cups)
½ cup milk
¼ cup croutons
3 tablespoons butter or margarine, melted and browned

Add 1 tablespoon salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add noodles so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Combine noodles and milk. Cook over low heat 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Turn into serving dish; top with croutons and butter or margarine. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

* * *

SPAGHETTI is always a favorite at the Toners.

Serve it from the kitchen buffet style with chunks of Italian bread and a tossed salad.

SPAGHETTI WITH MEAT SAUCE

2 pounds ground beef
1½ tablespoons grated onion
¼ cup olive or salad oil
1 1-pound 13-ounce can tomatoes
2 8-ounce cans tomato sauce
1 4-ounce can mushroom crowns, drained
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon oregano
2 tablespoons salt
4 to 6 quart boiling water
1 pound spaghetti

Cook beef and onion in olive or salad oil until beef is browned. Combine tomatoes, tomato sauce, mushrooms, 1 teaspoon salt, pepper, oregano and beef mixture. Cook, covered, over low heat 45 minutes.

Meanwhile, add 2 tablespoons salt to rapidly boiling water. Gradually add spaghetti so that water continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until tender. Drain in colander.

Serve sauce over spaghetti. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

FEEDING unexpected guests is no problem for Mr. and Mrs. Edward Toner of Essex Fells, N.J. She's noted for her collection of macaroni recipes for just such occasions.

CANNED TUNA goes into Mrs. Toner's California Noodle Chowder to make a delicious, yet economical main dish for supper.

CALIFORNIA NOODLE CHOWDER

7 cups chicken broth
8 ounces wide egg noodles (about 4 cups)
2 cups chopped water cress
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 tablespoons chopped scallions
2 7-ounce cans solid-pack tuna, drained
3 cups milk
Salt and pepper to taste

Heat chicken broth to boiling point. Gradually add noodles so that broth continues to boil. Cook uncovered, stirring occasionally, until almost tender.

Add water cress, parsley and scallions. Cook over low heat 20 minutes. Add tuna and milk; mix well. Season with salt and pepper. Heat to serving temperature over low heat; stirring occasionally, or chill and serve cold.

If richer soup is desired, substitute 1 cup light cream for one cup milk.

Makes 2½ quarts.

Eartha Kitt Is Going Literary

By Herald Wire Services

NEW YORK — Memo to literature lovers: Miss Eartha Kitt is writing a novel.

She's already had one book published, her autobiography, "Thursday's Child," and she's got 30,000 words of manuscript done on the new book.

"It's a contemporary novel about a girl who hates men but can't do without them," Eartha said. "Her name is Hullia, and she was rejected by her father so she has this hate for men.

"And it's not autobiographical."

Or unprintable.

"No four-letter words; no spice for the sake of spice," said Eartha firmly. "You don't have to hit anybody on the head to be sexy."

Grandma Loves Climbing Fire Tower

NEALY RIDGE, Va. — There's nothing like climbing an 80-foot fire tower every day to keep a lady feeling young.

Mrs. Emily Thomas, 65, of Nealy Ridge, does just that. A grandmother, she has "manned" a fire tower in this remote southwest Virginia section for the past 10 years and loves it.

Nowadays, she climbs the tower on steps, installed a few years ago. Before that, she climbed a ladder.

It's "much more ladylike," she says. "I've never had any trouble."

Mrs. Thomas sees no reason why other women shouldn't take up manning firetowers.

"They just have to put their minds to it," she said. "And if you do that, then you can do most anything."

Helen Bosses Her Movie Star Clients

NEW YORK — Hairdresser Helen Young of Hollywood, who's been curling the hair of TV and movie stars says she loves her clients.

She should—Lana Turner took her to Europe for free and Donna Reed gives her vacations in New York.

But the chief reason Helen likes being hairdresser to the stars is that "they take my advice."

"Most women tell their hairdressers what they want," she explains. "But actresses want to look good so when you tell a star what to do with her hair, she obeys."

She's a Hunter With Honors!

SOUTHERN PINES, N.C.— Mrs. George Candler of Sarasota, Fla., now holds her own with her hunt-happy husband and father.

As the only coed in a class of 300 men, she has passed the game hunting course at North Carolina State College with honors—and a full bag of game.

Mrs. Candler got tired of being a hunt-widow and decided—"If you can't lick 'em, join 'em."

Mrs. Candler also joins her husband in the State College sport fishing course each year. When he bought a plane, she took up flying, too.

"That's the trouble with my husband and his hobbies," she says. "He talks me into taking up these sports, and then I find myself having a wonderful time."

'My Life's Never Been Boring'

NEW YORK — Irene Castle, the glamorous dancer who started the bobbed hair craze 40 years ago, had a fine time writing her autobiography, Castles in the Air. And she's quite willing to admit that she is 65 years old.

"Looking back was more pleasant than painful," says Irene, now the wife of advertising man George Enzinger. "Whatever you can say about my life, it has never been boring.

"I don't see why people are so funny about their age. Experience is nothing to be ashamed of."

Teen Club Names First Officers

The Hialeah Junior Debs, a club for Hialeah Senior High School girls sponsored by the Hialeah Junior Woman's Club, has installed its first slate of officers.

Miss Karen Sjogren is president of the club and Mrs. Richard Walsh, youth conservation chairman of the woman's club, is the sponsor. First meeting of the Junior Debs will be Feb. 12 in the Hialeah Woman's Club.

She'll Run Fabrics Shop Just For Fun

By GWEN HARRISON
Herald Columnist

If Palm Beach doesn't see much of Mrs. Briggs Cunningham this season there's a reason . . . Midas only knows she doesn't need another dollar, but she's just opened a fabrics shop, upholstery and dress materials, in Southport, Conn . . . it's opposite the swank Pequot Yacht Club, of which she and her husband are members (among a dozen or so other swank clubs) and it's called the Ivy Annex . . . asked why the shop she says, "Something to do" . . . her daughter Lucie (Mrs. Stewart) McKinley who lives in nearby Greenfield Hill, Conn., for a couple of years has been running a maternity shop in the fashionable Westport . . .

Frequent Racquet Club visitor, young Greek millionaire tennis champion Peter Theodoracopulos is reported engaged to 22-year-old Princess Elizabeth of Yugoslavia . . . presently he's doing the skiing bit around Switzerland but plans to return, accompanied by her, to the United States in March . . .

* * *

Northern newspaper men are discovering something pleasant . . . that opera diva Maria Callas, who generally wears as heavy make-up off-stage as on, really is a young, slim and pretty woman when she's "herself" . . . she recently attended an elegant New York ball wearing natural-style make-up and a short evening dress of apricot colored silk with a matching stole, and she was considered one of the most beautiful women there . . . of course at first she wasn't recognized . . .

One-man "readings" on Broadway usually are reserved for Shakespeare, Shaw or Dickens, but now Tennessee Williams also is to be so immortalized . . . the young producer Jerry Leider has secured the rights for one-man dramatic readings of Williams' plays, prose and poems . . . he's planning the show for this fall on Broadway . .

Completely uprooting herself, as she phrases it, and moving to Nassau is Lee Lewis, 951 SW Sixth St. . . . she leaves Saturday but will be a busy woman between now and then . . . has to store her furniture, after having lived in one place ten years, and sell her car . . . Lee, a career woman, is joining the advertising department of Outboard Marine International in Nassau . . . that's Evinrude-Johnson to us here on the mainland . . .

A year ago you couldn't give away an "iron hat" . . . but now, according to the self-made Philadelphia millionaire, Bernard Salesky, principal owner of the Hat Corporation of America, fashion-conscious men across the country are buying derbies, or bowlers, at the rate of 3,000 a week . . . he predicts a real return for them before this year is out . . .

Two Men Come A-Wooing

Miss Astor has been dating Kenneth Hawks, a young movie producer and director and was now away from Hollywood on location.

By MARY ASTOR

One In a Series

On Friday evening Kenneth appeared loaded down like Santa Claus, with flowers and candy and a portable phonograph and records. It required no very great perception to see that had come a-wooing! And I was worried.

That night, during the waits between scenes, we sat in my tent dressing room wrapped in blankets and played the little phonograph.

He had chosen the records well, for the right mood and atmosphere — records like "In a little Spanish Town" and "My Heart Stood Still." But as we listened to the music and talked, I tried desperately to forestall the question that I knew was coming.

I admired Kenneth; I knew that he was thoroughly decent and honest, and I could not have him loving me under an illusion that I was something that I was not.

I didn't know how to go about telling him. But I knew I had to say it so he could change his mind before he committed himself. Finally I just told him. I told him of the long, desperate affair with Jack.

He was shocked, there was no doubt about it. He had been so completely unprepared for it. In his eyes I was sweet and virginal; no doubts or suspicions of me had ever entered his mind.

But he told me he loved me for being honest with him, and we said no more about it during the rest of the night. We sat there listening to the records between scenes until he left at about two-thirty in the morning (we worked until three).

Mary Astor and Kenneth Hawks
. . . on their wedding day, Feb. 24, 1928

Over the weekend I heard nothing from him. But on Tuesday he phoned me; he had checked with the studio and found we were finishing, and he said he would be down to drive me home.

On the way back we stopped in Santa Ana for dinner. We sat down at the table, and Kenneth didn't say much for a few minutes. I held my breath. I knew it was coming, and I thought I knew what it would be.

"Nothing that's happened can make any difference," he said. "Please, will you marry me?"

And then I found that I couldn't answer him. In the light of my too casual romances of the past months how could I trust myself?

* * *

After months of indecision, she decided to marry Kenneth Hawks. The ceremony took place in February.

We left on the Sante Fe at six o'clock. We sat in our drawing room and lived through the day all over again, and laughed at all the things that had happened. And everything was just the same, except that we were married. We couldn't quite believe it; we had been engaged for 13 months.

But later I lay in my berth in my beautiful satin and lace bridal nightgown and stared out at the blackness, watching the points of light of distant houses and hearing the descending scale of minor tones from the crossroad signals, and wondered. Because Ken had simply kissed me good night very tenderly and gone to bed in the upper berth. Well, I thought, we were tired. A bit tearfully I went to sleep.

Our honeymoon was a whirlwind of laughter and activity. But for me it was sheer frustration; every night Ken had simply kissed me affectionately and gone quietly to bed.

It was somehow not a subject Ken and I could discuss freely. He possessed a kind of natural delicacy that seemed inviolable. In our own relationship we were happily comfortable and completely intimate, but I clearly sensed the existence of an intangible line that I could not, and did not want to, cross over.

I think now that it would have been much better if we had brought the entire matter out into the open and I could have explained to him the tension and repression I was suffering. It would have prevent a good deal of future unhappiness.

My marital relations with Ken were, in effect, non-existent; their infrequent occurrences were brief and unsatisfactory.

I understood when his headaches made him feel too sick even to talk, but I could not understand when he was well and just fell asleep while I lay awake with my face buried unhappily in the pillow.

* * *

MY FRUSTRATIONS found a partial outlet in the racy conversations and anecdotes on the set; this I accepted without concern, but when I found myself attracted to Russell Bradbury, one of the Fox executives, I felt the beginning of alarm.

Mr. Bradbury was quite willing to recognize and respond to my obvious interest; he regarded Ken as a dull sort of man, too preoccupied with work and golf to have any talent or inclination for romance, even with his wife. He began a pursuit, which I resisted with all my very small might.

The thought of infidelity to Ken appalled me; I could not believe that I was so abandoned that I could deceive a man I loved and respected.

And so I started lying to my diary; I knew that Ken would never look at any private paper or document of mine, but I had memories of Mother leafing through the papers in the drawers of my desk.

Even so, I was tormented by the guilt of treachery and deception. I told myself that I felt better physically for my deceit, that I was more relaxed, and freed from the intolerable frustrations of physical craving. I reminded myself that this affair was being conducted in the very upper brackets of "sophistication," that it was all very "high-level" indeed.

But ultimately I had to face realization that I was pregnant and that an abortion is an abortion.

I gave Ken the carefully prepared double talk that I hoped would answer his "But how could you be pregnant?" Since we had agreed that it was "too soon to have children" and (Seizing on the words I had heard so often at home) "my career should come first," I determined to undergo a curettage.

This too was accomplished according to all the canons of "good taste"; I went to a properly exclusive establishment that committed such crimes under the fiction of "therapeutic treatment."

How To Hit the Nail On Head--Not Finger

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

READERS' EXCHANGE

Ouch. It hurts just thinking about it. Bet you do it, too.

Whenever you start to drive a tack into the wood, it sometimes seems suddenly to become human and turn to one side. Result? A dented finger. Well, they ought to make those tack heads bigger, anyway — about 8 inches or so.

But here's a tip that will help.

Push the tack through the end of a soda straw. It will hold it firmly upright. Then when the tack has been started, just pull the straw free.

Or else, ask your husband to do the tacking.

What Removes That Fungus?

Mrs. H. F. of Coral Gables is the outdoor type. Lots of fresh air, wide open spaces and all that sort of thing. And lots of fungus.

Oh, not on HER, you understand. But her outdoor furniture has fungus. And she wants no part of it.

"Please tell me what will remove mildew or fungus from outdoor concrete furniture," she writes.

Judging from people who have telephoned about this problem, this is a common one in this area — "the home of outdoor living," as a glib ad man once said. For the concrete tables with bright umbrellas and benches are common sights beside many a backyard barbecue pit.

How do you keep YOURS all - cleaned - up - for - Sunday - company?

His Briefcase Needs Cleaning

Don't look now, but there's a man in the crowd. And he's a coward, too. Asked his WIFE to write Readers' Exchange about his problem, instead of facing up to the whole thing himself.

Shame, shame.

But to the problem. He'd like to know what will remove dirt and grime from his leather briefcase.

"He's an insurance man and carries the case every day, so it gets pretty dirty-looking," writes his wife. "And it's much too expensive to buy a new brief case every few months. What can we do to clean it? It's genuine leather."

Any genuine answers?

Disreputable looking tennis shoes may be great for eccentric millionaires (including crooners), but they're rather corny for nice people. Toss your canvas, rubber-soled sneakers in with the washing machine load, and you'll be amazed at how fine they'll look.

Bulkhead Plan In Surfside Hit

Surfside's plan to bulkhead all waterfront lots on Indian Creek, Point Lake and Biscayne Bay, and assess the cost against individual lot owners, was termed "unconstitutional" in a property owner's suit filed Monday in circuit court.

Mr. and Mrs. William Segal, owners of two Normandy Beach lots fronting on Indian Creek, cited a letter from Surfside Town Manager F. M. Bowen Jr., stating that if they didn't bulkhead their lots by Jan. 15, 1959, the town would do it and send them the bill.

Panelists Air Injury Suit Views

Lawyers and doctors can clean their own houses of occasional abuses of medical assignment contracts in personal injury lawsuits, four panelists agreed Monday before the Dade County Bar Association.

The panelists — two of them both physicians and lawyers — agreed that an unethical physician might "color" his testimony when his fee depends on a verdict for his patient. But — they also agreed — these cases are the exception and not the rule, and new laws are not required for the clean-up.

Leading off the discussion was Dr. Franklin J. Evans, a doctor-lawyer and president elect of the Dade County Medical Association, professor at the University of Miami medical school and medical-legal adviser to the state attorney's office.

Others were Dr. Larry Hastings, doctor-attorney, and attorneys Edwin H. Underwood Jr. and Edward Boardman, school board attorney and moderator.

Underwood contributed what was regarded by the Columbus Hotel audience as a new thought on the program. He suggested that when doctors get such a contract, they, in turn, should sign a statement that their guaranteed "reasonable fee" would actually be reasonable.

"The doctor should be willing to set a fee that would be completely comparable with a fee in a case where no litigation is involved," he said. "If he does not an attorney can bring that fact before the jury in his cross questioning."

Dr. Evans said the problem is one that has "swept up a lot of newspaper publicity." He said that in injury suits the attorney's fee and the hospital fee are now protected by law, and that a contract covering the doctor's fee is "neither unethical, illegal nor immoral."

Dr. - Attorney Hastings agreed. In summing up the discussion Attorney Boardman said: "If there is work to be done on this problem we can do it within our own associations."

Death Held Accidental

Metro police ruled Monday the fatal shooting of a 42-year-old migrant farm laborer, Amado Riviera, at the Iori farm in Redlands Sunday was accidental.

Riviera was talking with another worker, Ernesto Bernier, 24, when a third laborer, Joseph Medrano, 45, joined them to display a new pistol, police said.

Medrano fired the gun twice into the air, then removed the clip and handed it to Bernier. Bernier, according to officers, thought the gun was unloaded, aimed it at Riviera and fired.

One bullet was in the chamber. Riviera died almost instantly.

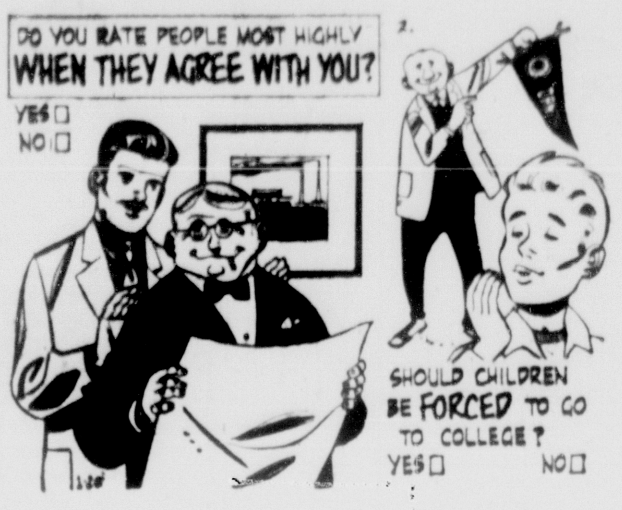
EXPLORE YOUR MIND

Judge on Merits



DO YOU RATE PEOPLE MOST HIGHLY WHEN THEY AGREE WITH YOU?
YES ☐
NO ☐
2.
SHOULD CHILDREN BE FORCED TO GO TO COLLEGE?
YES ☐
NO ☐

By S. M. DUVALL and EVELAN M. DUVALL, Ph.Ds

YES. YOU OUGHT to judge people on the basis of their merits. But you rarely do. Careful research studies show that even experienced managers tend to rate highest those supervisors who agree with them. This basis isn't good for the company, or for morale, but it is certainly human nature. Really great men can see and utilize the abilities even of men they don't like.

2. If your child lacks the aptitude for it, and if you merely want to satisfy your own pride, no. Your child should lead his life, not yours. But if he is really able, certainly you should do everything to encourage him to go. Perhaps if you could get him to take a year or so in a public junior college, his interests might be aroused. Certainly you have the right to urge him to try it before he turns it down.

We are offering a "get acquainted" course in life insurance sales work. It requires 4 hours of class attendance each week during the evening for 8 weeks. At the conclusion of the sessions those interested may be invited to join our organization under an attractive salary and bonus arrangement. Von Braun: Reds Can Hit Mars

May Land On Moon, He Says

By JOHN B. McDERMOTT
Herald Staff Writer

Russia could shoot a rocket to Mars "right now," and may make a landing on the moon this year, Wernher Von Braun, missile expert, said Monday.

VON BRAUN

He warned that the U.S. had better match the Russians — and quick.

"I don't want my children and yours to pay the price of our failure," he told the national convention of the General Contractors Association at the Americana Hotel.

Unless America steps up its rocket program, he said, "We may, in the not-too-distant future, be surrounded by several planets flying the hammer and sickle flag."

He said he is "convinced" the Soviets will be able to make a landing on the moon this year.

"I doubt if we could do that," the rocket expert said.

Von Braun said that while none of the announced Russian rocket projects are patently hostile, "many of them could serve immediate military purposes."

He gave as examples:

RECONNAISSANCE enabling the Reds to fire missiles to any spot on earth from outer space.

INTERCEPTION of space vehicles launched by other nations.

CONTROL of weather.

Von Braun warned against discounting Russian ability.

"We should recognize that in technical fields, Russian performance has generally lived up to the claims made for it," he said.

As for expense, he cited the earth satellite Explorer I which has traveled 130 million miles since it went into orbit last Jan. 31 from Cape Canaveral.

He said it is cheaper than transportation in a family car.

"My present guess is that Explorer will do better than 500 miles to a gallon, or that the cost per mile will be reduced to something like one-tenth of a cent," he declared.

Got Them Jobs

B'nai B'rith To Cite 9 for Aiding Blind

Work in getting jobs for the blind will win recognition tonight for nine Greater Miami women.

They are members of a subcommittee of the B'nai B'rith committee on employment of the physically handicapped.

They will be honored at a meeting of the Coral Gables Women's chapter of B'nai B'rith in Hillel House, on the University of Miami campus.

The Florida Council for the Blind will present a citation to Mrs. Carolina Sachs, chairman, and letters of commendation to members of her committee.

Letters will go to Mrs. David Ellis, Mrs. Sol Rappaport, Mrs. Sam Neiberg, Mrs. Charlotte Fleigelman, Mrs. Lillian Searles, Mrs. Hewitt Weiss, Mrs. David Vender, and Mrs. Lenore Ehrens.

Top Jaycee Award Set

The Miami Junior Chamber of Commerce will make its annual Distinguished Service Award when Dade County's outstanding Jaycee is announced at a dinner meeting at the Ocean Ranch Hotel, 200 SE 12th St., at 7 tonight.

E. Farris Bryant, who has twice received the award from the Florida State Jaycees, is guest speaker. In addition, Bryant received the national award from the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1948.

Tax Classes Start Tonight

Classes to instruct perplexed taxpayers on how to complete their income tax returns begin tonight in several Dade County schools.

The free course will be covered in three weeks, with one two-hour session each week, from 7 until 9 p.m. taught by Internal Revenue Service personnel.

Classes will be offered at Southwest Senior High, Hialeah Senior High, Miami Senior High, Miami Jackson High, Northwest High, and North Miami Senior High.

RUST STAINED walls and walks can be the result of free iron particles in the well water supply system. They are disheartening to the home owner.

Well Water Rust Now No Problem

"Why continue painting a house covered with rust stains caused by a sprinkler system throwing rust laden water when you know that in a very short time your home will again be stained by rust?" asks Dave Berman, manager of Miami Water Clinic.

"Before wasting more money on this unnecessary painting," he said, "the home owner should investigate the low cost and economical Rid-O-Rust Control System.

"Quite often, rust deposits become so heavy they clog entire distribution systems and sprinkler heads. This, naturally, would prevent effective operation of a sprinkler system.

"As a result, buildings, patios, walks, and planter bins become covered with this unsightly rust discoloration.

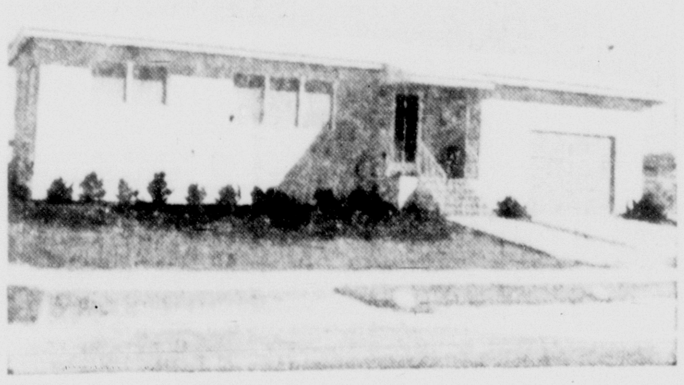
"The problem then is to treat the iron particles in the water in such a manner as to prevent them from turning to rust.

"This treatment is introduced into the water supply by means of a specially designed and patented feeder system and actually places the iron in solution. At the same time it improves the taste and purity of the water.

"The Rid-O-Rust Control System is entirely enclosed in an unbreakable fiberglass container. It can be installed easily on any well water system.

"Wherever water is used, its stability will be increased and rust and scale deposits eliminated through the use of the Rid-O-Rust treatment."

Further information about the Rid-O-Rust Control System and a free estimate may be obtained by visiting Miami Water Clinic at 965 SW Eighth St., or calling FRanklin 1-5202.



CLEAN WALLS and walks will stay rust-free where Rid-O-Rust Control System prevents the formation of stains. A special solution to remove rust stains from walls is available from Miami Water Clinic.

No Charge for These Specialties If You've Ever Tasted Any Finer

FOUR FAVORITE FOODS, famous for flavor, are these specialties of The Shrimp Place, a modest little restaurant at 2154 NW Seventh Ave., just one block south of the Seaboard station. What The Shrimp Place lacks in stylish surroundings and sterling silver service, it more than makes up in delicious food that has made it famous among gourmets from coast to coast. As a matter of fact, the food's so good that their fried chicken, fried shrimp, turtle steak and key lime pie (all pictured above) are covered by an actual guarantee: "No charge if you have ever tasted any finer." A regular restaurant menu is offered, and prices are very moderate. For example, $1 buys a complete luncheon or dinner consisting of a choice of soup or tomato juice, delectably fried shrimp, choice of two vegetables, chef's salad, home-made muffins, biscuits, rolls, key lime pie, and beverage. The Shrimp Place is closed every Monday throughout the year.

UM Gets $79,536 from Tropical; Marciano Still in Demand

LITTLE STORIES about interesting people:

—Ted Williams leaves tonight to attend a sports dinner at Manchester, Mass., where Casey Stengel will be one of the baseball celebrity guests . . . Before Ted returns to Miami, he'll drop by Boston and sign his 1959 baseball contract . . . It'll be in excess of $100,000, proving that Owner Tom Yawkey still considers Williams most valuable.

ROCKY MARCIANO

—UM Tackle Charlie Diamond has signed a contract with the Vancouver team of the Canadian pro football league . . . He'll meet up with another ex-Hurricane in John Varone of the Winnepeg eleven.

—Henry Weiner, UM football ticket manager, received a happy surprise Monday when his wife, Hermine, presented him with twin daughters . . . The twins and mother are doing well at St. Francis hospital and Henry allows, "I'm doing as well as could be expected."

CASEY STENGEL

—Despite having retired as heavyweight boxing champion, Rocky Marciano is very much in demand . . . Lou Perini, Milwaukee owner, is seeking Rocky's services as a scout and good will ambassador for the Braves. Incidentally, Rocky, now living in Fort Lauderdale, should contact Chris Dundee, who has an important message for him.

— Tropical Park's opening day netted $79,536.92 for the University of Miami's general scholarship fund. It was less than the $84,667.34 of last year because the inaugural stake was run in two divisions and President Saul Silberman decided to give $10,000 of the net receipts to the United Fund. Under the state law creating the special days, it's necessary to give only 25 per cent of the receipts to UM.

Losing Owners Praise Judge

IT WAS rather amazing at the Miami Dog Show Sunday to overhear some of the losing owners praising a judge. The official in question was C. E. Rosenberger of Jacksonville, who judged the obedience trials.

"Rosenberger made you feel at ease in the ring, and you could tell he was impartial and knew his business," one owner said to another and others agreed.

An unusual situation developed in that two dogs, Ben's Major of Sun Dance, a golden retriever owned by Bennie Lake of Hamilton, Ohio, and Prissie Coquette, miniature poodle owned by Mary Lucille and Calvert Carter of Coral Gables, tied with 200 points each.

Rosenberger said that in all of the years he's been judging, it was the first time two dogs in the same show had earned 200 points each. In a sudden death runoff, the golden retriever won.

The dog show was a huge success, despite the Dinner Key Auditorium being colder than an Eskimo's igloo with the windows open.

Atkinson Had Great Career

IN THE rush of keeping up with current events, a fellow gets behind in commenting. Under that heading comes the news last week of Ted Atkinson's retirement at his physician's suggestion.

ATKINSON

Ted had a great career as a jockey and is well qualified to continue in the sport he loves as a trainer. Last year this corner reported that was what Atkinson intended doing.

Mutual friends reported Atkinson was resentful of the item, but I never heard from him direct. Atkinson earned respect in horse racing, where it is easy to have the finger of suspicion pointed at you. Race fans will wish Ted well in his new endeavors.

Harris Should Do Well

UNDER THE delayed category comes the comment that Stanley (Bucky) Harris should make an excellent successor to Joe Cronin as general manager of the Red Sox. I'd previously expressed opinion Cronin will be an acceptable new president of the American league.

CRONIN

Harris has had a long and illustrious career as a baseball player and team manager. He is rich in experience for his front office assignment and has the faculty of being able to get along with people.

Sports writers liked Harris because he was helpful in producing copy, being frank in his remarks. He seldom sought protection behind the cloak of "off the record." If you asked him a straight question, he gave you the same kind of answer.

Stars to Give Exhibition

GOLFING ENTHUSIASTS will enjoy the nine-hole exhibition and clinic which Pro Cary Middlecoff has scheduled at Diplomat today . . . Participating will be Mickey Wright, Betsy Rawls and Patty Berg . . . Patty, who dominated the Doherty in the early days of this tournament, has scored 79 amateur and pro victories . . . Betsy is the only Phi Beta Kappa on the women's golf tournament trail and Mickey is known as the longest hitter among the lady pros . . . She once hit a tee shot, 272 yards . . . Several of the lady pros are entered in the Belvedere Par Three tournament Saturday and Sunday at West Palm Beach . . . Striving to prove they can match men with accurate irons shots will be Marlene Bauer Hagge, Jackie Pung, Fay Crocker and others.

LONG ARM of Miami Beach's Howie Fisher makes this shot by North Miami's Tom Baxley quite an exercise in weight lifting. Baxley didn't get the ball through the basket and his teammates didn't do it often enough as Beach won, 63-54. See story on Page 3D.

Non-Segregated Hotel Promised, Lakers Say

By Herald Wire Services

The "Elgin Baylor Case" flared again Monday when President Robert Short of the Minneapolis Lakers said Charleston, W. Va. promoters assured the Lakers Jan. 1 that the team's Negro and white players could stay together in a hotel there.

The promoters have said just the opposite is true.

The Laker front office quoted this telegram it said was received Jan. 1 from William S. Bolden, acting manager of the Charleston Civic Center.

"Kanawha Hotel will take care of the entire team for Jan. 16 date with excellent accommodations for Negro players. Happy New Year."

The Lakers also said they have a telegram in their records advising them Negro and white players would have to take separate lodgings. This also was signed by Bolden, they said.

In Charleston, advised of Short's position, Bolden said it was apparent that the Lakers misunderstood his second wire of Jan. 1.

He said arrangements were made with the hotel for the entire team to report there, but that the hotel would arrange for the Negro players to be taken elsewhere.

"The wire only implied they were all to go the the hotel to begin with," he said, "not that they would all be housed there. It would have been foolish to explain the segregation situation again in the second wire, since we had already done so in the original wire."

Baylor, incensed at having to stay at a separate hotel with two other Negro players, refused to play in the game. The Lakers lost to Cincinnati.

NEGOTIATIONS for a middleweight title rematch between Champion Sugar Ray Robinson and Carmen Basilio are at a standstill because of the court order dissolving the International Boxing Club, IBC President Truman Gibson says.

"Until we get the mechanics of the decree straightened out," he says, "I am not going to have any title fight negotiations with anyone."

* * *

THE HEAVYWEIGHT picture looks no better, with threat of a law suit complicating negotiations for a fight between Champion Floyd Patterson and Sweden's Ingemar Johansson.

Main issue is whether or not Swedish Promoter Edwin Ahlquist is Johansson's manager. As the fighter's manager, Ahlquist signed a contract for a U.S. match between Eddie Machen and Johansson, but claims he is an advisor, not a manager, and that he signed under duress.

VIRGINIA Polytechnic Institute disciplined six students, including Star Quarterback Billy Holsclaw, involved in a restaurant brawl Jan. 10. Holsclaw was placed on probation, but allowed to remain in school, for his part in a fracas which apparently started when one student tried to dance with another student's date.

Campy All Right After New Wreck

DOUGLASTON, N.Y. —(UPI)— Roy Campanella was involved in his second major auto accident in less than a year Tuesday but escaped "without a scratch" although two other persons in his car were hospitalized.

The former Dodger catcher, still partially paralyzed as a result of an auto accident in nearby Glen Cove last Jan. 28, was returning to his Long Island home when his chauffeur-driven car was struck by an air compressor trailer which had broken loose from a truck.

Campanella's mother-in-law, Mrs. Fanny McNelly, one of the passengers in the car, was removed to Queens General Hospital with a possible brain concussion, while another passenger, James Williamson, was taken to Glen Cove hospital with a possible fracture of the left leg.

"I was strapped in the car with a safety belt," Campanella said at his Glen Cove home. "If it wasn't for that belt I might have been a goner.

"Thank God I wasn't able to move," Campy said, "that was the only thing that saved me.

"We got the full impact of the crash," Campanella said. "After the trailer hit us, it overturned and caught fire. It was only 10 feet away from us and, brother, a lot of thoughts went through my mind as I lay strapped in our car."

IL Players Instructed Not to Sign Contracts

NEW YORK —(AP)— International League baseball players Monday were instructed by their representatives not to sign 1959 contracts nor report to spring training unless they are granted a pension plan.

The action was taken, according to Player Representatives Eddie Blake and Bob Chakales, because of the refusal of International League officials to discuss a compromise or to submit the matter for arbitration.

The two players made their announcement at a press conference held at the offices of their lawyer, J. Norman Lewis and James Durante. Lewis also represents the major league players.

Actually, the decision to "strike," a word the representatives were reluctant to use, reaffirmed a resolution adopted last Oct. 14 at a meeting of players representing all eight International League clubs.

League President Frank J. Shaughnessy, informed of the players' latest stand, declared he was in complete sympathy with the players but reiterated that his league was not financially able to grant any sort of a pension plan. He said all clubs, with the possible exception of Toronto, lost money last season.

"If they want to strike, it's up to them," he said. "But we won't change our position. If they think they can budge us by refusing to sign their contracts or report to spring training, they're wrong.

"We'll operate as usual in 1959. We'll have enough players to open the season. And if there are any malcontents, we'll just have to send them somewhere else. Those who refuse to report will be put on the restricted list."

The proposed pension plan would be patterned after the major league pension fund with the benefits scaled down to approximately $293,000 of which the players would contribute $37,000 at the rate of $1.50 a day per player.

Miami's Smith Against Strike, May 'Go Along With Rest'

By EDDIE STORIN
Herald Sports Writer

Woody Smith, the Miami Marlins most valuable player the past two seasons, said Monday he opposes "striking" for a pension plan, but admitted he'd be "forced to go along with the rest of the guys" if one is called.

SMITH

"I'm one of them," said Smith from his home in St. Louis, "and I'd certainly like to see a pension plan for all Triple A leagues. But I don't think this is the way to get it.

"A strike would really be bad for baseball. I don't know too much about the thing since we haven't received our letters (mailed Monday) yet, but I feel that some compromise can be reached," Smith continued.

"After all there are intelligent people on both sides and they ought to be able to sit down and talk things out. I'd hate to think we'd have to go as far as to strike."

Smith said the Marlin management has been "extremely good" to him. "I've always said I'd rather play in Miami than any other place outside of the big leagues," he added.

Will Smith sign his contract when he receives it?

"That depends," said Woody, "on two things — the terms and what the other fellows in the league do. I really couldn't answer that question with any finality until I read more about the situation in that letter they're sending us."

Meanwhile Joe Ryan, general manager of the Marlins, adopted a wait-and-see attitude concerning the strike threat.

"I really don't know what to expect," said Ryan. "We've always had fine relations with our players. We discussed the pension plan thoroughly with them last year and I believe they know our problems.

"We'd all like to see the players get a pension, but the question is how can it be financed?"

Ryff Rules Slim Choice To Get Garcia Tonight

Barney Ross, Left, Laces Up Frankie Ryff

. . . for tonight's 10-rounder with Robinson Garcia

By MEL DERRICK

Herald Sports Writer

Lightweights Angel (Robinson) Garcia, a classy slasher from Havana, and Frankie Ryff, a converted "slashee" from New York, flail away tonight in the 10-round opener to what should be an extended boxing show run at Miami Beach Auditorium.

The re-worked Ryff is a 7 to 8-5 favorite to whip the best non-bearded fighter in Cuba today.

GARCIA

Advance sales for the 10 p.m. main event have been good, bringing a smile and a message from Promoter Chris Dundee.

The smile: "The season is here, and we plan to have a boxing show every Tuesday — barring something unforeseen — until at least the end of February.

The message: "Seats are available."

Ryff, an outstanding fighter but previously prone to cut just by climbing into a ring, gave up the game in disgust early last year after taking a slashing while whipping Tony De Cola.

Ex - Lightweight Champion Barney Ross coaxed him out of the short "retirement," brushed up his style, and since has managed him to two victories and one loss — without a serious cut.

"We didn't change Frankie's style," says Ross. "We just improved it a little.

"He's moving a little differently, and a little faster. He's bouncing in and bouncing out, instead of fighting in close where a butt is likely to open a cut.

"He's fighting with his hands now, instead of his face."

Ryff's victims include Gale Kerwin and Aldo Mente (after Ross) and Ralph Dupas, Orlando Zulueta and Baby Vasquez (before Ross). Garcia hasn't beaten the names, but has pleased the Beach crowd in his three previous appearances here.

Cut straight from the young Kid Gavilan pattern, he's an exceptional combination puncher with very quick hands. His punches sting and slash, but very seldom knock out, despite his fifth-round KO of Andy Arel in his last fight at the Beach.

Overall, Ryff has won 28 of 34. Garcia is 26-5.

Preliminaries, starting at 8:45, pit Willie Gulatt with Macon Jackson in a six-rounder; and James Bryant with Dickie DiVeronica; Dave Mills with Perfecto Garcia; Bobby Marie with Tony Marino; and Eddie Ludlow with Jimmy Mackey in four-rounders.

It's Butts Vs. Stings Tonight

Will high-flying Bernie Butts give Hialeah's unbeaten cagers enough impetus to stomp down Miami High tonight?

Thorobred followers will find out just how good Butts and his mates are when they invade the Miami Stings' gymnasium. Tip-off time for this—the top game on tonight's local prep card—is 8:15.

Butts, averaging close to 30 points a game, has boosted Hialeah to a 7-0 record. But, Hialeah hasn't run into a balanced attack like the Stings will offer.

Pete Somerindyke, Buddy Coleman and Dave Austin are the "big" names in Miami High's lineup and all score in double figures. The Stings dropped a pair of early season decisions, but have roared back for a 7-2 mark.

Another big intra-city clash will take place at Coral Gables where the Cavs will host Miami Jackson. This one rates a tossup with both clubs showing plenty of potential in their early outings.

Other games tonight include:

Columbus at Norland, Southwest at South Dade, Edison at West Palm Beach, McArthur at Pahokee, Fort Pierce at Belle Glade, Stuart at Clewiston, Lake Worth at Vero Beach, Cocoa at DeLand, Oviedo at Titusville and Curley vs. Tech at Jackson.

Horsemen's Fete Carded Feb. 24

The Florida division of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective Association will hold its annual dinner dance Feb. 24 at the Carillon hotel, Miami Beach. There will be cocktails at 6:30, followed by dinner at 8.

Tickets will go on sale in a few days at the HBPA office, located near the Hialeah stable gate.

On Dandy Blitzen! To Hialeah Victory

By RUSS HARRIS
Herald Turf Writer

B. A. Dario's Dandy Blitzen, who flashed sizzling speed in her last outing at Tropical Park, beat some of the finest mares in the land Monday at Hialeah to notch her second straight victory.

The crowd of 17,393 fans sent Dandy Blitzen away as the near even-money choice. She got the job done . . . but not without some excitement.

Hedley Woodhouse cut out a sharp pace with the fleet Happy Princess, going the first half of the six-furlong event in :45 1-5. Walter Blum challenged with the favorite on the stretch turn and shot into a two-length lead.

But Dandy Blitzen was all out at the end, as Evan Anyon closed with a rush on Betty Linn and missed by only half a length.

Calumet Farm's A Glitter, rated second among the three-year-old fillies last year, also finished strongly to take third money.

Dandy Blitzen ran the distance in 1:10 and paid $4.20 to win.

FLORIDA-BRED Prybu turned on a good stretch run to nip L. P. Guy's Pointer by a head in the sixth race.

Prybu, a three-year-old gelding who hadn't run since trailing First Landing last October at Garden State, did the six furlongs in 1:10 2-5 to return $10.80.

His score was the second victory of the day for Jockey Bill Hartack and Trainer C. R. Parke. Hartack had tallied earlier with Hooper's Disposition in the fourth.

Standout rider of the day was Bobby Ussery, who notched three winners Monday. The Oklahoma reinsman, who came from behind like a whirlwind to gain a tie for jockey honors at Tropical, took the second with Chendzod ($8), the third with Hannibal's Girl ($10), and the eighth with At Hand ($6.50).

Chendzod completed a $41.60 daily double after Larry Adams booted in the favored Pore Jim ($7.40) in the opener.

WACO, Texas —(AP)— Baylor University Monday hired 37-year-old John Bridgers, defensive line coach of the national professional champion Baltimore Colts, as head football coach and athletic director at the Southwest Conference school.

Bridgers' appointment came almost instantly on the heels of the announcement that Dave Nelson, head coach at the University of Delaware, had turned down the job.

Moss Signs Two Aides, Seminole Grid Picture Clearing Up a Bit

By BILL McGROTHA
Herald Correspondent

TALLAHASSEE — Perry Moss Monday announced the signing of two assistant coaches as he moved rapidly toward rounding out his new football staff at Florida State.

Joining FSU were Dick Flowers, Coach of Gainesville High the last four years, and John Coatta, a Wisconsin aide since '55.

Meanwhile, FSU Assistants Hugh Adams and Frank Toomey resigned after turning down offers by Moss, and Assistant Paul Odom disclosed that he had been dismissed.

Toomey said he would join Tom Nugent at Maryland, confirming an earlier report. Nugent quit the FSU head job two weeks ago for higher pay and a longer contract at Maryland. One other FSU assistant, Lee Corso, is also going with Nugent.

Adams, like Toomey, was sought by both Nugent and Moss. Adams had reportedly been offered a $1,500 raise to stay at FSU and Nugent said he had offered Adams $8,500 to join him at Maryland.

Odom said: "I could have gone to Maryland with Nugent but chose not to go. I wanted to stay at Florida State but I have been released."

Only Bob Harbison, veteran line coach, is being retained from the staff which Moss inherited from Nugent. There is a possibility that Charlie LaPradd will remain on, however. Moss denied that LaPradd had been dismissed.

George Trogdon, a Miami assistant, was in town to confer with Moss on Saturday amid speculation he would join the Seminoles. Moss also confirmed that he had talked to Miami Aide Gene Ellenson. But Ellenson is reported not interested.

Jeff Joseph poured in 23 points and Steward Marcus scored a clutch basket as Miami Beaach nipped North Miami, 63-54, in a rugged Gold Coast Conference basketball game at Beach High Monday night.

Beach, which opened up a 31-20 halftime margin, had its lead sliced to 53-52 early in the fourth quarter. But Marcus hit a hook shot, and the Typhoons pulled away again for their sixth victory against four losses.

North Miami won the junior varsity contest, 42-34.

A TENNESSEE WHISKEY TREE
Its unusual purpose, all but forgotten today, limits the amount of Jack Daniel's we can make
Only a few whiskey makers with long memories might know what we mean by a "Tennessee Whiskey Tree." It's a hard maple growing on high ground. And when its charcoal is employed in an old-fashioned Tennessee way, it has a most unusual virtue.
It can smooth out a whiskey like nothing else in all the world.
The sippin' whiskey that results is labeled Tennessee Whiskey . . . a truly rare potable today. Just one distillery now takes the extra pains and expense to make its product this old Tennessee way. And that's our small Jack Daniel's distillery.
The ancient Tennessee process is known as Charcoal Mellowing . . . and it calls for trickling every drop of Jack Daniel's Whiskey through 10 feet of charcoal for 8 to 12 unhurried days. That's more than twice the time of all the other whiskey-making steps put together.
Because of the old, slow way we make Jack Daniel's, we may lag in meeting your dealer's calls for it. If so, we hope you'll understand and try your dealer again later.

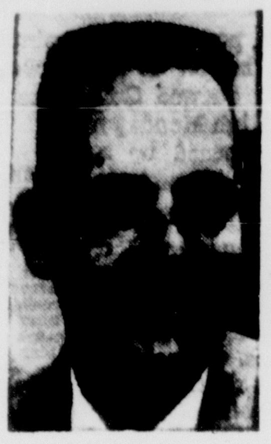
You Can Try Tarpon on a Low Budget

FISHING

. . . with Vic Dunaway

Not long ago a famous tarpon fisherman told me he could fish almost anywhere in the world for the cash he plunks down annually to chase giant tarpon in Florida. Still, he has been returning to the Keys for years with nary a thought given to shifting his scene of angling operations.



DUNAWAY

Such is the hypnotic appeal of the silvery, high-jumping tarpon.

Yet you and the guy next door can also fish for tarpon — the same fish which extracts a bushel of cash each year from the angler referred to above.

The tarpon is the one big-game prize in all the world which is steadily available to the low-budget fisherman. Besides that, he is also a ranking figure in the medium-to-small game field.

Florida tarpon run in every size, from infants of a few inches to giants scaling well over 100 pounds. Set your mind to it and you can catch (or at least hook) tarpon at little expense and little trouble. Often you'll even be able to pick out the approximate size fish that best suits your ambition and your tackle.

* * *

ADMITTEDLY, it's a pretty tough proposition to go for the hundred-pound fish without hiring boat and guide. But it can be done. You'll have to skip the intricate flats of the Florida Bay back country, as well as the hidden bays in the Ten Thousand Islands, and concentrate on the easily accessible spots which are known to harbor the big ones.

Of the handy locales, two stand out as consistent producers of trophy-sized tarpon — Miami's Government Cut, and certain portions of the Overseas Highway in the Keys.

Government Cut reaches its highest peak in the winter, and, in fact, should be just about ready for plucking. Action along the Overseas Highway starts rolling rapidly in the spring, continuing well into summer.

Leave light tackle at home when fishing the Cut, for tarpon there wage very few heroic surface battles. They have limitless deep water at their command, and they take advantage of it to sound, sulk and dare you to heave them out. Any prolonged battle on light tackle usually ends with the tarpon falling victim to one of the monstrous sharks that cruise the Cut.

Trolling can draw strikes in Government Cut, but never in the numbers that can be produced by a free-drifting live shrimp — the biggest you can find — or perhaps a small mullet or pinfish.

Skiffs can be rented on Miami Beach, quite handy to the Cut, and on many days the water is calm enough to permit small boat angling. Probably the best spot is just inside the seaward end of the south jetty.

* * *

LIGHT TACKLE is also out of place if you fish from atop Keys bridges. You might chance it, however, by taking a small boat and fishing below the same bridge.

Top-rated bridges for big tarpon are Channel 5 beyond Islamorada, and the Seven-Mile and Bahia Honda spans below Marathon. Live mullet are the best bait when you can get them. Other varieties of small baitfish rate second choice.

These bridges, as well as a great many others on the Overseas Highway are also prime locations when you're after smaller tarpon.

Try some of the bridges at night, pinpointing the fish by ear as they slurp the surface of the water.

Use a topwater plug, Mirrolure or jig and cast upstream, letting the lure sweep back towards the bridge.

Less weighty tarpon can also be found in abundance around Flamingo, Everglades City and Marco. Without wandering into the wilderness, look for tarpon in "outside" areas, particularly passes and stream mouths.

In Greater Miami, small tarpon often are found in Biscayne Bay. Baker's Haulover is a good spot. So is the Miami River Mouth, and on up the river.

All the salt-water-connected creeks and streams in the Miami area boast tarpon at one time or another.

Marjorie Seeking '2nd Eagle'

Marjorie Lindsay of Decatur, Ill., a leading contender in the 27th Doherty Women's Golf Tournament starting Wednesday at Coral Ridge, would like to repeat the eagle-three she scored in practice on the seventh hole.

During a round Sunday, Miss Lindsay holed out a 140-yard six-iron shot for a three on the 520-yard hole. In her practice round Monday, Marjorie took a bogey-six on the seventh.

Joanne Goodwin of Haverhill, Mass., a former champion, and Mary Ann Downey, defending title-holder, were among the Doherty stars practicing at Coral Ridge.

SAM SNEAD and Cary Middlecoff will match strokes in a charity golf exhibition at Bayshore Jan. 29, staged for the Variety Children's Hospital.

Snead, professional at Boca Raton, pairs with Mickey Wright and Frank Stafaci against Middlecoff, Diplomat professional Marlene Bauer Hagge and Jack Penrose in the best-ball of threesome event.

Miss Wright is the National Women's Open champion, while Miss Hagge recently won the Sanford WPGA tourney. Strafaci and Penrose are two of Miami Beach's top amateurs.

The threesomes will start their 18-hole match, probably at 1 p.m. The match has been arranged by the Metropolitan Amateur Golf Association, Milton Rashkow announced.

No 'Follow-Through' Means End of Swing

By BILLY SIXTY

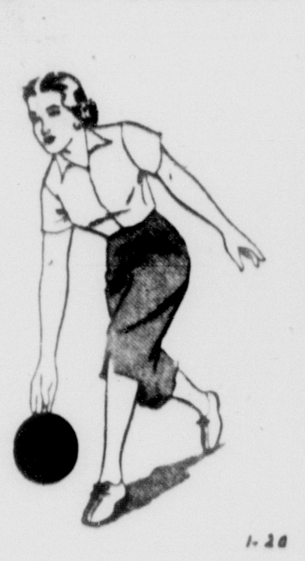
"This push-away at the start I can undertsand," says Benny Beginner. "The grooved swing with the locked wrist and the sliding finish to the foul line — this all makes sense.

"This not hurrying, and this keeping the eye on the target — that I could figure out without your telling me. But this follow-through business — that I do not savvy. Once I've done everything else and the ball has left my hand, what difference does it make what my arm does then?

The answer, of course, is that if there is no follow-through, the swing begins to "die" before the ball is released. It ends abruptly at the point of release. This completely ruins co-ordination. The ball is usually dropped at the foul line.

The smooth, full swing is impossible because motion ends instead of continuing in process through the time of ball release. The arm may be jerked upward, but it can't reach on and outward in the proper lifting motion if movement is to stop at ball release.

One of the secrets of arm lift and follow-through is finishing low enough at the foul line. Too many bowlers, and especially women, finish stiff and stilted. Get more knee action than the person has in the sketch. Bend a little more. The way to do it is with a smooth, swing arc that starts with the push-away of the ball in coordination with the first step. By finishing low, arm lift comes naturally as the delivery ends with a full and free follow-through.



Clem Packs Top Weight

Mrs. Adele L. Rand's Clem, Round Table's nemesis in three big stakes the past season, is topweighted at 125 pounds on the list announced late Monday for Hialeah's $25,000 Royal Palm Handicap, feature of next Saturday's program.

Handicapper Charles J. McLennan bracketed Claiborne Farm's Nadir, winner of the 1958 American Derby and Select Handicap, and Anselmo Alvarado's South American veteran, Petare, next in line at 120 pounds.

UM Cagers Hold Firm Lead In State Conference Race

The University of Miami is safely perched in first place in the Florida Intercollegiate Conference basketball race, at least until it makes a four-game road trip against conference foes the first week in February.

On that trip, Miami must play all of its league rivals except Jacksonville. Florida Southern and Stetson, each a game and a half behind Miami at present, can cut the gap to a game this week. Florida Southern entertains last place Rollins Tuesday while Stetson entertains fifth place Tampa Saturday.

In the other league action this week, Tampa is at Rollins Thursday.

Miami's Hurricanes saw their season record slide to 8-6 as they dropped non-league games to Florida and Florida State and just edged Jacksonville by two points in a league game last week.

Coach Bruce Hale's club just couldn't handle three rugged foes on a three-night road trip and the Hurricane coach will attempt to avoid that type of suicide schedule in the future. Last year Miami dropped all three games on a similar trip.

Hale will attempt to rally his shaken forces this week. A break in the schedule will give him a full week's practice before action is resumed.

The Hurricanes play their next game Monday against Kentucky Wesleyan in the Miami Beach Auditorium. Wesleyan has an All-America candidate in its lineup in Kelly Coleman, who averaged 26 points a game last year as a freshman and is hitting better than 30 this year.

On January 31, Miami faces Western Kentucky in the Miami Beach Auditorium.

The league standings:

	W	L	Pts	OP
Miami	4	0	388	300
Stetson	2	1	210	203
Fla. Southern	2	1	246	250
Jacksonville	2	3	374	362

Paret Whips Vic Zalazar

NEW YORK —(AP)— Fast-punching Benny (Kid) Paret of Cuba Monday night made it two straight over Victor (Bullet) Zalazar by soundly whipping the lean Argentine in a 10-round slugfest at St. Nicholas Arena. Paret weighed 155, Zalazar 158½.

A month ago Paret, a nifty, 21-year-old middleweight prospect, gained a split decision over Zalazar in the same arena. It was the first pro defeat for Zalazar who had won all 15 of his previous fights by knockouts.

Referee Teddy Martin and Judge Bill Forst each had Paret ahead by 5-4-1 scores. Judge Leo Birnbaum made it seven rounds to three in favor of Paret. The AP card had Paret ahead, 6-3-1.

Bowling Ace Weber Wins Two

Nationally known bowler Dick Weber defeated two opponents at Bowling Palace Monday, nosing out Bill Barrett, 642-633, and whipping Tony Macina, 658-535.

Weber also gave bowling demonstrations and instructions.

Top-seeded Jack Frost of Monterey, Calif., drew a bye in the opening round while second-seeded Bert Brown of Los Angeles is scheduled to play his first round match at 1 p.m. today against Luc Vespiegelaere of Belgium.

Gold Coast Star Shoots For a Tie

Secret Session, top star of the Gold Coast Kennel, will be out to gain a tie in the victory race tonight at Flagler.

The Session, whose last-out victory was his eighth of the meet, lost the lead on Saturday to Jot's Jiggs, who scored his ninth by equalling the 3-16th mile trakc record of 18.8 seconds in the first round of the rich Kennel Medley.

Tonight, Secret Session will compete in the ninth, one of two Grade-A 5-16th mile features on the 11-race card.

He'll be facing a pair of five-time winners in Jordan's Rube Blaze, and Mountain View's Frontier Scout, who'll be shooting for his third straight. Mystery Guide, Result Player, Rebel's Joy, Coackfield Hero, and Streamline Trail, all with three or more wins, are also entered.

The co-featured 10th will find Ray Randle's six-time winner, V. O., running against Tip Today, winner of five, and Loose Coupon and Chic Matron, boasting four each.

Sedgman Wins

BRISBANE, Australia — (AP) — Frank Sedgman and Ken Rosewall Monday night won opening matches in a pro tennis tournament sponsored by American Promoter Jack Kramer. Sedgman defeated Mervyn Rose, 6-4, 6-4, and Rosewall beat Rex Hartwig, 6-2, 6-3. All four are Australians.

'Pacific' Tries Again Tonight

Canadian Pacific, still seeking his first Grade A victory of the season, will make another attempt in tonight's eighth race over the O. P. Smith Course at Miami Beach Kennel Club.

The black and white Fleet Wing kennel star, with one B victory, made his strongest bid in Grade A competition in his last start, finishing third to Parnell Mary and Simply True.

Others entered in the eighth race are Irish Mix, Go Marching In, Rough Cover, Trans China, Blue Spango, Pino Pepe and Love Melody.

Colebrook comes back to Grade A action in the ninth race after winning his latest Grade B effort. Fable Greenbacks and Silver Zip are also moving up in the same race.

Simply True, How New, Forest Reserve, All Real, and Quaker State round out the field.

Mar Dilly Races After Win No. 4

W. L. Kirkpatrick's Mar Dilly goes after victory No. 4 at Hollywood Kennel Club tonight.

Only once since he started his young racing career this season at the Broward oval has Mar Dilly met defeat and that loss came after a spill.

Tonight, Mar Dilly races against Grade A greyhounds for the first time and meets some of the toughest greyhounds on the track, including two speedsters — LaVeon and Inaugural Stake Champion Geemarie.

Easy Guest, which is now being groomed for the coming $10,000 Hollywood Silver Anniversary Stake, runs in the Grade A eighth race. He will run the Hollywood course and is expected to be the favorite.

b—Calumet Farm entry.

HOMEWARD ANGEL only needs a repeat of last race; HIDDEN VIRTUE is a good Vanderbilt maiden; SKITTLES is a Calumeter with good works to recommend; LEDLIE is a stablemate to Skittles who must be given a chance.

LIFE WITH LARRY THOMPSON

Arra-Wanna Tell You!

IT WILL BE a big relief to everyone to know that we have straightened out this Lackawanna - Arra - Wanna situation. As we suspected, Lackawanna is a railroad and Arra-Wanna is a song, although a song also was written about the railroad.

As usual, when we presented our problem to the Old Songs and Poems Musical and Literary Society, the members rallied promptly to give us the answers. There's nothing about old songs and poems (and even old railroads) that our members don't know.

A very kind fellow is Virgie Y. Moore, 358 NE 101st St., Miami Shores, who says: "The reason you never heard of Arra-Wanna is that you are too young." This makes me feel good. I didn't know I was too young for anything, although I must admit I'm too old for quite a few things. Mr. Moore adds: "When I was a student at the University of Kentucky the song was so popular that one of the boys being educated then wrote a parody on it." The parody I will not repeat.

Mrs. Merrill Cliotelly, 8001 SW 100th St., fills us in on Arra-Wanna in this manner:

"The music was staccato and sprightly, running along for several words on one note, like the steady rapid beat of a drum."

And Herb Hauer, 164 NE 82nd St., remembers the song in this way: "When I was a kid in Wisconsin, about 1911, we had an old Edison talking machine with horn and cylindrical records. One of them was Arra-Wanna, and we must have played it hundreds of times. Wish we had the machine now as it would be a collector's item."

Mrs. Cliotelly and H. J. Reamore, 15135 S. Biscayne River Dr., sent in the words. It's about an Irish boy courting an Indian girl.

The chorus went like this:

Arra-Wanna, on my honor,
  I'll take care of you.
I'll be kind and true,
  We can bill and coo
In a wigwam made of shamrock green
  We'll make those redmen smile
When you're Mrs. Barney,
  Heap much Blarney
From Killarney Isle.

The song doesn't say whether Princess Arra-Wanna became Mrs. Barney, but under that kind of sweet talk she probably did.

She was about to give in, in the last verse. I feel sorry for them, though, if they really tried to live in a wigwam made of shamrocks, especially if there was much rain.

Now about the railroad. Listen to Mrs. William H. Ratterman, 913 Roderigo Ave., Coral Gables:

"Yes, Lackawanna is part of the name of a railroad, the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, running between Buffalo and New York City. I have traveled on it many times. Lackawanna also is the name of a river running through Scranton, Pa. It is usually a dry bed."

And Ed Russell, 26920 SW 145th Ave., Naranja, tells us that a song was written about this railroad, part of which went:

"Where do you worka-John?"
  "On the Delaware Lackawan."
"What do you do-a John?"
  "I poosh, I poosh, I poosh."
"What do you pusha-John?"
  "I poosh a truck."
"Where do you push-a truck?"
  "On the Delaware Lackawan, Awan, Awan,.
"On the Delaware Lackawan."

★ ★ ★

AND THAT ABOUT clears up the Indian maiden, the Irishman, the railroad, and the truck-pusher.

I suspect that Mrs. Rose Greck, 9057 Garland Ave., Surfside, was pulling my leg when she suggests that the Arra-Wanna song went this way:

Arra-Wanna go home,
  'Arra-Wanna go home,
I'm in love with a beautiful girl.

The words to that, when written out, were "I don't want to go home," but if Mrs. Greck wants to make a pun, she did better than Bennett Cerf often does. He gets paid for doing it, too.

★ ★ ★

IF WE HADN'T just completed this educational research, I'd suspect Michael Whitney, Nassau, of writing this with tongue in cheek: "In your column you can learn some very important facts unknown to the common people."

I'd never thought of it that way before. In fact, some of the important facts disclosed in this column are unknown to the smart people, too. They are about the most unknown facts ever heard of.

Now We Have The Answer

BERLIN—(UPI)—East German University students were told the real reason the Soviet moonik penetrated farther into space than American moon rockets.

"The philosophy of the working class, dialectic materialism, formed an important part of the fuel of the sputniks of the moon rocket," Mathematician Dr. Klaus Sweiling wrote in a Communist weekly newspaper.

Jack Kofoed Says

Co-Existence Must; There Is No Escape

THERE IS ONE very simple point in the strained relations between the United States and Russia. Neither nation can move off this restless ball of mud, and make a new beginning on another planet. Either we find a way of co-existence, or one side destroys the other. That's it. There is no other way.

Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mokoyan is visiting the United States. In some cities mobs acted toward him as mobs did against Vice President Richard Nixon in South America. Mobs are devoid of intelligence, brutish, a sheep following rabble.

Mikoyan is a man of great personal charm. If ever agreements are to be reached between the United States and the Soviets, they must be made through such men as he.

It is obvious that we cannot live on the brink of global war forever without falling into the abyss.

No good American is a Communist. No good American looks with anything but horror on what has happened in Hungary, and elsewhere under the Russian fist.

But, we can't get away from the fact that there must be co-existence, unless we turn to the mass murder of hydrogen bombs.

The deputy premier may be a small means toward that end. Let's find out . . . and we can't find out if yelling, egg throwing mobs are permitted to have their way.

* * *

SOME TIME ago I wrote of frightful criminal conditions in my old home town of Philadelphia, much of which seems directly traceable to integration, and problems growing out of it. The percentage of violent crimes of which Negroes have been convicted is staggering.

An intelligent, reasoning lady raises an issue on this point. Though unable to refute statistics, she says the rate of crime is always greater in slums, and cites Villon's Paris and Hogarth's London to prove her point.

This is undeniable. When I lived in Philadelphia years ago there were slums, too, and a tough Tenderloin section. We had crime, as every city has, but nothing in proportion to what is rampant now. Much of the murders and the muggings stem out of racial antagonism.

The lady explains this by saying people react violently to protect their rights when exploited.

Decent colored people of Philadelphia are just as disturbed as the whites about what is happening there. There never was a time in the old days that citizens felt it necessary to go armed in the streets to protect themselves against assault.

Even authorities, who tried to speed the process of integration by building low rent housing projects in upper middle class neighborhoods, are deeply concerned.

My correspondent finishes by saying: "There is no reason for hunger and hopelessness for any American. Discrimination has not been practiced only against the Negro, but against many whites, too."

Trying to force a great sociological change overnight has brought violence and bitterness. This has been more evident in large industrial cities of the North than in the South. Philadelphia is probably the worst symbol of that fact.

* * *

THOUGH ALMOST everybody gets involved in it sooner or later, marriage remains a major problem. The increased divorce rate indicates that a vast number of people should give serious thought to what makes a marriage tick, or crack.

The Adult Evening Division of Miami High School has a course called "Marriage Is for Two," conducted by Laura H. Ross Monday nights from 7:30 to 10.

Most of those attending are women, but it would be a sound idea for men, who aren't very happy in wedlock, to also take a gander. Marriage is a two way street, though some people don't look at it in that light.

Wine Bottle, Thief Escape

A suspected criminal eluded Miami police after they had him in custody at the station Sun- in custody at the station, but officers weren't too worried.

Police said George Louis Peterson, 50, slipped away from a detention room carrying the item he was arrested for stealing — a bottle of cheap wine.

Labor With Vim

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Tuesday, January 20, 1959

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Being with intelligent and dynamic friends today will prove mutually beneficial. Pick up the data that you will need in the early future. P.M. go about to social functions.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Your inspirations how to increase income are excellent, but it requires that you put them in operation without further delay. Get busy immediately on them!

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Alertness will pay big dividends now. Dress in high fashion and good taste, then meet those opportunities all about you. Take a little trip, if necessary.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) There are many worthwhile, creative thoughts buzzing around in your head, but better consult with authorities, or those who have the "know-how" and the wherewithal before putting them in operation.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Any information you require can easily be gleaned from conversation with others and direct questioning. Later, be sure to see high-placed persons in civic life and get any assistance you need.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Consult with a big executive today and find out how you can make real strides in your career. Increase present income. Don't neglect any civic interests either.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Should you want to remain steadfast to that dull routine today you miss the bus on a very fine opportunity as well as alienate a staunch friend. Be smart and progressive. FOR YOUR COPY of Carroll Righter's individual 16-page Forecast for February send your birth date and 50c in coin (no stamps) to Carroll Righter Forecast, Miami Herald, Box 1895, Grand Central Sta., N.Y. 17, N.Y.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) It would be wise today to confer with your banker or accountant and see what your relative worth is, how you are actually progressing, and get ideas how to start an upswing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Take time to have long talks with associates, and competitors also, so that you have a clear picture of conditions today. Many new ideas will be voiced and there will be a real meeting of minds.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) A day for laboring with vim and enthusiasm, for much can be accomplished and the power of the planets is with you. Both mind and hands are swift, so be sure to bring your capabilities to attention of higher ups.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Up early and dash off any necessary work. The rest of the day is then ideal for fun and pursuing those interests that most appeal to you. Take in a revitalizing sport.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Home problems should be the first duty on the agenda today. Use all free time bringing harmony higher with ties, putting real estate in good order, condition.

Community Adds Blood

North Miami Beach, the only municipality that provides its residents with a free blood bank, collected 203 pints of the life fluid in a mass drive at the NMB American Legion Hall.

According to Blood Bank President Newton Green and Drive Chairman Joe Mintzer, the blood is worth more than $5,000. It is free to all North Miami Beach residents.

Your Budget Can't Take Ike's 'Balancing'

By DON OBERDORFER
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower administration huffed and puffed, but the cussed thing still wouldn't balance.

So the budget makers resorted to some tricks, the kind a wife might use to concoct a sample family budget to impress her husband.

Here's how they "balanced" it:

1—They had promised the International Monetary Fund a new subscription of $1,370,000,000. This would have thrown the new budget completely out of whack.

So the President in his budget message Monday asked Congress to give him the money right now, in a fiscal year that is already badly in the red.

This is like rushing out to buy that new TV set before the month is over, so it won't show up on the next month's budget.

Secretary of the Treasury Robert Anderson says the administration is eager to get the money in the old budget year because it promised to "expedite" this thing. The money will be used by the international fund to help stabilize soft currencies.

* * *

2—The administration is selling off 620 million dollars in certain government assets.

"This is like an individual selling off 100 shares of stock to take care of an expensive operation on his wife," explains Budget Bureau Director Maurice Stans.

In the old fiscal year the government sold only 100 million of these assets in this way, so it is really financing 520 million of expenditures by selling the assets.

Don't worry — the government isn't planning to sell the White House or the Washington Monument to balance the new budget.

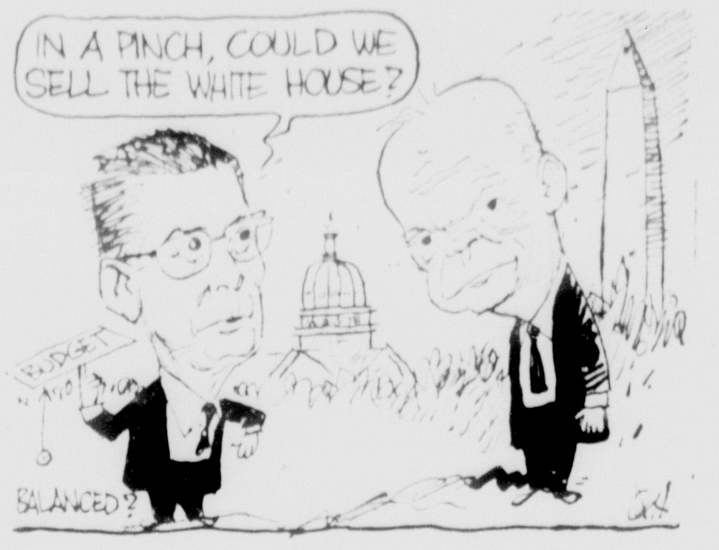
The assets to be sold are loans in the portfolio of the Export-Import Bank, mortgages held by the Federal National Mortgage Association and bonds held under the college housing program.

* * *

3—The budget-makers made a deep cut in the allowance for contingencies, which is like slashing your budget allowance for pin money.

Last year the budget men included 300 million dollars as a general contingency allowance, plus a 500 million contingency allowance for defense. In the new budget, the contingency allowance is only 100 million.

If you charge the monetary fund money to the new fiscal year instead of the old, and hold the sales of assets and the contingency allowance to the old year's level, the Eisenhower 1960 budget would be $2,490,000,000 in the red.



IN A PINCH, COULD WE SELL THE WHITE HOUSE?

Travelers to Suffer Jolt in Pocketbook

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The traveling American is in for a jolt in the pocketbook if tax proposals submitted Monday by President Eisenhower are approved by Congress.

The president asked for:

A 50 per cent boost (from 3 to 4¼ cents a gallon) in federal tax on auto gasoline.

A 50 per cent boost (from 3 to 4¼ cents a gallon) in the tax on aviation gas.

A new 4¼ cents a gallon tax on jet fuel.

And the President made it clear he feels the individual air traveler should pick up the tab for the aviation fuel levies.

"I believe it fair and sound that such taxes be reflected in the rates of transportation paid by the passengers and shippers," Eisenhower said in his budget message.

In effect, this is an "invitation" to the Civil Aeronautics Board to raise airline fares so that the taxes (if approved by Congress) will be passed on to the traveler.

How much of a fare increase this would mean (if the CAB went along with the President) could not be determined immediately.

Some informed sources guessed it would take a five to six per cent fare boost to compensate for the taxes recommended by the President.

HECTOR

Eisenhower's thinking on passing on the taxes runs directly contrary to suggestions offered by CAB Chairman James R. Durfee and Member Louis J. Hector of Miami.

They have suggested that the way to fill seats on the huge jet airliners is to attract new passengers by lowering fares.

There has been a great debate in aviation circles over the problem of a large increase in seating capacity coming in with the use of jet aircraft.

The additional levies would come on top of the 10 per cent tax on domestic travel which has been in effect since during World War II.

It costs travelers an extra 10 cents for every $1 worth of airplane, railroad or bus ticket he buys.

And Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson made it clear in a briefing on the budget that the administration would strenuously oppose any move to repeal the travel tax this year.

Ike Stresses Recovery In All-Time High Budget

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Eisenhower Monday submitted to an already questioning Congress a massive, precariously balanced budget totaling 77 billion dollars.

Heavy on defense allocations in an era of continuing Communist threats, this is the administration's proposed spending chart for the 1960 fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Never in peacetime has so big a budget been laid before the legislators at the opening of a new session. A year ago, Eisenhower proposed what was then a record peacetime budget just short of 74 billions.

But the recession sent government income down and spending up. So the spending figure for the present fiscal year ending June 30 now is estimated at nearly 81 billions.

And the half billion dollar surplus anticipated a year ago has turned into a deficit of almost 13 billions for the 1959 fiscal year. The estimated deficit is up nearly 700 millions since September.

Eisenhower told Congress it must raise the permanent limit on the national debt to 285 billions and provide a temporary limit even higher than that. The current temporary debt ceiling is 288 billion. It is due to drop to 283 billion next June 30.

The new budget is a bare 70 million dollars in the black. But it is what Eisenhower called a responsible, confident, positive, attainable budget, backed by glowing prospects of "continued vigorous economic recovery."

Over and over, he sounded that recovery refrain.

The budget counts on tapping taxpayers for a record sum while dangling before them a hope of tax reductions in the uncertain future.

The measure holds out promises to enhance domestic well-being and to protect personal savings and incomes from erosive inflation.

Yet it also calls for higher gasoline taxes that surely would be passed on to the consumer, and for another boost in postal rates. If Congress goes along—and it isn't at all sure that Congress will—the federal gas tax will jump from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon and it probably will cost a nickel instead of four cents to mail a letter.

Eisenhower said three dollars of every five in the budget—a total of $45,805,000,000 out of $77,030,000,000—must go to keeping the U.S. military structure ready to meet any threat with weapons operating from the bottom of the sea and through the fringes of space.

Key members of Congress questioned in advance whether the budget would carry enough money for defense. The total is down 315 millions from the current year's expenditures for the Defense Department, atomic energy, stockpiling of strategic materials, and military aid to allies.

For the Defense Department alone, the spending figure is up 145 millions, to a total of $40,850,000,000. Some Democrats and a number of Republicans on Capitol Hill have criticized sums of that size as inadequate.

In contrast with last year's budget message, this new 30,000-word document speaks of a persisting rather than a growing military danger from the Communist world.

But it all but calls a halt on continued whittling down of military manpower. It places less emphasis on planes and more on missiles — some 800 million dollars more.

It proposes to push spending for scientific research and space development to a record level. Eisenhower mentioned a million-pound thrust engine, and a nuclear rocket engine.

Expenditures for the Atomic Energy Commission also are expected to hit a record high of $2,700,000,000, with development and production of nuclear weapons kept at high levels.

No new funds are requested for testing such weapons in the Budget Highlights

Condensed Text of Ike's Speech, Charts, 7A

WASHINGTON —(UPI)— President Eisenhower's major fiscal 1960 budget proposals:

TAXES—Raise federal gasoline tax from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon to meet rising highway construction costs. Boost aviation gasoline tax from 2 to 4½ cents a gallon and impose a new 4½ tax on jet fuel — passing both on to consumers. Extend present corporate and excise tax rates another year until June 30, 1960. Tax cuts "in the reasonable foreseeable future" if budget stays balanced, but none in fiscal 1960.

* * *

DEFENSE — $40,945,000,000 for defense, about 145 million dollars more than fiscal 1959, with heavy emphasis on missiles and atomic-air power. No stepup in atomic-powered plane project. Provides for 2,500,000 men under arms backed by 29,000 planes and 864 ships.

* * *

SPACE — National Aeronautics and Space Administration would get 280 million dollars next year and 45 million more on top of this year's 153 million.

* * *

POSTAL RATES — Another 350 million dollar increase. Specific proposals will come later, but a request for a five-cent letter is likely.

* * *

EDUCATION — 150 million dollars for loans to college students and grants to states under science-keyed defense education program.

* * *

AVIATION — A four-year program to share costs of building runways and control towers, but withdrawal from airport grants in the future.

* * *

FOREIGN AID — Total of $3,498,000,000, with over-all reduction of 383 million dollars from this year. Military aid would drop 462 million dollars, but economic aid would rise 79 million, with increased emphasis on repayable "development loans."

Your Budget Share: $431

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The administration's new spending budget for fiscal 1960 adds up to $431 for every man, woman and child in the country.

This compares with estimated per capita spending of $460 in the current fiscal year.

The per capita debt would be about $1,594 a person.

Walkout Alert on At Pan Am

Over Work Hours Contract Snagged

By DOM BONAFEDE and DAN BROWN
Herald Staff Writer

Pan American World Airways ground personnel — including 3,000 in Miami and 1,500 at Cape Canaveral — were put on a strike alert Monday while union and management met in eleventh hour negotiations.

A walkout by members of the Transport Workers Union could cripple the world-wide airline — and seriously hamper the nation's missile research development program.

Union officials, who have been meeting with company representatives and a federal mediator in New York City for the past week, reported a "pushbutton" strategy setup has been devised to call a strike within 24 hours.

About 8,000 systemwide employes are employed in the dispute. The union is seeking higher wages, shorter hours and improved working conditions.

"We are waiting word from New York to walk out at any time," commented Art Hallgren, vice president of Miami Local 500, TWU.

The last union contract expired Dec. 1 and both sides have been meeting off and on since then.

Negotiations finally came to a climax a week ago and talks were pushed up to reach a new settlement.

In New York, a PAA spokesman said that the big issue was the union's demand for a cut in weekly working hours. He said TWU workers, presently on a 40-hour week, are seeking a 37½ hour week because of worker fears fewer ground crew members will be required when PAA starts using jet airliners on a big scale.

The union first asked for a 32-hour week but later reduced their demands.

"Strike standby" telegrams were sent to union members at all PAA installations Monday.

Meanwhile, company and union representatives settled a jurisdictional dispute which caused a sit down strike at the Cape Canaveral missile base last Friday.

The dispute involved the working requirements of PAA stock clerks.

Company officials termed the squabble a "misunderstanding."

DALLAS —(AP)— Police gave a woozey 29-year-old man a balloon test for drunkenness at the scene of an auto crash here. He passed it like a teetotaler.

But his grin faded fast when a passerby appeared with a paper sack and said, "Here's the sack you put down on the parkway."

Inside police found enough marijuana to roll 1,700 cigarets. They held the driver for state narcotics officers.

Government Prepares Crushing Blow

Buenos Aires Is Paralyzed By Anti-Austerity Strikers

BUENOS AIRES —(UPI)— A general strike against President Arturo Frondizi's drastic austerity program virtually paralyzed this city of nearly 6,000,000 inhabitants today. It was estimated that some 2,000,000 workers were idle.

With Frondizi off to the U.S. on an official visit, the government was reported ready to strike a crushing counter-blow to bring to an end the recurring labor troubles sparked by followers of ousted Dictator Juan D. Peron.

(President Frondizi is scheduled to arrive in Washington today.)

According to sources close to the government, both the Peronist Party — now known as the Justicialista or Social Justice Party — and the Communist Party will be outlawed, and the 62 pro-Peron labor unions which sparked the general stoppage will be placed under government commissioners — interventores.

The interior ministry admitted that the stoppage was almost complete and a government statement estimated daily losses at about 25 million dollars.

Authoritative sources predicted, however, that the strike would be a failure politically because it goaded the government into adopting measures that may prove crippling to the Peronist opposition.

Indicative of the government's determination to curb the mounting political labor agitation, mass arrests, especially of labor leaders, continued throughout the day.

City streets appeared almost deserted as no buses, trolley-buses, taxis or street cars were running. A few enterprising truck drivers tried to provide an improvised passenger service.

On the other hand, almost all government offices operated normally; all banks but two opened, and train service in and out of the city was reported normal. The armed forces have been in control of the railways since last Nov. 18, when workers who sought to paralyze them were mobilized into the armed services.

Acting under modified martial law in effect since Nov. 12, Argentina's 200,000 military personnel acted swiftly to maintain order and were reported in full control everywhere. Guards armed with machine guns stood at government buildings and strategic points.

Ireland's De Valera Ends Reign

DUBLIN —(UPI)— Premier Eamon de Valera formally agreed Monday to run for president of the ruling Fianna Fail Party ticket and thus end a reign of power which began in 1932 and was broken only once.

DE VALERA

The New York-born Irish patroit accepted the nomination for the presidency, an office which is little more than a title, at a meeting of his party.

He is expected to have little or no trouble winning the election, to be held in June, in which his only opponent will be Gen. Sean McEoin, also a hero of the Irish fight against the British 40 years ago.

Members of de Valera's party said the premier, 77 and plagued by failing eyesight, was the natural choice to replace the current president, Sean T. O'Kelly, onetime second man in de Valera's government.

U.S., State Decisions Identical

RICHMOND, Va. —(AP)— Virginia's legal barriers against racial integration, under which nine white schools have been shuttered since September, toppled Monday in the State Supreme Court.

The unappealable 5-2 decision brought the immediate prospect of some classroom race mixing before the Legislature can attempt to erect new blockades.

It also brought from Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. an expression of "faith in the ability and judgment" of the seven members of the state court, plus the announcement he will confer with other state leaders on the best future course to take.

The state court opinion followed by minutes the decision of a three-judge federal court in Norfolk striking down the state law under which six Norfolk schools have been kept closed. The federal court said it wasn't attempting to tell Virginia — aside from state constitutional requirements — it had to operate public schools.

But as long as the state did operate such a system, it added, the closing of some of the schools, or even grades of the schools, violates the rights of a citizen to equal protection under the law.

The State Supreme Court, however, ruled that Virginia still was subject to a requirement of the state constitution to operate a public school system throughout the state.

This was the nub of the Almond administration's test of the so-called massive resistance laws before the court.

The administration argued that when the Supreme Court of the United States knocked out the school segregation section of the Virgnia constitution it also invalidated the requirement for public school operation.

"The provisions of the constitution do not permit the matter to be so summarily disposed of," said the 22-page majority opinion by Chief Justice John W. Eggleston.

". . . The language (requiring public free schools) is clear and positive in its terms and provisions . . . we are not permitted to speculate on what the framers of that section might have meant to say, but are of necessity, controlled by what they did say."

The court then proceeded to throw out the school closing law which has been invoked in Norfolk affecting 10,000 pupils; Charlottesville, affecting 1,700, and Warren County High at Front Royal, 1,000. Almost all of the displaced pupils in Warren and Charlottesville have been attending makeshift private classes in churches and other community buildings. About 4,500 of the displaced Norfolk pupils are in private classes or tutoring groups.

Allies to Meet Force in Berlin, Says Mikoyan

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan said Monday that the Western allies probably will be met by force if they resort to military might to maintain their occupation of West Berlin.

On the eve of his return to Moscow, the high-ranking Kremlin leader made clear that his 15-day visit to this country has not significantly thawed the cold war.

He said in a speech to the National Press Club that while his talks with Americans generally led him to believe the U.S. wants peace, the government itself "still remains on the old cold war position."

"We all realize that the cold war is the prelude — or may be the prelude — to a hot war," he said. "We have no alternative — either peace and friendship, or war."

Earlier, the facade of official politeness that has marked Mikoyan's visit cracked somewhat when he and the State Department swapped charge and countercharge over this country's reluctance to increase trade with Russia.

Emerging from a conference with Undersecretary of State C. Douglas Dillon, Mikoyan shed the smile he has flashed before millions of Americans and told newsmen:

"The cold war in the State Department is still going on, and it affects foreign trade."

State Department Spokesman Lincoln White later accused Mikoyan of abusing U.S. hospitality by making "fatuous" remarks about the government.

He said Mikoyan refused during the one-hour and 45-minute conference with Dillon to agree to a resumption of talks on settling Russia's 11-billion dollar wartime lend-lease debt to the U.S.

At the conclusion of his Press Club speech, a reporter asked Mikoyan "what would happen" if the Western allies resorted to force to supply West Berlin after Russia turns over access routes to that city to the puppet East German government next May 27.

"Force meets with force usually," Mikoyan replied through his interpreter.

At another point, he said "Let us hope, and those who believe in God pray, that neither our country nor your country nor any other country will suffer from a new war that would be more terrible than anything in history."

In his speech and the subsequent question-and-answer session, Mikoyan also:

Said bluntly that "it is a good thing" former President Truman "is no longer in office." He noted that it was under Truman's administration that Soviet-American relations began to deteriorate and that Truman had criticized his meetings with American businessmen. He said Truman "seems to fear . . . the American people will have a better opinion of the Soviet Union."

Said he liked Eisenhower "and the reason is clear." He did not elaborate.

Labeled West German Defense Minister Franz Joseph Strauss as "the most dangerous person" once West Germany becomes rearmed. He said there are "revenge seekers" among the West Germans, and "we must not forget" the lessons of past wars with that nation.

Mikoyan said his talks with Eisenhower, Dulles and other U. S. officials had been "pleasant, friendly and useful exchanges."

But "when it came to concrete, specific matters," he said, the U.S. showed no willingness to change its policies. He said the only response he got when he asked whether it was good to have an unchanged policy was "that if conditions change, the policy also will change."

Girls Help Big Deals --Murrow

NEW YORK — (UPI) — A nationwide radio expose charged Monday that prostitution has become so important to big business that a famous madam issues an annual handbook of call girls for executives who want to hire girls by the dozen to help close deals with customers.

In a 55-minute "for-adults-only" presentation on "The Business of Sex," narrated by Edward R. Murrow, the Columbia Broadcasting System aired charges that some businesses have prostitutes on their payrolls full-time as members of their "public relations" staffs.

The voices of anonymous executives, call girls and others associated with the alleged coast-to-coast sex date activities were presented, along with comments by an anthropologist, a psychologist and a Roman Catholic priest.

Murrow said his staff had not been able to determine how many prostitutes there were, but that the number of highly paid call girls operating throughout the country as a part of big business operations was large.

A "publicist" who appeared on the show said the use of call girls in industry was widespread, with the practice probably much more extensive in Chicago, St. Louis and Cleveland than in New York City.

Among the statements made by various participants in the program were:

—Call girls are used to help persuade bank presidents and mortgage officers to make loans or grant mortgages.

—The person being entertained for business reasons often does not know his date is a prostitute. He is told she is a show girl or secretary who is just out for a good time.

—Call girls have become a standard entertainment feature of conventions.

Representatives of the AJC appealed to Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan in New York to intercede in blocking the forced migration plan.

The Russian official is reported by Jessica P. Schwarz, executive assistant of the AJC here, to have responded:

"The reported plan for the recreation of a Jewish State in Birobidzhan and the large scale transfer of Jewish population in Russia to there is without foundation."

The AJC says it opposes the forced move of Jews or anyone else.

"The fundamental right of the individual to preserve or change his dwelling place and cultural environment in accordance with his own needs and aspirations has been sanctioned by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights," the AJC maintains.

"The basic difficulty in regard to Birobidzhan consists in the inherent artificiality of the idea of settling an urban European element in a primitive Asian area adjacent to the Chinese border, to which no historic, sociological and spiritual ties bind them."

The Birobidzhan district has been labeled by some Soviets as "an autonomous Jewish region."

The AJC group says Jews constitute only one-fifth the population of this district "in which almost all expressions of Jewish cultural life such as schools, theaters, publishing houses have been surpressed."

It added that "the renewal of the scheme (to settle Jews there) would be completely devoid of any incentive for Jews to accept voluntarily the enormous sacrifices and burdens involved."

Ike Puts Stress On Recovery in 77 Million Budget

1960 fiscal year because of negotiations with Russia over suspending tests.

Foreign aid is a favorite target of the congressional pruning knife. But Eisenhower beat the lawmakers to it this time with a plan for cutting the total for next year by 383 millions, to $3,498,000,000.

That would be a net reduction, with boosts for technical assistance and economic help for friendly countries partly offsetting a slash in military assistance.

As Eisenhower sees it, the domestic economic outlook has changed, bringing opportunities for advances at home and abroad. He put it this way:

"The situation we face today as a nation differs significantly from that a year ago. We are now entering a period of national prosperity and high employment. This is a time for the government to conduct itself so as best to help the nation move forward strongly and confidently in economic and social progress at home, while fulfilling our responsibilities abroad.

"This budget proposes to increase our military effectiveness, to enhance domestic well-being, to help friendly nations to foster their development, to preserve fiscal soundness, and to encourage economic growth and stability, not only in the fiscal year 1960 but in the years beyond. And it clearly shows that these things can be done within our income."

Eisenhower has had his differences with Congress in the past — and probably will again — on foreign aid, airport construction, aid to areas with chronic unemployment, repairing of slums, and school construction.

In this budget, he proposed programs of his own for all these except schools. But they may not be exactly acceptable in a Congress whose Democratic leaders have said they intend to write their own ticket on legislation and spending.

Eisenhower is figuring on skimping and stinting on many domestic items and even some military programs.

Not only that, but instead of tax cuts now, Eisenhower wants some boosts here and there. And he wants some tax loopholes closed.

To keep the vast interstate highway building program on a pay-as-you-go basis, he said, the federal tax on motor fuels must go up from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon.

He urged, too, that the tax on aviation gas be hiked from 2 to 4½ cents a gallon and that a new tax of 4½ cents be applied to jet fuel. Eisenhower invited airlines to pass these taxes on to passengers and shippers if Congress imposes them. He said that would be fair and sound.

The president asked that excise and corporation tax rates be kept at present levels. The corporation levies and some excises are due to drop next summer unless Congress extends them.

Without saying exactly what he has in mind, the chief executive said proposals are "corrective amendments" of the laws on taxing cooperatives will go to Congress soon.

He also asked for action now on what he called an equitable plan of the Treasury Department for taxing income of life insurance companies.

All in all, of the $77,100,000,000 the government plans to take in during the next fiscal year, Eisenhower said 76½ billion will come from increased receipts under present tax rates and 600 million from new taxes and proposed boosts in such things as patent fees and postal rates.

He wants 350 millions from the higher postal rates to cut down the postoffice deficit. In his budget message, Eisenhower did not spell out just what rates he wants raised, but the administration has pushed in the past for a five-cent letter stamp. Details on Eisenhower's postal proposals are expected to go to Congress later.

Nothing much can be done about cutting down the second biggest item in the budget—a whopping $8,096,000,000 for interest on the national debt.

But the third largest category of expenditures — for agriculture and agricultural resources — is coming down by nearly 800 millions. The new figure is $5,996,000,000.

Most of the decrease is by reason of ending the acreage reserve part of the soil bank program. As in his State of the Union message to Congress 10 days ago, Eisenhower said legislation is urgently needed to revise the farm price support program. But he saved details for a special message later.

For the time being, Eisenhower said, heavy expenditures for veterans benefits will be dropping — by 110 millions in the upcoming fiscal year. They still will hit $5,088,000,000 — the fourth biggest item in the budget.

Without spelling out specifics, the president said there should be a modification of benefits to veterans and their families for disability or death not related to military service — an idea likely to strike sparks from some veterans organizations.

Eisenhower also called for legislation to modernize the veterans pension program in the light of social developments and changes — again with details to come later.

This is a budget that had a little something for nearly everybody:

For Hawaii, statehood; for the District of Columbia, home rule. Eisenhower siad it is unconscionable to delay either any longer.

For the thirsty, a start is proposed on plans for a plant to make salt water fit for farm, industrial and municipal use.

For House members there is a dig at their new office building. Mainly because of construction of that and other federal office buildings, Eisenhower said, the costs of the government's administrative and housekeeping operations is going up by 62 millions, to $1,735,000,000.

The chief executive didn't mention it, but buried in tables of figures attached to the budget message is a line showing that expenses of keeping up the White House mansion and grounds are expected to mount from $497,000 to $531,000.

Expenses of the President's executive office are slated to rise by $4,049,000, to $70,201,000, chiefly because of activities of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

On the side of economy, Eisenhower considered it "both possible and prudent to take a breathing spell" in the starting of new public works projects, such as veterans hospitals and water resources developments.

He suggested, too, that states and municipalities chip in more of the cash for flood control, sewage treatment plants, vocational education, disaster relief, aid to the needy, and improving blighted areas in cities.

National Summary

High pressure that maintained a pattern of cool weather in the East over the weekend drifted off the south Atlantic coast Monday with southerly breezes spreading warmer air from the Gulf states into New England.

By noon 60 degree temperatures warmed the Gulf regions from Florida into Texas with Houston and Brownsville recording readings in the 70s.

The eastward sweep of the cold air mass from the plains to the New England states will drop temperatures at a cold wave rate into Illinois and Indiana.

The brief warming trend ahead of the cold front will give snow, sleet and then rain in an area from southern New England into the mountains of western North Carolina early Tuesday.

Warm air in the southern states will stay the cold long enough to develop a band of showers and thunderstorms from central Texas to the lower Mississippi Valley.

Pacific air across the Rockies will spread snow from the Continental Divide across the western side of the cold air mass from Montana to Oklahoma and northern New Mexico.

Fair weather will prevail in the northern plains with dawn temperatures down to 20 below in Minnesota and Wisconsin and in the southwest with mild temperatures.

Warden William McMullen Displays Prisoners' Hobby Work

Youngest Prison Warden In State Only 25 Years Old

By DOUG SILVER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — Florida's youngest prison warden is a soft-spoken, sure-footed man who knows where he's going.

William McMullen is only 25 . . . but he's a real old pro when it comes to handling his 55 prisoners.

He smiles easily, and adds "sir" to his answers to visitors. But there's authority in his eyes. His bearing is that of a man who knows what he's doing and how to get it done.

McMullen is warden at the prison camp on Oleander Avenue.

Last July guards at state prison camps were disarmed.

Since then no prisoner has attempted to escape at the local camp.

A solitary confinement cell was built in September but nobody's occupied it yet.

Why has the new policy proven so successful here?

After a visit to the camp the other day it's this reporter's conclusion that this record can be attributed to the careful classification of the prisoners and the kind of operation provided by the warden.

McMullen has been in charge of the Fort Pierce camp since September, 1957. He came here from Moore Haven where he was a deputy.

He's a Pinellas County boy, graduating from Largo High School.

There are six honor camps in the statewide setup and Fort Pierce is one. This means that the system of unarmed guards applies not only within the camp but also out on the road when the men are working.

Only one guard is armed, a deputy who stays up all night while the men are sleeping in their barracks.

The youthful warden explained that the state classifies all prisoners in three groups — those needing close, medium or minimum custody. There are no close custody men at Fort Pierce.

Those needing medium custody work on the roads and the minimum surveillance men stay around the camp, mostly as cooks and other kitchen workers.

Warden McMullen believes in encouraging hobby work among his charges and proudly displayed samples of model covered wagons and stagecoaches which many of the men make in their spare time.

The warden has helped find a market for these items through the help of local stores. He said: "Be sure the men get full credit for these things. They made 'em — I didn't."

He also believes in giving credit to others for the camp's smooth running state of affairs, citing the classification system designed by L. W. Griffith of Tallahassee, state director of Road Prisons.

McMullen likewise emphasized that his local staff plays a big part in the camp's success.

It's worth mentioning that the deputy warden here is D. C. Hudson another trim 25-year-old career man in the prison camp system.

The days of the old fashioned, pot bellied prison guard with a shotgun slung carelessly over his shoulder are long gone — around Fort Pierce, anyway.

SENTRY BOX, outmoded by new policy of unarmed guards, is inspected by Deputy Warden D. C. Hudson (left) and Warden William McMullen of Fort Pierce prison road camp.

Governor's Committee Calls for Reforms

Agriculture Office Hit For Waste, Duplication

End Milk Board, Legislators Urge

By JOHN L. BOYLES
Capitol Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins' study committee Monday harpooned the Florida Department of Agriculture, terming it a hodge-podge of costly duplication of government.

The committee headed by Sen. Tom Adams of Orange Park said, "the office of commissioner of agriculture professes to be a department consisting of 12 divisions which have grown by reason of executive fiat rather than legislative direction."

Nathan Mayo, commissioner of agriculture for 36 years, is ill at his Ocala home and was unavailable for comment.

Gov. Collins said he had not yet personally received the 88-page report.

The first of six public hearings over the state on the committee's recommendations to the 1959 Legislature will be held here Tuesday.

The committee recommended that the Florida Milk Commission be abolished, asserting that as long as the committee exists "the milk industry in Florida will never be adequately stabilized."

The committee called for creation of a department of agriculture consisting of the following divisions: administration, animal industry, plant industry, chemistry, citrus and vegetable inspection, standards and marketing.

The committee also recommended that an advisory council composed of representatives of all agricultural interests be formed to help guide the commissioner on policies, and that the office of assistant commissioner of agriculture be established.

It also recommended a fulltime legal staff be set up within the department with a prohibition against the hiring of private attorneys by agricultural agencies.

Calling for abolition of several independent boards and commissions, Adam's committee said "more agricultural services are rendered agriculture in Florida by governmental agencies outside the commissioner's office than within."

It said the State Plant Board should be removed from the Board of Control, which regulates state universities, and transferred to the new Agriculture Department.

The Plant Board administers such programs as fruit fly and fire ant extermination.

The committee said meat inspection laws should be overhauled and asserted that in spite of numerous violations of the state's poultry laws, lack of enforcement or prosecution has caused serious repercussions in certain areas.

"The lack of enforcement by the commissioner's office of the citrus code has become so apparent," the committee said, "that other interested bodies have been compelled to employ their own inspectors."

Navy Firm On Moving Sub Group

Secretary Tells Group It Stands

By DAVID J. KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Navy refused Monday to reverse its decision to transfer 10 ships and 1,600 men from Key West to Charleston, S.C.

But a large delegation of civic and business leaders from Key West and Miami was given flat assurances the Navy plans no cut back in the shore installation.

"The Navy has no intention of ever getting out of Key West," Navy Secretary Thomas Gates said.

"The biggest problem we have is 500 Russian subs. I can't conceive of closing" the Key West Submarine Base.

Gates told Florida Senators George Smathers and Spessard Holland and Rep. Dante Fascell the transfer of the 10 ships is part of a new "dispersal" program, affecting Navy bases all along the eastern seaboard from Newport, R. I. to Key West.

Gates conceded there might be cause for criticism if examined from the standpoint of Key West alone. "But the overall change is a very good thing," he said.

Eight submarines, one rescue vessel and one tender are being transferred. Twelve submarines and one tender will continue to operate out of Key West.

Gates said the sonar school will continue in operation and there will be no cutback of the Naval air installation at Boca Chica.

Gates and the high-ranking Navy brass fended off Fascell's pointed reference to statements made last November by Rep. Mendel Rivers (D., S.C.).

Fascell said Rivers, an influential member of the House Armed Services Committee, stated publicly he had been working on the transfer for 12 months and he had succeeded in getting the Navy to go along more.

Gates said the Navy could not be responsible for what Congressmen tell constituents.

He insisted the Navy made the decision "completely on its own" and without any help from Rivers.

Gates said the transferred subs are to become part of a big fleet which will operate in the deep Atlantic waters off the middle east coast.

He pointed out 15 destroyers are being transferred from Norfolk to Charleston and a number of ships will be assigned to the Mayport base, near Jacksonville.

Gates was told Key West is unable to fully develop as a tourist center because the Navy has "usurped" all the choice beach areas.

"Key West went bankrupt and became a ghost town when the Navy pulled out in 1933," said Paul Marks, a Miami attorney and a native of Key West. "We don't want that happening again."

Gates was asked to appreciate the economic impact of which is dependent upon Navy the transfer on a community business.

1956 Perjury Case

Retrial of King May Open Today

BARTOW —(AP)— Three of the defendants in the highly publicized Harry King perjury case of 1956 face retrial in criminal court today.

The state indicated it would seek to bring King, 56-year-old former state senator from Winter Haven, to trial first. King received a five-year prison sentence following the first trial. He was granted a separate hearing for the retrial.

Other defendants are former Sheriff Pat Gordon and former deputy Sentell Monk.

Gordon, who also received a five-year term, was convicted with King of inducing two former deputies to give false testimony to a grand jury.

The deputies convicted of perjury were James L. Busbee and Rollie Arnold. They received two-year sentences along with Monk, who was convicted of conspiracy to commit perjury.

Busbee and Arnold won't face retrial. They pleaded guilty last week and await sentencing.

Dade Asks Collins for Flood Help

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Federal help for South Florida flood control could cost the state $11,000,000 during the next two years, a Dade County delegation told Gov. LeRoy Collins Monday.

Former House Speaker Ted David of Hollywood, spokesman for the group, said the federal government was ready to spend $8,000,000 on the project next year, and it would cost the state $5,500,000 or $11,000,000 for the biennium, to get all the federal funds.

Collins said "the chances are slim" the legislature would appropriate that much money, especially since it has only been shelling out some $3,500,000 a biennium up to now. But the governor had another suggestion for raising money for the project.

He said a greater contribution could be sought on a local basis from properties directly affected by the control program. He admitted, however, such a plan would not be well received in some quarters.

David assured Collins the delegation was not in Tallahassee to complain about the program up to now. He said they just wanted to make sure it didn't stop before it was finished.

He said since flood control started Dade has been contributing about two-thirds of the money.

"They have been patiently waiting in the bread line and they just want to be sure the bread doesn't run out," he said.

Most of the controversial part of the program lies between Miami and the huge Everglades area, the last part of the flood control project to be completed. The project includes completion of several canals, prevention of salt water intrusion, and reclaiming of land.

$9,000,000 For Florida

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower asked congress Monday to appropriate $9 million to continue work on the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control project for the year ending June 30, 1960.

This is the largest annual appropriation ever approved by the White House for the project.

Work on the project began in 1950. The previous high was $8,750,000 for fiscal 1957.

Senator Spessard Holland also reported that the Interior Department had requested $607,000 for improvements in Everglades National Park. The money will be used largely on roads, trails and other improvements at Paradise Key and Flamingo.

Other public works appropriations requests for Florida in the 1960 budget include: $3,772,000 for continuation of construction of Tampa harbor; $1,183,000 for the harbor at St. Josephs Bay; and $1,130,000 for continuing dredging of the intra-coastal waterway.

The waterway is already 12 feet deep from Trenton, N.J. to Eau Gallie, and the project is designed to have a 12-foot depth all the way to Miami.

Grave Not Found In Search

JACKSONVILLE — (AP) — A field, 10 miles south of Jacksonville was unsuccessfully searched for the makeshift grave of a Florida business man, identified by a California convict as his robbery slaying victim.

If the story told by Roy Victor Olson, 23, checks, the contents of the grave should be identifiable. Olson said he buried personal papers, watch, and the weapon with the body of James Eugene Harrison, 34, Oct. 7 or 8.

Duval Sheriff's Department Lt. Roy Sands and Brevard County Sheriff's Investigator Ralph Clark said Sunday they obtained a confession from Olson in an interview at Vacaville Correctional Center, near Sacramento, Calif.

Olson is serving five years to life for the fatal stabbing of Ogden Miles, 34, a Sacramento TV announcer.

The Florida officers said Olson also related he killed John Weiler, 37, with a knife in Seattle on a date not specified.

Harrison, an Indian River City window manufacturer, disappeared after starting a business trip Oct. 7. The statement quoted by Sands and Clark said Olson got a ride with Harrison, then knifed and robbed his host, drove the bloodstained car to Jacksonville, abandoned it and continued hitchhiking.

Mom Turns Two Tots Into Human Torches

BARTOW —(UPI)— A 21-year-old mother, charged with trying to burn her two children to death because they were "interfering with her love life," told officers Monday she couldn't carry out the scheme after she heard their angonizing screams.

Mrs. Juanita Irene Hamil was charged with pouring gasoline over her children, aged 3 and 4, putting them in the bathroom, throwing a match on them and locking the door. The incident occurred Sunday at her home at nearby Polk City.

But when she heard their screams, she said she decided to find help and save their lives. Two neighbors broke down the door and rescued Sharon Kay, 4, and Olvin Vivian, 3.

Sharon Kay was in serious condition from burns over 25 per cent of her body. The little boy escaped with minor burns.

Polk County Sheriff Hagan Parrish said Mrs. Hamil said she set the children afire because they were "getting on my nerves" and interferring with her relations with William Ernest Cabo, 40, of Sieverville, Tenn., a 6-foot-5-inch pipe worker.

Mrs. Hamil, who gave her address as Iola, Kan., was charged on two counts of attempted murder and with adultery. Cabo, who was at work at the time, was charged with adultery and carrying a deadly weapon, a switchblade knife.

Mrs. Hamil, who said she had separated from her husband, Grover Hamil of Emmet, Ida., said she and Cabo decided Saturday they "could not tolerate the children any longer" and would return them to their father in Idaho.

But, she said, Sunday she did not think she could stand them another day. She said she splashed two gallons of gasoline on the children and on the floor.

Raiders Curtail Production

'Shine Output Dropping Off

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— An intensified enforcement drive has sent Florida's moonshine production into an eclipse, State Beverage Director H. G. Cochran reported Monday.

Results have been particularly noticeable the past six months, he said.

While the number of arrests, convictions and fines mounted, the number of stills found and the amount of mash destroyed took a sharp dip.

Cochran said in a report for the last half of 1958 that figures showed joint efforts by federal and state agencies had sent the number of stills into a decline.

"Our policy of making every effort to make catches at each still seizure along with more shine arrests, trials and convictions is lessening the moonwhine traffic within the state," he said.

During the last six months of 1958 a total of 314 stills were found and 218,251 gallons of mash destroyed. In the same period of 1957, 337 stills were found and 313,891 gallons of mash destroyed.

In the same period there were 229 more arrests for moonshine whisky violations and 202 more arrests for violation of laws relating to legal whisky.

There also were 234 more convictions for violating liquor laws.

Heaviest activity has been in the third district of northeast Florida where 112 stills were smashed and 100,765 gallons of mash destroyed in the past six months.

Counties in the third district are: Baker, Bradford, Clay, Duval, Nassau, St. Johns and Union.

Most Crops Escape Cold Wave Damage

LAKELAND — (UPI) — Weather officials said Monday Florida's latest cold wave did "rather severe" damage to tender truck crops in the Everglades region but apparently spared most other areas, including the state's vast citrus groves.

But Tuesday, temperatures were expected to be much higher with no more frost danger at least through Thursday. Early morning readings were forecast from near 40 in the extreme north to near 50 in southern portions for Tuesday.

Forecaster Warren Johnson said temperatures dropped to 23 in a few low isolated spots early Monday but "probably did not cause any additional damage."

There was considerable grove heating in the central citrus area, he said, and "apparently it proved quite effective as did the wind machines." He added that most crops that might have been damaged probably already were hurt by earlier freezes last week.

General Manager Robert W. Rutledge of Florida Citrus Mutual said there was "considerable leaf damage to young growth and some on mature growth." But overall he said there was "very little damage" to the citrus industry.

Frost was heavy in most areas except the Lower East Coast and the Everglades, weather officials said. Johnson said there "undoubtedly was more damage to strawberry blooms in Plant City."

He said the Lower East Coast came through "in fine shape" with lows of 37 to 43.

Temperatures will average about five degrees below normal for the next five days, the Miami Weather Bureau said.

"It will turn a little cooler again about Thursday, but nothing like the weather over the past weekend," the forecast said.

"We expect fairly warm weather the rest of the week," it said.

Steamroller Loses Bout With Freight

Herald Bureau

HOLLYWOOD — A four-ton pavement roller was knocked through the air like a golf ball here Monday morning by a freight train.

No one was injured, police said.

The roller was on a trailer. The 18-car freight drove it 44 feet through the air.

The roller landed on a grade-crossing signal box, crushing it; and then bounced into a power pole, snapping it like a twig.

The front roller wheel flew off and sailed 100 feet farther down Dixie Hwy.

Traffic was snarled at seven grade-crossings by damage to the signal box.

The roller was on a trailer hitched to a dump truck driven by Louis C. Farruggia, 34, of Hollywood. The vehicle stalled on the Florida East Coast grade crossing at Garfield St., near Dixie Hwy.

Farruggia told police he leaped from the truck and tried to flag down the train, approaching at about 35 miles and hour, but it was too late. The engineer said he had applied the train's brakes 1,000 feet before impact.

The $4,000 roller was a total loss. Damage to the signal box was set at $1,500.

Nightlife with George Bourke

Faster and Fancier, Americana Revue Clicks

POSSIBLY the longest hop from one stand to another made by show veteran Edward Everett Horton will be the one which will take him from the Palm Springs Playhouse in California to Royal Poinciana Playhouse in Palm Beach, with "Not in the Book," which opens there Feb. 9, with either Ann Harding or Dorothy Stone . . . Did Sam Katzman step out of the "Stake-Out" TV series being filmed here to take on a theatrical film concerned with Fidel Castro? Several Hollywood companies have signified intent to make pictures about the Cuban revolution by registering title with Motion Picture Producers Title Registration Bureau. Not on the list was "Hi-Fidelity Castro."

Removal of Padding Helped

"A RAG, a Bone and a Ponytail," continues at Larry Tisch's Americana Hotel Bal Masque, but it is a fancier rag, a more meaty bone and a faster traveling ponytail than when it opened just before the holidays. The Sid Kuller-Selma Marlowe production was a rattling good bit of musical comedy in the original offering but it had about a half hour of needless padding.

Now that padding has been taken out and the sequence of acts adjusted, it's a lark from start to finish. The cast is the same — a solid collection of acts that have arrived but haven't yet been dubbed with stardom in the live variety field, such as the Blackburn Twins and Jerry Collins; Barbara Heller, whose impressions have been a click on television; Kay Cee Jones, who has had some success on records, Mara Lynn, Shirl Haven, Jack DeLeon, Mark Reddy, Skip Norman, Jay Salerno and others.

Best numbers are still "Funnel of Love" in which the whole cast indulges in a sophisticated switch of husbands and wives in the manner of "La Ronde;" a "Rainbow Blues" song interlude of great artistry — especially in the staging," and an atomic-paced "Celebrities on Parade" in which more than a score of impressions are done — also by the entire ensemble. "A Rag, a Bone and a Ponytail" is something different for the cafe goer — there's nary a dull moment in it.

She's been seen frequently on the legit stage.

'Auntie Mame' Prolongs Visit

FLORIDA STATE Theaters is having trouble evicting "Auntie Mame" from the Olympia, Beach and Gables Theaters, she has so many paying friends at the box-office — and so "Some Came Running," which was to have opened a run last week, will have to slow down until Wednesday.

Why not "With Borge and Back?" . . . Jack Collins was keyboarding at Pit Lounge in Fort Lauderdale, but before you could say Pit Lounge he had opened at Robinson's Roost in Daytona.

Maestro to Conduct Own Work

The Coronet model appeared in one produced by Sam Katzman late last year . . . Henry Levine, musical director of the Cavalcade of Stars band at the Deauville, has composed a work called "Flight 49." He will conduct when it is done at Bayfront Park on Friday night.

'But He Knows What He's Doing'

Youngest Prison Warden In State Only 25 Years Old

By DOUG SILVER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — Florida's youngest prison warden is a soft-spoken, sure-footed man who knows where he's going.

William McMullen is only 25 . . . but he's a real old pro when it comes to handling his 55 prisoners.

He smiles easily, and adds "sir" to his answers to visitors. But there's authority in his eyes. His bearing is that of a man who knows what he's doing and how to get it done.

McMullen is warden at the prison camp on Oleander Avenue.

Last July guards at state prison camps were disarmed.

Since then no prisoner has attempted to escape at the local camp.

A solitary confinement cell was built in September but nobody's occupied it yet.

Why has the new policy proven so successful here?

After a visit to the camp the other day it's this reporter's conclusion that this record can be attributed to the careful classification of the prisoners and the kind of operation provided by the warden.

McMullen has been in charge of the Fort Pierce camp since September, 1957. He came here from Moore Haven where he was a deputy.

He's a Pinellas County boy, graduating from Largo High School.

There are six honor camps in the statewide setup and Fort Pierce is one. This means that the system of unarmed guards applies not only within the camp but also out on the road when the men are working.

Only one guard is armed, a deputy who stays up all night while the men are sleeping in their barracks.

The youthful warden explained that the state classifies all prisoners in three groups — those needing close, medium or minimum custody. There are no close custody men at Fort Pierce.

Those needing medium custody work on the roads and the minimum surveillance men stay around the camp, mostly as cooks and other kitchen workers.

Warden McMullen believes in encouraging hobby work among his charges and proudly displayed samples of model covered wagons and stagecoaches which many of the men make in their spare time.

The warden has helped find a market for these items through the help of local stores. He said: "Be sure the men get full credit for these things. They made 'em — I didn't."

He also believes in giving credit to others for the camp's smooth running state of affairs, citing the classification system designed by L. W. Griffith of Tallahassee, state director of Road Prisons.

McMullen likewise emphasized that his local staff plays a big part in the camp's success.

It's worth mentioning that the deputy warden here is D. C. Hudson another trim 25-year-old career man in the prison camp system.

The days of the old fashioned, pot bellied prison guard with a shotgun slung carelessly over his shoulder are long gone —around Fort Pierce, anyway.

SENTRY BOX, outmoded by new policy of unarmed guards, is inspected by Deputy Warden D. C. Hudson (left) and Warden William McMullen of Fort Pierce prison road camp.

Coroner's Jury to Meet Today

Herald Bureau

MELBOURNE — County Judge Virgil Conklin will reconvene a coroner's jury at 2 p.m. today to receive new information concerning the death of a West Virginia visitor whose body was found early Saturday beside the Flemming-Grant Rd. in Micco, a community south of Melbourne.

The jury was empaneled shortly after Carl Hill's body was found, and adjourned after receiving a report from Dr. Cyrus E. Warden, whose autopsy revealed that death was due to natural causes.

The panel siad it would meet again when new facts were uncovered on how the body was left along the road.

Late Saturday, deputies Jim Drawdy and D. G. Gardner picked up Paul Withrow, 22, Eau Gallie, and William Washington, 51, Melbourne who said they were on a drinking bout with the 43-year-old visitor Friday night.

Deputies said the pair, who knew Hill in West Virginia, admitted leaving him at the side of the road at 10 p.m. Friday, assuming that Hill would find his way home when he regained consciousness.

Withrow and Washington insist Hill was alive, when they dragged him out of their car.

But Hill was found dead Saturday morning by Jack Byar, a Micco resident on his way to work.

Withrow and Washington, detained at the county jail in Titusville, are listed as material witnesses for the inquest.

Council Explains Stand on Recall

By BILL BUNGE
Herald Bureau

EAU GALLIE — Mayor Milton McGrath said Monday that City Council "never contemplated" taking the power away from the people in the recall of elected officials from office.

The city only wants a line added to the recall clause in its charter explained, City Manager Clark Maxwell, which states persons seeking to unseat an official "must prove misfeasance, malfeasance or nonfeasance."

The session, attended by the entire City Council, was called to explain a special act, dealing with recall procedure, that Eau Gallie would like the 1959 Legislature to approve.

After a meeting last week with the Brevard County legislative delegation, officials attempted to explain the recall change and, because they were unfamiliar with this part of the law, gave the wrong implication.

City officials received a rash of telephone calls about it.

Maxwell said the special bill has not been written, and before "our legislators receive it the act will have to be approved by the City Council at an open meeting."

The recall subject is a sore spot in Eau Gallie, because an attempt to unseat councilmen last summer went through a bitter battle to an unsuccessful election.

'Poor Soul' Nets $2,100

COCOA BEACH — Officials of the Brevard County March of Dimes said $2,100 was netted in a "Poor Soul's" walk Saturday.

The "Poor Soul," Carl Moulton of Cocoa Beach, walked from the west limits of Cocoa to the center of Cocoa Beach for a dime a step.

The hike took 13 hours.

Accidents Take Drop

VERO BEACH — The lowest accident rate for Vero Beach municipal employes in years was reported Monday by Frank L. Cox Jr., safety director.

There were only three minor accidents in December resulting in a total of only one-half day lost from work.

There have been no accidents involving city vehicles since Sept. 24. The average vehicular accident rate has been two a month for the past three years.

When Eugene Lyon became city manager in March he said he was appalled at the high accident rate among employes. He instituted a safety education program, and appointed Cox safety director.

Burns Fatal To Woman

STUART — Mrs. Cora Lee Crary, 52, an Indiantown Negro, became the third person in Martin County to be burned to death within two days.

Mrs. Crary, who lived alone, died Sunday night at Martin County Hospital. She lived alone in the Indiantown Negro section. Her flannel nightgown caught fire as she leaned across a kerosene stove.

She jumped into bed trying to smother the flames. The bedclothes caught fire so she ran into the street screaming for help.

Pension Plans on Agenda

VERO BEACH — Pension and group life insurance plans for municipal employes will be discussed at a Vero Beach City Council meeting at 7:30 p.m. today.

Plans to assure city workers of retirement income and death benefits have been completed by Dr. William M. Howard of the University of Florida.

He explained these to the councilmen Friday night.

The police and fire department now have pension plans. Other city empolyes do not.

If the pension plan is adopted council will have to decide whether to have it administered by an insurance company, or to set up a trust fund, to be controlled by a pension board.

The group life insurance would be turned over to an insurance company.

'Caravan' Due Jan. 23

Herald Service

JENSEN BEACH — The "Cancer Caravan" led by a 40 and 8 locomotive and box cars, followed by autos and fire engines, will arrive here Friday for an all-day cancer educational program, Dr. J. K. Cline, chairman of the event, has announced.

The caravan started Monday at Cocoa and, within two weeks, will cover 170 miles from Titusville to Boca Raton.

J. Brian Frazier is in charge of the events here.

The caravan will stop at the community center. Two films will be shown with a physician holding a question-answer period. This program is for women only.

The caravan will go to Ocean Breeze Park at 2 p.m. Mrs. A. Rose is in charge there.

A variety show, with local talent will start the evening program at 7:30 p.m. at the community center. Mrs. Harry Heritage and Mrs. Robert Miller are co-chairmen.

Mrs. Kerner Of Stuart Dies

STUART — Mrs. Mary Theresa Kerner, 66, died Monday at Martin County hospital. She had lived in Stuart for five years and in Jensen Beach for four years.

Services and burial will be in Elizabeth, N. Y.

PAA Trio Ask U.S. To Step In

Organizers File Coercion Claim

By DAN BROWN
Cocoa Bureau Chief

CAPE CANAVERAL — Three Pan American World Airways employees Monday asked the U. S. District Attorney to take action against PAA for giving them letters of reprimand.

The letters are "coercion, intimidation and interference," and a violation of the Railway Labor Act, charged the trio, which has set itself up as an employe grievance committee for the firm's stock clerks.

The three — R. M. McIlhany, John Riffe and Sam Weaver — are also active in efforts to affiliate the 250 stock clerks with the Teamsters Union.

Officials of PAA, prime contractor for the Air Force on the 6,000-mile Atlantic Missile Range, denied the trio's accusations. The district attorney's office had no immediate reply.

Richard Mitchell, PAA vice president, and Charles Fleming, its administrative manager, explained the trio was reprimanded for doing "their union work on government time."

In addition to his letter, McIlhaney was suspended for three days for what Mitchell and Fleming termed "frequent violations of company rules."

McIlhaney, Riffe and Weaver also complained Monday to the National Labor Mediation Board and to Fleming. Neither took immediate action.

The three employees called Fleming PAA's "hatchet man" in a mimeographed circular distributed to all stock clerks. Fleming denied the charge.

McIlhany, Riffe and Weaver were instrumental last week in a move to affiliate the stock clerks with the Teamsters Union. A jurisdictional election is scheduled Feb. 1.

PAA's stock clerks lost union representation recently under a ruling of the AFL-CIO "no raiding" committee.

The committee found the Transport Workers Union — which had been representing the clerks — guilty of raiding from another union and ruled the TWU could no longer represent the workers.

Searchers Fail In Hunt for Body

JACKSONVILLE — (UPI) — Authorities searched for the body of a Florida businessman believed buried by a young cook already serving a sentence of five years to life for the fatal stabbing of a California TV announcer.

California police said Roy Victor Olson, 23, confessed to fatally stabbing James Eugene Harrison, 32, Indian River City, about Oct. 7 near Jacksonville.

He also said he killed a man named John Weiler, 37, Seattle, Wash., at Seattle.

The confessions were made Saturday to two Florida investigators in Vacaville, Calif. Later Olson was quoted as saying: "Well, that's it. I wonder how many others I've killed."

Lt. Roy Sands of the Duval County Sheriff's Office and Ralph Clark of Brevard County, said Olson told them Harrison picked him up while hitchhiking on U. S. 90 between Lake City and Jacksonville.

The Indian River businessman was last seen leaving his office Oct. 7 when he told his family he had a business appointment at nearby Cocoa. His blood-spattered station wagon was found in Jacksonville a week later.

Olson said he killed Harrison after they stopped at a dirt road "to stretch their legs." Then he said he stole $500 from the victim's wallet and drove the station wagon into Jacksonville where he abandoned it.

In Brevard County, where Harrison's Indian River City home is, Sheriff James W. Dunn said he had additional information which would indicate Olson's statement was accurate.

He said Mrs. Edward Walters, Titusville, owner of a service station and friend of the Harrison family, said she saw a shovel in the rear of Harrison's car the day he disappeared.

Mrs. Walters also said she gave Harrison some bags of fertilizer which would explain the bags which Olson thought contained lime. Earlier, Dunn said Olson's story about a shovel and sacks of lime didn't fit into the picture.

Bird Count Sets Record

COCOA — The Indian River Audubon Society broke the U.S. record for Christmas bird counts for the fourth successive year.

The society's team of 55 persons spotted birds of 194 individual species, one more than their record-breaking performance the year before.

Taking second place in the bird count with 165 species was the Laguna Atascosa National Wildlife Refuge, near Brownsville, Texas. San Diego, Calif., was third with 165 species.

Facility To Have 60 Beds

New Directors Named to Board

By ZOLA SWARTHOUT
Herald Correspondent

STUART — Plans were announced Monday for a campaign to raise a million dollars to build a new 60-bed hospital. It would be adjacent to the present Martin County Hospital.

The new hospital will be known as Martin Memorial Hospital.

Claude O. Rainey, spokesman for the hospital's board of directors, said seven new directors had been added to the board.

New members are Rainey, Judge Evans Crary Jr., Ralph E. Evinrude, Ralph W. Hartman, Lester Combs, Dr. H. Hazedale Hipson, and Mrs. Charles Lintell.

They will serve with Judge A. O. Kanner, D. S. Hudson, Gene Dyer, and Edwin A. Menninger.

Rainey and Hartman are cochairmen of the fund drive.

Rainey revealed plans for the new hospital at the annual meeting of the Hospital Auxiliary Monday at the Woman's Club.

The present hospital was given by the late Mr. and Mrs. William Barstow of Jupiter Island in 1939. Through the years it has lived up to Mrs. Barstow's request that no one, regardless of race, creed or color shall be denied services at the hospital."

Rainey said the 10-year plan for the new building is designed to keep pace with rapidly growing Martin County. The present buildings will be used as a home for the aged and for Negro patients, when the new facilities are available.

Changing of the hospital name was done to make sure that it was not confused as being a political operated institution.

The Martin County Commission budgeted $16,000 this year for indigent patients.

The present hospital was designed for 30 beds. The need for more facilities was pointed out by Rainey, who stated that three years ago the average daily number of patients was six, last year the average was 40.

He said emergency cases rose from 50 in 1955 to 600 in 1958.

Three years ago there were four doctors on the staff. Today there are eight doctors and many consultants.

The nursing staff has tripled during the past three years.

Hospital Director William Bishop said the exact site of the hospital was still undecided, but it would be located near the present buildings. The hospital owns 12 acres of land there.

Hatchei was thrown 100 feet when the car overturned, investigating officers said.

Injuries Fatal

FORT PIERCE — A 32-year-old Negro, George Sikes, of 509 N. 24th St., died Sunday as a result of injuries received in a two-car collision on Okeechobee Road, west of Fort Pierce.

Highway Patrolman W. O. Collins, Jr., reported J. T. Smith of 805 El Rancho Dr., was the driver of the other car.

Both cars were demolished and a blaze in the engine of the Smith car set fire to woods. Because all Fort Pierce fire fighting equipment was at another grass and woods fire, Vero Beach sent an engine to put out the blaze.

Nightlife with George Bourke

Faster and Fancier, Americana Revue Clicks

POSSIBLY the longest hop from one stand to another made by show veteran Edward Everett Horton will be the one which will take him from the Palm Springs Playhouse in California to Royal Poinciana Playhouse in Palm Beach, with "Not in the Book," which opens there Feb. 9, with either Ann Harding or Dorothy Stone . . . Did Sam Katzman step out of the "Stake-Out" TV series being filmed here to take on a theatrical film concerned with Fidel Castro? Several Hollywood companies have signified intent to make pictures about the Cuban revolution by registering title with Motion Picture Producers Title Registration Bureau. Not on the list was "Hi-Fidelity Castro."

Removal of Padding Helped

"A RAG, a Bone and a Ponytail," continues at Larry Tisch's Americana Hotel Bal Masque, but it is a fancier rag, a more meaty bone and a faster traveling ponytail than when it opened just before the holidays. The Sid Kuller-Selma Marlowe production was a rattling good bit of musical comedy in the original offering but it had about a half hour of needless padding.

Now that padding has been taken out and the sequence of acts adjusted, it's a lark from start to finish. The cast is the same — a solid collection of acts that have arrived but haven't yet been dubbed with stardom in the live variety field, such as the Blackburn Twins and Jerry Collins; Barbara Heller, whose impressions have been a click on television; Kay Cee Jones, who has had some success on records, Mara Lynn, Shirl Haven, Jack DeLeon, Mark Reddy, Skip Norman, Jay Salerno and others.

Best numbers are still "Funnel of Love" in which the whole cast indulges in a sophisticated switch of husbands and wives in the manner of "La Ronde;" a "Rainbow Blues" song interlude of great artistry — especially in the staging," and an atomic-paced "Celebrities on Parade" in which more than a score of impressions are done — also by the entire ensemble. "A Rag, a Bone and a Ponytail" is something different for the cafe goer — there's nary a dull moment in it.

Witch Way Now for Movie Muse?

WE'RE IN for a cycle of modern "witch" films since Dan Taradash did a splendid job on "Bell, Book and Candle." There's "Warlock," already in production at another studio, and now Robert Alda and Linda Christian have been signed for "Witchcraft." . . . Big Tubby Boots has taken on a big job at the Gaiety. He'll produce and star in the revues there . . . Sherry Britton may not want it known but she'll bring a brain into the Clover Club this week as well as a well-ordered body. She's been seen frequently on the legit stage.

Wonder whatever happened to Jane Bergmeier, once of the June Taylor Dancers? She's now Mrs. Mickey Manners, wife of the Singapore's entertainment director and has two children, Scott, 3, and Chris, 2 . . . Flip side of Cathy Carr's new hit, "First Anniversary," carries Ed "Harbor Lounge" Snyder's composition of "With Love." . . . Buzz and Frank Carroll — he's half of Carroll and Gorman, of the Martinique Hotel lounge — sold their Miami Beach home and hotel and moved to Miami.

'Auntie Mame' Prolongs Visit

FLORIDA STATE Theaters is having trouble evicting "Auntie Mame" from the Olympia, Beach and Gables Theaters, she has so many paying friends at the box-office — and so "Some Came Running," which was to have opened a run last week, will have to slow down until Wednesday.

Charles Chaplin has been invited to produce some movies in Russia. Not a remake of "The Dictator!" . . . Miamian George Campbell, who has been on Victor Borge's management staff for two years, has written a book about his travels called "You Won't Believe This." Why not "With Borge and Back?" . . . Jack Collins was keyboarding at Pit Lounge in Fort Lauderdale, but before you could say Pit Lounge he had opened at Robinson's Roost in Daytona.

Maestro to Conduct Own Work

MARIE GOODHART has been alerted to stand by for some more assignments in "Stake-Out," Screen Gems television series which is being filmed here. The Coronet model appeared in one produced by Sam Katzman late last year . . . Henry Levine, musical director of the Cavalcade of Stars band at the Deauville, has composed a work called "Flight 49." He will conduct when it is done at Bayfront Park on Friday night.

Ben Yomen has produced a musical play about two moon people on earth in search of the formula for peace in the Universe for the Miami Beach Community Singers. It will be premiered at Miami Beach Auditorium Feb. 22.

Comics Phil Ford and Mimi Hines have told us not to miss a car called the Mafia at the up-coming foreign and sports car show here. It has a hood under the hood and a .45 heater is standard equipment . . . Dancer-comedian Danny Windsor of the Red Carpet has a part in a coming Playhouse 90 musical called "The Lady and the Gambler," with Jane Powell featured . . . Ruben Gonzalez opens with his Latin-American band in the Mirage Room of the Sahara on Jan. 29.

SWITCH in a delinquency story is "Johnny Rocco" in which it is the father who, played by Stephen McNally, needs the reformation and Richard Eyer, the son, who tries to effect it. Film, in which James Flavin, center, is featured, opens Tuesday at Paramount, Coral and Colony.

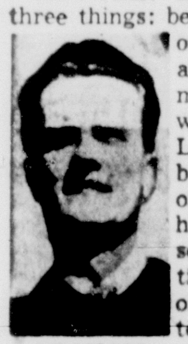
My Answer

With Help, Your Mate Can Change

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: My husband refuses to read the Bible; says it is for "women, children and ignorant people." How can I help him take a different attitude?

ANSWER: Let me suggest three things: be sure that your own life and example will commend the Bible which you read. Let your husband be aware of your ove for him. Let him see in you patience in time of aggravation; tenderness and sympathy for others; self control instead of a bad temper; an inner peace and happiness because of your faith in the living Christ. You can do none of these things in your own strength, but complete trust in Christ means personal salvation and it should also mean victorious living. Remember that the Holy Spirit dwells in us through faith and He enables us to live for the glory of God.



GRAHAM

In the second place, pray for your husband. That which you cannot possibly do yourself God can and will do. Finally, if after praying about it, you find an opportunity to do so, tell your husband what a joy and comfort the reading of the Bible can be. In it we learn of God's love for us; of His provision for our salvation from sin and of strength to live day by day.

In the Scriptures we find help for bearing trials, power to resist temptation, assurance of immortality and a consciousness of God's presence and love. Be sure that you neither argue with nor nag your husband. You have a difficult problem but God is far greater than any possible difficulty.

Dade Asks Collins for Flood Help

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Federal help for South Florida flood control could cost the state $11,000,000 during the next two years, a Dade County delegation told Gov. LeRoy Collins Monday.

Former House Speaker Ted David of Hollywood, spokesman for the group, said the federal government was ready to spend $8,000,000 on the project next year, and it would cost the state $5,500,000 or $11,000,000 for the biennium, to get all the federal funds.

Collins said "the chances are slim" the legislature would appropriate that much money, especially since it has only been shelling out some $3,500,000 a biennium up to now. But the governor had another suggestion for raising money for the project.

He said a greater contribution could be sought on a local basis from properties directly affected by the control program. He admitted, however, such a plan would not be well received in some quarters.

David assured Collins the delegation was not in Tallahassee to complain about the program up to now. He said they just wanted to make sure it didn't stop before it was finished.

He said since flood control started Dade has been contributing about two-thirds of the money.

"They have been patiently waiting in the bread line and they just want to be sure the bread doesn't run out," he said.

Most of the controversial part of the program lies between Miami and the huge Everglades area, the last part of the flood control project to be completed. The project includes completion of several canals, prevention of salt water intrusion, and reclaiming of land.

It has been feared the U. S. Corps of Engineers would pull out of the project because it thought this was merely reclaiming land. But County Engineer Frank Park assured Collins it was not.

Collins said he would send the flood control district director, Ed Dail, to meet with the commissioners to work out a program in Washington. He also said he would boost completion of the plan in the nation's capital.

$9,000,000 For Florida

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower asked congress Monday to appropriate $9 million to continue work on the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control project for the year ending June 30, 1960.

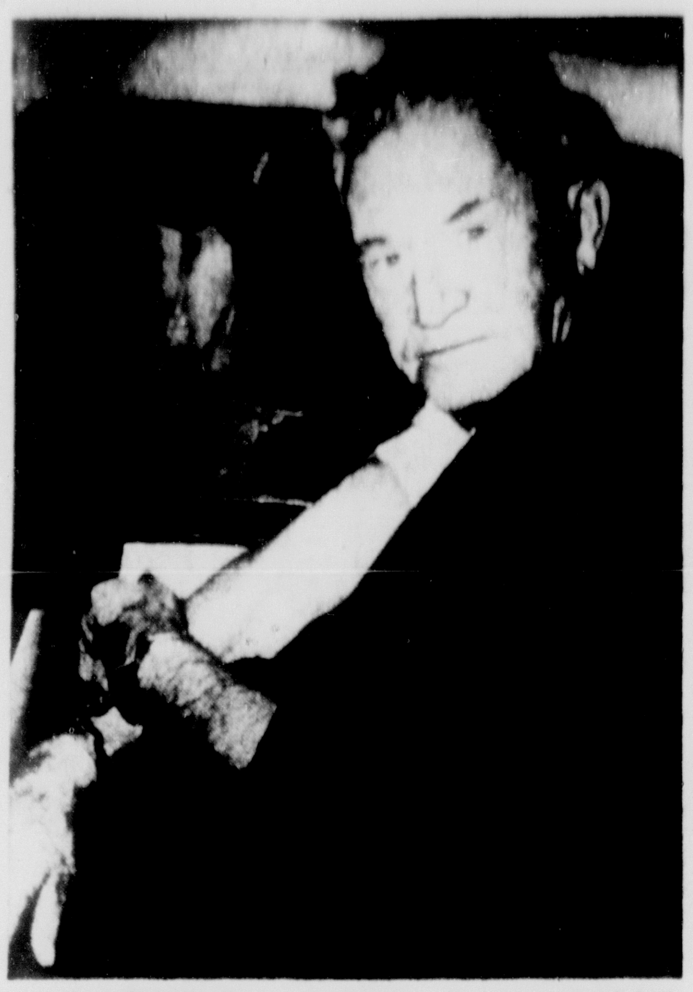
This is the largest annual appropriation ever approved by the White House for the project.

Work on the project began in 1950. The previous high was $8,750,000 for fiscal 1957.

Senator Spessard Holland also reported that the Interior Department had requested $607,000 for improvements in Everglades National Park. The money will be used largely on roads, trails and other improvements at Paradise Key and Flamingo.

Other public works appropriations requests for Florida in the 1960 budget include: $3,772,000 for continuation of construction of Tampa harbor; $1,183,000 for the harbor at St. Josephs Bay; and $1,130,000 for continuing dredging of the intra-coastal waterway.

The waterway is already 12 feet deep from Trenton, N.J. to Eau Gallie, and the project is designed to have a 12-foot depth all the way to Miami.



HANDCUFFED, Roscoe Galloway, 71, accused of killing his 68-year-old wife, sits in a police car at Orlando after deputy sheriffs foiled his attempt at suicide Sunday. They said Galloway shot and killed his wife with a .22 caliber rifle. He attempted a break for his nearby hardware store, where deputies found another gun hidden. Galloway was overpowered before he could obtain the gun.

Then Loses Her Nerve

Mom Turns Two Tots Into Human Torches

BARTOW —(UPI)— A 21-year-old mother, charged with trying to burn her two children to death because they were "interfering with her love life," told officers Monday she couldn't carry out the scheme after she heard their angonizing screams.

Mrs. Juanita Irene Hamil was charged with pouring gasoline over her children, aged 3 and 4, putting them in the bathroom, throwing a match on them and locking the door. The incident occurred Sunday at her home address as Iola, Kan., was charged on two counts of attempted murder and with adultery. Cabo, who was at work at the time, was charged with adultery and carrying a deadly weapon, a switchblade knife.

Mrs. Hamil, who said she had separated from her husband, Grover Hamil of Emmet, Ida., said she and Cabo decided Saturday they "could not tolerate the children any longer" and would return them to their father in Idaho.

But, she said, Sunday she did not think she could stand them another day. She said she splashed two gallons of gasoline on the children and on the floor.

After throwing the match on the tots as they stood in the bathroom, she locked the door and fled from the house, locking the front door behind her.

When she heard the children screaming, she lost her nerve and called for help. Two neighbors, J. Durwood Avery and his 16-year-old son, Durwood Porter Avery, broke both doors to rescue the children.
at nearby Polk City.

But when she heard their screams, she said she decided to find help and save their lives. Two neighbors broke down the door and rescued Sharon Kay, 4, and Olvin Vivian, 3.

Sharon Kay was in serious condition from burns over 25 per cent of her body. The little boy escaped with minor burns.

Polk County Sheriff Hagan Parrish said Mrs. Hamil said she set the children afire because they were "getting on my nerves" and interferring with her relations with William Ernest Cabo, 40, of Sieverville, Tenn., a 6-foot-5-inch pipe worker.

Mrs. Hamil, who gave her

1956 Perjury Case

Retrial of King May Open Today

BARTOW —(AP)— Three of the defendants in the highly publicized Harry King perjury case of 1956 face retrial in criminal court today.

The state indicated it would seek to bring King, 56-year-old former state senator from Winter Haven, to trial first. King received a five-year prison sentence following the first trial. He was granted a separate hearing for the retrial.

Other defendants are former Sheriff Pat Gordon and former deputy Sentell Monk.

Gordon, who also received a five-year term, was convicted with King of inducing two former deputies to give false testimony to a grand jury.

The deputies convicted of perjury were James L. Busbée and Rollie Arnold. They received two-year sentences along with Monk, who was convicted of conspiracy to commit perjury.

Busbee and Arnold won't face retrial. They pleaded guilty last week and await sentencing.

Concentrate Good Example

USDA to Continue Orange Research

LAKELAND —(UPI)— A U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist said Monday frozen orange juice concentrate has become a "classic example of what we can sometimes achieve with the right kind of new food product."

Dr. B. T. Shaw, administrator of the department's research service, spoke to more than 200 persons assembled here for the second annual Chemurgic conference sponsored by Florida Citrus Mutual and the National Council for Agricultural and Chemurgic Research.

Shaw said the agriculture department expects to continue at its laboratory at Winter Haven "the research needed by southern citrus growers and processors."

He said, "We also expect to increase basic research essential for future improvements and expansion of citrus utilization."

He reported that the Winter Haven laboratory had investigated the effects of storing frozen concentrate at various temperatures and that it is necessary that it be kept at below-zero temperatures if quality is not to suffer.

The Florida citrus industry has been concerned for some time over the possibility of concentrate being harmed by improper handling in retail stores.

Shaw also reported that the department is seeking to stimulate milk sales by finding a more convenient, attractive and stable whole-milk product. He said it is seeking to develop a dry, whole-milk in powdered form which could be reconstituted by addition of water.

Earlier, James Q. du Pont, administrative assistant with the du Pont Company of Wilmington, Del., said in a luncheon address free enterprise must always prevail in this country if progress is to go onward.

Polaris Test Flight A 'Success'

CAPE CANAVERAL — (UPI) — A pint-sized polaris missile shot into space like a howitzer shell Monday on an 800-mile test flight which happy Navy officials described as "fully successful."

It was the first time a Polaris test vehicle of operational shape and size had behaved properly. The missile, shaped like a bowling pin, is designed for firing from submarines lurking along enemy coastlines. It is scheduled to be combat-ready late in 1960.

The solid-fuel propellant of the 28-foot-long rocket ignited at 10:52 a.m. EST and the Polaris leaped into the warm, clear sky as if fired from a cannon. The launching was in sharp contrast to the gradual, almost ponderous liftoff of liquid-fuel missiles.

New Road Maps Due for State

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— The format of the State Road Department's official road map is being changed for the first time since 1955, executive director Ralph Davis said Monday.

The contract for the new maps has been awarded to Robinson's Inc., of Orlando on a low bid of $94.65 per thousand, or slightly more than 9½ cents per map.

The department has been buying the maps since 1955, when bids last were taken, for $58.47 a thousand, or about 6 cents each. Davis said the improvements in the new map added to rising costs of printing generally were responsible for the increase in price.

Betty Grable—A Portrait of Her at 42

'I'm not the glamorous type,' says Betty Grable
. . . who's in Miami for four weeks

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

Celebrity Parade

"Sorry to have kept you waiting," Betty Grable said in a voice known to millions of movie-goers — a voice that had a slight early-morning-frog note, for she had arrived the night before by train from California.

". . . but I was up late last night. Oh, that train trip nearly killed me . . . oh, I don't fly," she said. "I have a funny feeling about it." Even during World War II when Betty Grable was the darling of the armed forces, their favorite Pin Up Girl, she took trains when she visited training camps.

Betty has leased a Palm Island house for 4 weeks while she fulfills a three-week Latin Quarter engagement. She loves the view from the picture window.

Doesn't she have the sunshine-waterfront scene in her state? "Yeah, but with a smog. And it's not on the water like this — you know? This is wonderful," and she almost sighed the words as she smiled her famous smile. "It's like going from soot to clean."

* * *

DOES SHE LOOK HER AGE? Well, first you have to find out that age. And Betty is not talking. (Reference books list her age as 42.)

"No, I don't tell my age. What woman does? To begin with, they wouldn't believe me, if I did." But she constantly refers to her movies (which she's never seen) as "a long time ago," without a trace of false pride.

The Grable skin is unbelievably smooth, a little lax at the chinline — no, not a double chin, but rather thick around the vocal chords, like many singers. She had on "the eyelashes" for photographs, blue eye shadow on lids of deep blue eyes, and a beauty mark on one cheek. Her platinum hair was pulled back in a pony tail.

Betty wore dungarees, well-tapered, with a matching striped top. Her figure would make a teenager today envious. No diet, she says, and, except for rehearsing, no exercise. "It's just luck that it didn't turn to flab."

She's friendly and fun to talk with.

"Yes, I always dress like this at home. I'm not the glamorous type. On the stage I love to do all the glamorous stuff — the jewelry and the costumes." She shrugged. "But that's on the stage."

She stopped abruptly. "Ohhh, look!" she said and jumped up from the sofa. "The man's FISHING. That's my favorite pastime. I've never been deep sea, but I've fished on lakes and rivers. I'm the type who can sit all day. I have the patience."

This is her way of talking — rather fast, down to earth about anything she sees and often drawing it into the talk with a voice as small and intimate as though she's showing you a new born kitten.

* * *

SHE'S A WOMAN summed up by Adela Rogers St. John as "tough as a top sergeant, steady as a rock and shrewd as a Washington taxi driver."

Miss Grable admits to being "lazy" and a "poor businesswoman." But she's a keen judge of her own talents.

She took a suspension once for refusing a dramatic role. "I was sincere. Here I'm trying to tell them how I feel and I'm crying and they say, 'Of course, you can do it, just cry — exactly what you're doing now.' I tried to tell them that I wasn't acting THEN, that THAT was completely different."

Once during suspension, when she lost $50,000 in salary, a James horse came in to win a $100,000 purse. She and husband trumpeter Harry James own a money-making race horse farm in the San Fernando Valley. Their home is in Beverly Hills.

* * *

WHAT ABOUT the James children — Vicki, 14, a Beverly Hills High student, and Jessica (Jesse James, 11, a Beverly Hills Catholic School student?

"They don't take lessons. There's a piano if they're interested . . . No, they haven't taken dancing lessons . . . I think dancing is the greatest thing in the world for a girl, but I'm not going to force lessons . . .

"They're having a childhood that I didn't have — social life, high school. They're so BUSY."

* * *

IN SPITE OF her movie success, Miss Grable likes doing night clubs now. She started slightly over a year ago ("No more 5 a.m. calls to the studio," she says happily).

Miamians will see her for the first time here, although she was here for the movie premier of "Moon Over Miami."

"I love playing nightclubs," she said. "Especially where there are slot machines. I love to shoot dice, play blackjack . . . No, I'm not a big bettor, but I just like the excitement of it."

Future plans? She'd like to do television. "I think I'd be better off doing a series." And she'd like it to be with husband Harry, but not the Ozzie Nelson-type thing. "Me pushing a vacuum cleaner about might be going too far."

'We Give Our Children Love, But We Insist That They Mind'

Column with a Heart

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I too am a four foot, 11 inch mother like Column Reader. I have a son 14 and a daughter 10. I had the first lesson on how to make my children mind when he was six months old.

Being the first grandchild, he had two doting grandmothers. As soon as I saw they were spoiling him, I put my foot down. Thank goodness, my husband was on my side.

We became strict, and when we said no, we meant it. We give our children all the love and affection any two parents can give their children, but we insist they mind.

Today my son is five feet seven, but he still respects this small hand of mine.

I am a working mother, not for pleasure, but out of necessity, and both children have their chores. When my husband and I get home at night, the beds are made, house straightened up, dusted, ash trays emptied and table set.

When I started to work a year ago, I explained to the children the importance of my working, and asked for their help. They have been wonderful.

Our rule is to be firm but give love and understanding with it. If they break something and it was an accident, pick up the pieces and forget it. If it was broken out of spite, punishment that they dislike works wonders.

Columns' Readers's children are young and can be taught to mind.

Start Child's Discipline Early

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

My thanks to Sister Mary for giving me the incentive to write this letter. I was told that you can start discipline as early as six months and I did. My daughter is now 26 months old and all I have to do is say no.

Of course, sometimes I have to smack her hands, and sometimes she gets it on the bottom, but she hasn't gotten a complex yet!

As Sister Mary says, a child has to cry instead of doing for itself as we do. When mine cried, I changed her. If she still cried, I fed her. I never got exasperated in front of her as though she were an imposition.

My sister-in-law, mother of five, had an operation and I filled in until her mother came down. I told them that if I had to speak more than once, I wouldn't come after them empty handed. They were almost angels, and we had fun.

I have another sister-in-law who's a nervous wreck. Once I counted 23 times that she begged, threatened and pleaded with her kids before they came in.

I never pitched a screaming tantrum, stamped my feet or said no to my mother because I knew better.

You can't tell a mother about her Little Iodine or Dennis the Menace, but maybe some will take a hint reading this column.

HAPPY MOTHER

Eleanor Hart.

Painting Display Brings Many

"A THING OF BEAUTY is a joy forever" the exhibition of paintings of Dr. Newman Hoopingarner, at the Little Gallery, on Simonton St. Watercolor landscapes, seascapes, and scenes of Hawaii are exquisitely treated.

The impact of the collection is in the realism of the beauty and treatment of the subject. Still life and portraits are done in oils. A favorite selection was "Caffe Espresso," and a small charmer, "Isabella's Teddy Bear."

Receiving the guests who attended the reception which opened the show were Mrs. Hoopingarner and her mother, Mrs. Eugene Barzizza of Turin, Italy. Mrs. Booth Chilcutt was at the punch bowl.

The floral arrangements were the work of Mrs. Hoopingarner, who took instruction in flower arranging while in Hawaii. An elegant grouping of red carnations reposed in an usabata, which the artist brought from Japan. It is an interesting vase, carved of wood, and is used only for formal floral displays.

Chill breezes did not discourage art lovers and among guests were Mrs. and Mrs. J. P. Baillod, Ben and Evelyn Freer, Col. anl Mrs. Herbert E. Pace, Mrs. Charles Stephan, Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Frank O'Rourke, Capt. and Mrs. Sam Loomis, Lt. and Mrs. Robert Boyd, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur Errion, Dr. and Mrs. C. N. Taylor, and Dr. and Mrs. Albert R. Osterlee.

Booth Chilcutt was busy taking movies of the show, and Rose (Mrs. Bernard) Frank was telling of the beauties of the orchid show.

Also in the crowd were Dr. and Mrs. Kenneth A. Parmelee, Dr. and Mrs. William R. Moore, the Sheldon Smiths, Ginny (Mrs. W. H. Truesdell), Capt. and Mrs. John Hyde, Mrs. P. J. Ross, Capt. and Mrs. George Reinhart and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Palmer of Stockton, N.Y.

Tavernier Minister Resigns

By CAROLYN V. COHEN
Herald Correspondent

UPPER KEYS — Members of Burton Memorial Methodist Churst at Tavernier, reluctantly accepted the resignation of Rev. A. F. Eggleston who, for reasons of health, could no longer carry the burden of this growing congregation.

MRS. COHEN

He will be remembered for starting construction of the new church which, when finished, will be one of the finest buildings.

"Happy birthday to us" will be the theme when members of Tavernier Fire Department Auxiliary hold their annual dinner on Jan. 27. This is a different kind of party, because the firemen cook and serve the meal . . . and wash the dishes, too.

Don't miss the fourth annual Rumpus dance at the Elks Club Jan. 31. It's sponsored by the BPODoes, Florida Keys Drove 117.

Visitors to Islamorada include Francis Jack, Agricultural Attache' stationed in Lima, Peru and his wife Mila, formerly engaged in research in the biology department of University of Florida.

An interesting person is Mrs. Max O'Day, visiting Islamorada from her home in Orange, N.J. She knew the horror of both Hitler and Russian regimes. Max was a GI when he met and married her in Germany.

John O. Ellis, sales manager of Fabic Tractor Co., St. Louis, is visiting his brother, Jerry, in Islamorada. With him is Vince Micatto, St. Louis contractor and Wetzlar Harness, Republican National Committeeman.

Everyone is invited to the songfest Jan. 24, at 7:30 p.m. at Burton Memorial Church. Old and new songs will be sung under leadership of Carl King. They hope to make this a regular event.

The Walter McCoys plan a three-month visit with the Harold VanDecars, at Tavernier. Walter is a retired executive of the R. C. Mahon Co, Detroit.

Congratulations to new officers of San Pedro Altar Society. They are President Lorraine Clifford; First Vice President Eunice Pilinski; Second Vice President Jane Harte; Recording Secretary Rita Sheehy; Corresponding Secretary Peggy Frins; and Treasurer Helen Chasteen. All were installed at a dinner at the Rod and Reel Motel, Key Largo.

Best wishes also to Dr. Fred T. Bond, Tavernier, recently installed as president of Florida Upper Keys Chamber of Commerce at the annual banquet meeting.

Adult classes at Coral Shores are underway. Many courses are being offered so check and see if one of them isn't just what you've been waiting to attend.

The ribs and chicken barbecue was so well attended on Saturday night at Tavernier fire house that, by popular request, there will be another on Feb. 7.

Margaret Frins, Tavernier, had a surprise on her birthday when son, Joe, stationed at Port St. Joe, arrived.

The Steve Dombeks and sons, Stevie and Scotty, are back in Tavernier from that cold, cold Michigan.

Also warming up from blustery Chicago are Helen and Dagne Johnson, again in residence at their lovely Tavernier home. And, the Frank Lenz, St. Charles, Mo., are escapes from cold, snow, sleet and fog and home again on Key Largo.

Welcome to all of our winter friends.

Tea Time

"It's going to be lovely," say Mrs. J. S. Salisbury, Mrs. Eugene Howerdd and Mrs. Lloyd Netto as they discuss plans for the Junior Museum Guild's organizational tea to be held today at the home of Mrs. Frank A. Bateman, Banyan Rd., Palm Beach. —Photo by Oscar G. Owen

Williams Takes Audience On Tour of Adolescence

By HELEN VAN HOY SMITH
Herald Correspondent

PALM BEACH — No greater interpreter of the "long, long thoughts of youth" has been seen or heard in Palm Beach than Emlyn Williams.

The distinguished actor and author gave readings from "A Boy Growing Up," by Dyland Thomas, at the Society of the Four Arts Sunday. His appearance ushered in the Sunday evening series which Mary Howes and John Lane will present this season.

Williams' consummate art has discipline, precision, and finish. With gesture, facial expression and vocal nuance, he took his enthralled audience on a pilgrimage into the joys and agonies of adolescence.

Appearing alone on the stage, assisted only by clever lighting and use of shadows, William was a handsome and striking figure with his youthful face and silky white hair.

But you soon forget Emlyn Williams and remember only the boy growing up in a Welsh village and going to London at the age of 17, a cocky boy with dreams, wonder, discernment and a fragile imagination.

Sunday night's capacity audience saw not only a celebrated actor but one equally distinguished as playwright and director.

Probably his best known plays are murder story, and "The Corn is Green," in which he played two years in London with Dame Sybil Thorndyke.

Next event in the Mary Howes series will be Maurice Chevalier in "An Evening with Maurice Chevalier, on March 1; followed on March 14-16 by Katharine Cornell and Brian Aherne in "Dear Liar."

Mr. Husinski is a 1955 graduate of Notre Dame, and received his Master's degree from the University of Illinois in 1958. He is a member of the Knights of Columbus. He served two years in the Army and is now athletic director and head coach at St. Ann's High School.

Allison, area chairman for the annual March of Dimes drive, has announced the three chapters of Beta Sigma Phi in Belle Glade and Pahokee will again conduct the Mother's March on Polio, which will be held simultaneously throughout Palm Beach County on Jan. 29. She'll Run Fabrics Shop Just For Fun

By GWEN HARRISON

If Palm Beach doesn't see much of Mrs. Briggs Cunningham this season there's a reason . . . Midas only knows she doesn't need another dollar, but she's just opened a fabrics shop, upholstery and dress materials, in Southport, Conn . . . it's opposite the swank Pequot Yacht Club, of which she and her husband are members (among a dozen or so other swank clubs) and it's called the Ivy Annex . . . asked why the shop she says, "Something to do" . . . her daughter Lucie (Mrs. Stewart) McKinley who lives in nearby Greenfield Hill, Conn., for a couple of years has been running a maternity shop in the fashionable Westport . . .

Two Men Come A-Wooing

Miss Astor has been dating Kenneth Hawks, a young movie producer and director and was now away from Hollywood on location.

By MARY ASTOR

One In a Series

On Friday evening Kenneth appeared loaded down like Santa Claus, with flowers and candy and a portable phonograph and records. It required no very great perception to see that had come a-wooing! And I was worried.

That night, during the waits between scenes, we sat in my tent dressing room wrapped in blankets and played the little phonograph.

He had chosen the records well, for the right mood and atmosphere — records like "In a little Spanish Town" and "My Heart Stood Still." But as we listened to the music and talked, I tried desperately to forestall the question that I knew was coming.

I admired Kenneth; I knew that he was thoroughly decent and honest, and I could not have him loving me under an illusion that I was something that I was not.

I didn't know how to go about telling him. But I knew I had to say it so he could change his mind before he committed himself. Finally I just told him. I told him of the long, desperate affair with Jack.

He was shocked, there was no doubt about it. He had been so completely unprepared for it. In his eyes I was sweet and virginal; no doubts or suspicions of me had ever entered his mind.

But he told me he loved me for being honest with him, and we said no more about it during the rest of the night. We sat there listening to the records between scenes until he left at about two-thirty in the morning (we worked until three).

Over the weekend I heard nothing from him. But on Tuesday he phoned me; he had checked with the studio and found we were finishing, and he said he would be down to drive me home.

On the way back we stopped in Santa Ana for dinner. We sat down at the table, and Kenneth didn't say much for a few minutes. I held my breath. I knew it was coming, and I thought I knew what it would be.

"Nothing that's happened can make any difference," he said. "Please, will you marry me?"

And then I found that I couldn't answer him. In the light of my too casual romances of the past months how could I trust myself?

* * *

After months of indecision, she decided to marry Kenneth Hawks. The ceremony took place in February.

We left on the Sante Fe at six o'clock. We sat in our drawing room and lived through the day all over again, and laughed at all the things that had happened. And everything was just the same, except that we were married. We couldn't quite believe it; we had been engaged for 13 months.

But later I lay in my berth in my beautiful satin and lace bridal nightgown and stared out at the blackness, watching the points of light of distant houses and hearing the descending scale of minor tones from the crossroad signals, and wondered. Because Ken had simply kissed me good night very tenderly and gone to bed in the upper berth. Well, I thought, we were tired. A bit tearfully I went to sleep.

Our honeymoon was a whirlwind of laughter and activity. But for me it was sheer frustration; every night Ken had simply kissed me affectionately and gone quietly to bed.

It was somehow not a subject Ken and I could discuss freely. He possessed a kind of natural delicacy that seemed inviolable. In our own relationship we were happily comfortable and completely intimate, but I clearly sensed the existence of an intangible line that I could not, and did not want to, cross over.

I think now that it would have been much better if we had brought the entire matter out into the open and I could have explained to him the tension and repression I was suffering. It would have prevented a good deal of future unhappiness.

My marital relations with Ken were, in effect, non-existent; their infrequent occurrences were brief and unsatisfactory.

I understood when his headaches made him feel too sick even to talk, but I could not understand when he was well and just fell asleep while I lay awake with my face buried unhappily in the pillow.

* * *

MY FRUSTRATIONS found a partial outlet in the racy conversations and anecdotes on the set; this I accepted without concern, but when I found myself attracted to Russell Bradbury, one of the Fox executives, I felt the beginning of alarm.

Mr. Bradbury was quite willing to recognize and respond to my obvious interest; he regarded Ken as a dull sort of man, too preoccupied with work and golf to have any talent or inclination for romance, even with his wife. He began a pursuit, which I resisted with all my very small might.

The thought of infidelity to Ken appalled me; I could not believe that I was so abandoned that I could deceive a man I loved and respected.

And so I started lying to my diary; I knew that Ken would never look at any private paper or document of mine, but I had memories of Mother leafing through the papers in the drawers of my desk.

Even so, I was tormented by the guilt of treachery and deception. I told myself that I felt better physically for my deceit, that I was more relaxed, and freed from the intolerable frustrations of physical craving. I reminded myself that this affair was being conducted in the very upper brackets of "sophistication," that it was all very "high-level" indeed.

But ultimately I had to face realization that I was pregnant and that an abortion is an abortion.

I gave Ken the carefully prepared double talk that I hoped would answer his "But how could you be pregnant?" Since we had agreed that it was "too soon to have children" and (Seizing on the words I had heard so often at home) "my career should come first," I determined to undergo a curettage.

This too was accomplished according to all the canons of "good taste"; I went to a properly exclusive establishment that committed such crimes under the fiction of "therapeutic treatment."

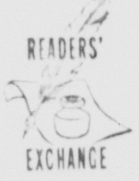
How To Hit the Nail On Head--Not Finger

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer



Ouch. It hurts just thinking about it. Bet you do it, too.

Whenever you start to drive a tack into the wood, it sometimes seems suddenly to become human and turn to one side. Result? A dented finger. Well, they ought to make those tack heads bigger, anyway — about 8 inches or so.

But here's a tip that will help.

Push the tack through the end of a soda straw. It will hold it firmly upright. Then when the tack has been started, just pull the straw free.

Or else, ask your husband to do the tacking.

What Removes That Fungus?

Mrs. H. F. of Coral Gables is the outdoor type. Lots of fresh air, wide open spaces and all that sort of thing. And lots of fungus.

Oh, not on HER, you understand. But her outdoor furniture has fungus. And she wants no part of it.

"Please tell me what will remove mildew or fungus from outdoor concrete furniture," she writes.

Judging from people who have telephoned about this problem, this is a common one in this area — "the home of outdoor living," as a glib ad man once said. For the concrete tables with bright umbrellas and benches are common sights beside many a backyard barbecue pit.

His Briefcase Needs Cleaning

Don't look now, but there's a man in the crowd. And he's a coward, too. Asked his WIFE to write Readers' Exchange about his problem, instead of facing up to the whole thing himself.

Shame, shame.

But to the problem. He'd like to know what will remove dirt and grime from his leather briefcase.

"He's an insurance man and carries the case every day, so it gets pretty dirty-looking," writes his wife. "And it's much too expensive to buy a new brief case every few months. What can we do to clean it? It's genuine leather."

Any genuine answers?

Disreputable looking tennis shoes may be great for eccentric millionaires (including crooners), but they're rather corny for nice people. Toss your canvas, rubber-soled sneakers in with the washing machine load, and you'll be amazed at how fine they'll look.

12 New Residents Arrive In Melbourne Area Each Day

By BILL BUNGE
Melbourne Brueau Chief

MELBOURNE — every time the clock ticked off 24 hours during the last 10 years, the Melbourne-Eau Gallie area gained about a dozen new citizens.

So, for the 3,650 days that were spent since 1948, the twin-city area had approximately 39,000 prsons move in and settle down.

People here who like to play around with figures came up with thsoe statistics from the latest report made by C. B. Ruskins, Melbourne-Eau Gallie area manager, on the number of Florida Power and Light Co. meters installed since '48.

Hoskins aid the company had 2,722 light meters in 1948, and at the end of last year this total hit a record 13,876, gaining 11,154 during the period. He said the company figures about 3.5 persons per meter.

However, when the meters are used to establish population growth they should give a minumum fighre, because the Capehart and Wherry housing projects at Patrick Air Froce base have a single master meter.

This means, he said, that instead of figuring 3.5 persons to a meter there, some 1,500 families would be involved.

But the light meter yardstick method of figuring population appears to produce figures slightly higher than other estimates. Adding the 39,000 new folks comingin since 1948 to the 9,000-odd citizens already here makes a total of 48,000. Previous gueese were 45,000 people.

The slight variation in estimates, it is pointed out, comes from the vact that no two estimaters use excatly the same boundry lines when setting up the Melbourne-Eau Gallie area.

Although it is figured that nearly 12 people came here daily since 1948, here is another set of figures that show how it looked on an annual basis.

For 1947-48, three new people arrived for a total of 1,242 e periodd ; urhigntep-e tor for the period; during the periods of 1954-55 and 1955-56, eight per day and 2,919 each year; 1956-57 30 per day, 11,161 for the year, and 1957-58, 14 a day and 5,033 for the period.

Ireland's De Valera Ends Reign

DUBLIN —(UPI)— Premier Eamon de Valera formally agreed Monday to run for president on the ruling Fianna Fail Party ticket and thus end a reign of power which began in 1932 and was broken only once.

DE VALERA

The New York-born Irish patriot accepted the nomination for the presidency, an office which is little more than a title, at a meeting of his party.

He is expected to have little or no trouble winning the election, to be held in June, in which his only opponent will be Gen. Sean McEoin, also a hero of the Irish fight against the British 40 years ago.

Members of de Valera's party said the premier, 77 and plagued by failing eyesight, was the natural choice to replace the current president, Sean T. O'Kelly, onetime second man in de Valera's government.

Chemurgic Parley Opens

LAKELAND — (P) — The southeastern Chemurgic Conference opened a two-day meeting here Monday to study new uses for Florida agricultural products.

Several scientists and officials who are seeking to expand commercial utilization of the state's crops, especially citrus, were to speak.

Officials Probe Hotel Fire Ruins

STUART — Fire Marshall A. M. Willis of Miami and Stuart Fire Chief Milton Griffin combed the wreckage of the still smoldering ruins of the Commodore Hotel Monday looking for the cause of the fire. Meanwhile funeral plans were completed for the two fire victims who lost their lives there Saturday morning.

Donald (Danny) Brice, 50, an exercise boy at the St. Lucie training track located near here, and a famous jockey 30 years ago, died when he jumped from the second floor of the Commodore Hotel.

His body will be sent by Johns Funeral Home to Louisville, Ky. for services and burial.

Survivors include his mother Mrs. Mary Reynolds Brice of Carbondale, Pa., and a brother John of Louisville. He was born in Brooklyn.

Services for the second fire victim, George William Jackson, 31, who tended bar at the hotel, will be held Saturday at 11 a.m. at Johns Funeral Home chapel, with the Rev. Foster Holt of Jensen Beach officiating.

Mr. Jackson was born in Bedford, Pa., was a machinist by trade and a veteran of World War Two.

Survivors include his wife Margaret of Cleveland, three daughters, Kathleen, age eight; Gail, age six; Carla, age four and a son George, Jr., age three, a sister Mrs. Howard Kaplin of Cleveland and three brothers James and Robert of Cleveland, and Orville, of Bedford, Ohio and Mr. Jackson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert F. Jackson, of Jensen Beach, who owned the Murdock Cottages for a number of years.

Veteran Of Spanish War Dies

STUART — James Paul Burnette, 88, a Spanish American War veteran, died Monday at Martin County Hospital. He had been a resident here for 17 years, and was a retired railroad man.

He was born in Iowa, and lived in Jensen Beach and Rio prior to moving to Stuart.

Mr. Burnette was a charter member of the Stuart Flotilla No. Nine, Division Five, Seventh Coast Guard auxiliary district.

A member of the Masonic lodge for 50 years, he was active in Civil Defense here during World War one.

Survivors include his sister Mrs. Lulu Burton of Cleveland who has made her home recently with Mr. Burnette, and a niece in Rio. Johns Funeral Home will announce arrangements.

How Ike 'Played Housewife' With Budget

By DON OBERDORFER
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower administration huffed and puffed, but the cussed thing still wouldn't balance.

So the budget makers resorted to some tricks, the kind a wife might use to concoct a sample family budget to impress her husband.

Here's how they "balanced" it:

1—They had promised the International Monetary Fund a new subscription of $1,370,000,000. This would have thrown the new budget completely out of whack.

So the President in his budget message Monday asked Congress to give him the money right now, in a fiscal year that is already badly in the red.

This is like rushing out to buy that new TV set before the month is over, so it won't show up on the next month's budget.

Secretary of the Treasury Robert Anderson says the administration is eager to get the money in the old budget year because it promised to "expedite" this thing. The money will be used by the international fund to help stabilize soft currencies.

* * *

2—The administration is selling off 620 million dollars in certain government assets.

"This is like an individual selling off 100 shares of stock to take care of an expensive operation on his wife," explains Budget Bureau Director Maurice Stans.

In the old fiscal year the government sold only 100 million of these assets in this way, so it is really financing 520 million of expenditures by selling the assets.

Don't worry — the government isn't planning to sell the White House or the Washington Monument to balance the new budget.

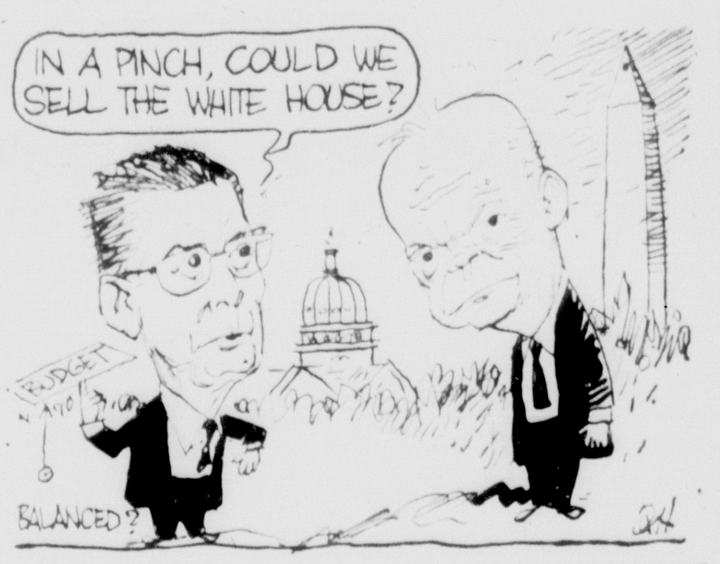
The assets to be sold are loans in the portfolio of the Export-Import Bank, mortgages held by the Federal National Mortgage Association and bonds held under the college housing program.

* * *

3—The budget-makers made a deep cut in the allowance for contingencies, which is like slashing your budget allowance for pin money.

Last year the budget men included 300 million dollars as a general contingency allowance, plus a 500 million contingency allowance for defense. In the new budget, the contingency allowance is only 100 million.

If you charge the monetary fund money to the new fiscal year instead of the old, and hold the sales of assets and the contingency allowance to the old year's level, the Eisenhower 1960 budget would be $2,490,000,000 in the red.



IN A PINCH, COULD WE SELL THE WHITE HOUSE?

Traveler's Finances To Suffer

Gasoline, Airline Hikes Suggested

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The traveling American is in for a jolt in the pocketbook if tax proposals submitted Monday by President Eisenhower are approved by Congress.

The president asked for:

A 50 per cent boost (from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon) in federal tax on auto gasoline.

A 50 per cent boost (from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon) in the tax on aviation gas.

A new 4½ cents a gallon tax on jet fuel.

And the President made it clear he feels the individual air traveler should pick up the tab for the aviation fuel levies.

"I believe it fair and sound that such taxes be reflected in the rates of transportation paid by the passengers and shippers," Eisenhower said in his budget message.

In effect, this is an "invitation" to the Civil Aeronautics Board to raise airline fares so that the taxes (if approved by Congress) will be passed on to the traveler.

How much of a fare increase this would mean (if the CAB went along with the President) could not be determined immediately.

Some informed sources guessed it would take a five to six per cent fare boost to compensate for the taxes recommended by the President.

HECTOR

Eisenhower's thinking on passing on the taxes runs directly contrary to suggestions offered by CAB Chairman James R. Durfee and Member Louis J. Hector of Miami.

They have suggested that the way to fill seats on the huge jet airliners is to attract new passengers by lowering fares.

There has been a great debate in aviation circles over the problem of a large increase in seating capacity coming in with the use of jet aircraft.

The additional levies would come on top of the 10 per cent tax on domestic travel which has been in effect since during World War II.

It costs travelers an extra 10 cents for every $1 worth of airplane, railroad or bus ticket he buys.

And Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson made it clear in a briefing on the budget that the administration would strenuously oppose any move to repeal the travel tax this year.

Highest Budget Is Based Upon Recovery Hopes

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower Monday submitted to an already questioning Congress a massive, precariously balanced budget totaling 77 billion dollars.

Heavy on defense allocations in an era of continuing Communist threats, this is the administration's proposed spending chart for the 1960 fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Never in peacetime has so big a budget been laid before the legislators at the opening of a new session. A year ago, Eisenhower proposed what was then a record peacetime budget just short of 74 billions.

But the recession sent government income down and spending up. So the spending figure for the present fiscal year ending June 30 now is estimated at nearly 81 billions.

And the half billion dollar surplus anticipated a year ago has turned into a deficit of almost 13 billions for the 1959 fiscal year. The estimated deficit is up nearly 700 millions since September.

Eisenhower told Congress it must raise the permanent limit on the national debt to 285 billions and provide a temporary limit even higher than that. The current temporary debt ceiling is 288 billion. It is due to drop to 283 billion next June 30.

The new budget is a bare 70 million dollars in the black. But it is what Eisenhower called a responsible, confident, positive, attainable budget, backed by glowing prospects of "continued vigorous economic recovery."

Over and over, he sounded that recovery refrain.

The budget counts on tapping taxpayers for a record sum while dangling before them a hope of tax reductions in the uncertain future.

The measure holds out promises to enhance domestic well-being and to protect personal savings and incomes from erosive inflation.

Yet it also calls for higher gasoline taxes that surely would be passed on to the consumer, and for another boost in postal rates. If Congress goes along—and it isn't at all sure that Congress will—the federal gas tax will jump from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon and it probably will cost a nickel instead of four cents to mail a letter.

Eisenhower said three dollars of every five in the budget—a total of $45,805,000,000 out of $77,030,000,000—must go to keeping the U.S. military structure ready to meet any threat with weapons operating from the bottom of the sea and through the fringes of space.

Key members of Congress questioned in advance whether the budget would carry enough money for defense. The total is down 315 millions from the current year's expenditures for the Defense Department, atomic energy, stockpiling of strategic materials, and military aid to allies.

For the Defense Department alone, the spending figure is up 145 millions, to a total of $40,850,000,000. Some Democrats and a number of Republicans on Capitol Hill have criticized sums of that size as inadequate.

In contrast with last year's budget message, this new 30,000-word document speaks of a persisting rather than a growing military danger from the Communist world.

But it all but calls a halt on continued whittling down of military manpower. It places less emphasis on planes and more on missiles — some 800 million dollars more.

It proposes to push spending for scientific research and space development to a record level. Eisenhower mentioned a million-pound thrust engine, and a nuclear rocket engine.

Expenditures for the Atomic Energy Commission also are expected to hit a record high of $2,700,000,000, with development and production of nuclear weapons kept at high levels.

No new funds are requested for testing such weapons in the

Hits 'Thrift by Drift'

Democrats Inherit Another Crisis--Adlai

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Adlai E. Stevenson said Monday President Eisenhower's policy of "thrift by drift" was partly responsible for America's "fat, dumb and happy" complacency toward Russia's determined Cold War challenge.

Stevenson

The greatest national need was "not to balance the budget but to wage peace," he said.

The next 10 years, Stevenson added, would "really prove" whether the American system of democratic government could match the rigid, dedicated communistic threat of Russia.

He said the prognosis was not good unless there was a change in America's "fatal addiction" to the short view and its unwillingness to face the facts.

The two-time presidential nominee of the Democratic Party told a jammed Woman's National Democratic Club luncheon audience that Americans today "fritter away their time on trivialities" in a "fatal addiction to the short view."

Contending the situation was "partly due to lack of leadership — guess where," he complained that "private satisfaction" received priority over "public necessity." More money was spent on entertainment than education, and on tobacco than on textbooks.

Stevenson said the Democrats seemed destined to come to power in times of crisis.

"We seem to be on the eve of inheriting another crisis," he said.

He said the Democratic Party apparently was the only party neither "afraid of the facts nor afraid of the people knowing the facts," and aware that "freedom is not a soft option — can be had cheap."

He expressed confidence that once Americans are fully aware of the real danger to a democratic system of government, there is nothing they will not be willing to do to meet the challenge.

Walkout Alert on At Pan Am

Contract Snagged Over Work Hours

By DOM BONAFEDE and DAN BROWN
Herald Staff Writers

Pan American World Airways ground personnel — including 3,000 in Miami and 1,500 at Cape Canaveral — were put on a strike alert Monday while union and management met in eleventh hour negotiations.

A walkout by members of the Transport Workers Union could cripple the world-wide airline — and seriously hamper the nation's missile research development program.

Union officials, who have been meeting with company representatives and a federal mediator in New York City for the past week, reported a "pushbutton" strategy setup has been devised to call a strike within 24 hours.

About 8,000 systemwide employes are employed in the dispute. The union is seeking higher wages, shorter hours and improved working conditions.

"We are waiting word from New York to walk out at any time," commented Art Hallgren, vice president of Miami Local 500, TWU.

The last union contract expired Dec. 1 and both sides have been meeting off and on since then.

Negotiations finally came to a climax a week ago and talks were pushed up to reach a new settlement.

In New York, a PAA spokesman said that the big issue was the union's demand for a cut in weekly working hours. He said TWU workers, presently on a 40-hour week, are seeking a 37½ hour week because of worker fears fewer ground crew members will be required when PAA starts using jet airliners on a big scale.

The union first asked for a 32-hour week but later reduced their demands.

"Strike standby" telegrams were sent to union members at all PAA installations Monday.

Meanwhile, company and union representatives settled a jurisdictional dispute which caused a sit down strike at the Cape Canaveral missile base last Friday.

The dispute involved the working requirements of PAA stock clerks.

Company officials termed the squabble a "misunderstanding."

Mercury Will Begin Climb Today

It'll be nice in Miami Tuesday, while folks in some parts of North Florida still shiver, the weatherman said.

The warm-up should spread throughout the state by Wednesday, he added.

"We'll be in the low to mid-70s here," Weatherman Philip Ackerman said.

"The outlook is nice, at least for the next few days. In the winter, you can't tell beyond that."

Parts of northernmost Florida will have temperatures in the 40s early Tuesday, warming up during the day.

There was scattered frost in North Florida Monday, but little or no crop damage, the Frost Warning Service said.

Dade escaped frost, Ackerman said, when the winds shifted from north to northeast.

Pakistan Aid Up

KARACHI — (AP) — Pakistan may get $226,850,000 in grants and loans from the U.S. during 1959, official sources said Monday. That would be $78,910,000 more than the amount received in 1958.

Pneumonia Puts Fidel In Sickbed

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Revolutionary Leader Fidel Castro has pneumonia and is running a high fever, his secretary said Monday night.

Castro was confined to his suite in the Havana Hilton Hotel during the weekend by an attack of influenza, but he continued to transact official business from his sickbed and to receive callers until late Monday.

His secretary, Mrs. Blanco de Poce, indicated the pulmonary complication may force him to curb his activities.

Asked whether the latest development would affect Castro's scheduled appearance at the mass rally scheduled for Wednesday, the secretary said the doctor planned to keep him abed until the last minute in an effort to enable him to attend, but that it was too early to state definitely that he would be there.

Before the disclosure of Castro's worsened condition was made, revolutionary "war crimes" trials were postponed or suspended throughout Cuba Monday.

Castro had announced he had invited five U.S. senators and five representatives to witness the trials. Most of those invited sharply rejected the bid.

Sen. George A. Smathers was among those who rejected the bid.

"As a longtime friend of your country," Smathers cabled the rebel chieftain, from Washington, "I have a deep and abiding interest in its affairs.

"However, no useful purpose can be served by my presence or my comments on this occasion.

"I think too much already has been said by individuals who at present know too little about what is going on in your country.

"I join . . . in prayers for forbearance and a sensible approach to many problems with which you are now confronted," Smathers cabled.

Sen. Wayne Morse, (D., Ore.), who has been severely critical of the executions of alleged "war criminals," and Sens. John Sparkman (D., Ala.), and Homer Capehart (R., Ind.) also rejected invitations.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D., N.Y.), one of the House members invited, planned to accept Castro's invitation. Powell, a Negro, has defended the new rebel regime. It was understood that he suggested some of the names of the congressmen invited by Castro.

Besides Smathers and Morse, other senators invited were Theodore Francis Green (D., R.I.), Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) and John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.).

Two House members invited indicated they might make the trip Wednesday.

Rep. Wayne Hays (D., Ohio) said: "I am free and I've got a bag." The office of Rep. Charles O. Porter (D., Ore.)

Government Readies Crusher

Anti-Austerity Strike Stymies Buenos Aires

BUENOS AIRES —(UPI)— A general strike against President Arturo Frondizi's drastic austerity program virtually paralyzed this city of nearly 6,000,000 inhabitants today. It was estimated that some 2,000,000 workers were idle.

With Frondizi off to the U.S. on an official visit, the government was reported ready to strike a crushing counter-blow to bring to an end the recurring labor troubles sparked by followers of ousted Dictator Juan D. Peron.

(President Frondizi flew into Charleston, S.C., Monday and is scheduled to arrive in Washington today.)

According to sources close to the government, both the Peronist Party — now known as the Justicialista or Social Justice Party — and the Communist Party will be outlawed, and the 62 pro-Peron labor unions which sparked the general stoppage will be placed under government commissioners.

The interior ministry admitted that the stoppage was almost complete and a government statement estimated daily losses at 25 million dollars.

Authoritative sources predicted, however, that the strike would be a failure politically because it goaded the government into adopting measures that may prove crippling to the Peronist opposition.

Indicative of the government's determination to curb the mounting political labor agitation, mass arrests, especially of labor leaders, continued throughout Monday.

City streets appeared almost deserted as no buses, trolley-buses, taxis or street cars were running. A few enterprising truck drivers tried to provide an improvised passenger service.

On the other hand, almost all government offices operated normally; all banks but two opened, and train service in and out of the city was reported normal. The armed forces have been in control of the railways since last Nov. 18, when workers who sought to paralyze them were mobilized into the armed services.

Acting under modified martial law in effect since Nov. 12, Argentina's 200,000 military personnel acted swiftly to maintain order and were reported in full control everywhere. Guards armed with machineguns stood at government buildings and strategic points.

Rights Official Found Dead

WASHINGTON — (AP) — J. Ernest Wilkins, 64, a member of the Civil Rights Commission, was found dead at his home here Monday, police reported.

The body of the attorney, one of two Negroes to hold a "little cabinet" post, was discovered by a maid when she reported for work Monday morning, Lt. Charles Burns of the homicide squad said.

Wilkins was assistant secretary of labor from 1954 to 1958, resigning last November.

U.S., State Decisions Identical

RICHMOND, Va. —(AP)— Virginia's legal barriers against racial integration, under which nine white schools have been shuttered since September, toppled Monday in the State Supreme Court.

The unappealable 5-2 decision brought the immediate prospect of some classroom race mixing before the Legislature can attempt to erect new blockades.

It also brought from Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. an expression of "faith in the ability and judgment" of the seven members of the state court, plus the announcement he will confer with other state leaders on the best course to take.

The state court opinion followed by minutes the decision of a three-judge federal court in Norfolk striking down the state law under which six Norfolk schools have been kept closed. The federal court said it wasn't attempting to tell Virginia — aside from state constitutional requirements — it had to operate public schools.

But as long as the state did operate such a system, it added, the closing of some of the schools, or even grades of the schools, violates the rights of a citizen to equal protection under the law.

The State Supreme Court, however, ruled that Virginia still was subject to a requirement of the state constitution to operate a public school system throughout the state.

This was the nub of the Almond administration's test of the so-called massive resistance laws before the court.

The court held the closure and state seizure violated a constitutional section vesting supervision of local schools in local school boards; that the governor has no authority to set up a substitute state school system; that the governor has no authority to close any schools in areas, or near areas, policed by federal forces, and that the Legislature's efforts to restrict state school funds to segregated schools are illegal.

The court then proceeded to throw out the school closing law which has been invoked in Norfolk affecting 10,000 pupils; Charlottesville, affecting 1,700, and Warren County High at Front Royal, 1,000. Almost all of the displaced pupils in Warren and Charlottesville have been attending makeshift private classes in churches and other community buildings. About 4,500 of the displaced Norfolk pupils are in private classes or tutoring groups.

Mikoyan Wins On Side Issues, Loses Big Ones

By ROBERT S. HOYT
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Anastas I. Mikoyan goes home to Russia today with half a loaf, which — he'd be the first to tell you — is better than none.

He and U.S. officials played footsie for days, with official conferences sandwiched in between the popping flash bulbs.

Not until Monday was it made completely clear by our State Department that we weren't giving an inch on his official requests for better trade conditions.

But the No. 2 Russian had the U. S. eating out of his hand all the varied side dishes he served up, everything but the main course.

With American businessmen he apparently built a fire which has our officials chanting: "Ruskie Go Home." Whiel he may have started public opinion thinking along lines that could ultimately result in more trade, he failed to accomplish what he himself said he came after.

He wanted three things:

Changing the rules so Russia could be extended long-term credit to buy in the U.S.

Favorable tariff conditions for U. S. S. R. goods coming here.

Changes in our policy of not allowing strategic goods to be sent behind the Iron Curtain.

Though he protested that the U. S. is "inflexible," the State Department told him curtly that "when conditions change policies will change," and that was that.

While he was given a reception that by all accounts was "friendly," there wasn't a day without either a public snub by a U. S. official who wouldn't be caught at a luncheon table with him or a picket line of Hungarians lurking around the corner.

Anastas did not come through the experience unscathed, but he gave better than he got, from the many sharp questioners he encountered.

And, in the process, he dropped a gem or two worthy of study by our experts:

ASKED ABOUT the migration from East to West Berlin, he suggested that such flights might be prompted more by a desire for a higher standard of living than by a thirst for freedom.

ASKED IF China's Mao Tse-tung was not the world's leading Communist theoretician, Mikoyan said: "He is as good a theoretician as he was."

ASKED ABOUT the truth of claims that Russia has an atomic-powered airplane, he said: "I have not tried to learn military secrets while here, and you should do likewise."

ASKED WHAT would happen if the U. S. used force to supply Berlin, Mikoyan said: "force meets with force, usually."

ABOUT former President Harry S. Truman, he remarked bluntly that "it is a good thing" he "is no longer in office." He said Truman "seems to fear the American people will have a better opinion of the Soviet Union." He said it was during Truman's administration that Russian-U. S. relations began to deteriorate.

AS FOR EISENHOWER, Mikoyan said he likes him "and the reason is clear." He didn't elaborate.

IN ANSWER to questions about the need of the U. S. and the U. S. S. R. to get along, Mikoyan declared himself in favor of peace. He had the audacity even to suggest that godly and ungodly materialism could live side-by-side in the world if leaders of both countries put their minds to it.

And so, as Anastas wings his way over the ocean, into the rising sun, he might well be framing the answers he will have for Premier Nikita Khrushchev about his journey.

He could tell his boss: "In Waukegan we killed 'em, but at the State Department we didn't do so good."

Cold Wave Cuts Into Midwest

CHICAGO —(AP)— A new cold wave knifed into the Midwest Monday. The eastward surge of Arctic air brought the threat of more snow in storm-buffeted areas of New York State and western Pennsylvania.

The Atlantic Seaboard northward to New England enjoyed a brief warmup in advance of the cold front.

Readings pushed into the 60s along the gulf from Texas to Florida. Houston and Brownsville, Tex., had temperatures in the 70s.

But portions of Minnesota and North Dakota shivered in sub-zero cold at midday. Overnight temperatures were expected to slide down to 20 below in Minnesota and Wisconsin and to near zero in Chicago.

New York State was a sea of snow. The fall, starting Friday and running into the weekend, ranged from 67 inches near Lake Ontario to 16 inches in northern New York and a trace in New York City.

A dozen deaths in New York State were attributed to exertion heart attacks or storm-connected accidents. Numerous motorists in western New York abandoned their cars in vaults of snow and ice.

Snow drifts three to four feet high blocked some roads in the Erie, Pa. area. Many rural schools remained closed because buses could not travel over the snow-clogged roads.

Snow flurries and occasional squalls with considerable blowing and drifting snow were on tap for the snow-plagued eastern Great Lakes region today.

Drifting snow also closed schools north of Muskegon, Mich., after 12½ inches of new snow fell in the area.

The new cold front extended from the Great Lakes across the Ohio Valley and into central Texas by midday Monday and was expected to spread into the middle and North Atlantic states and New England today.

Cities Put in Bids

GOP's Hunting Convention Site

DES MOINES, Iowa—(UPI) — Republican leaders began their search for a 1960 convention site Monday without ruling out the home territory of either of the major possibilities for the 1960 presidential nomination.

Arguments were heard Monday for New York, the home of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. Spokesmen will be heard today for Los Angeles, the home field of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and for San Francisco, which also is in his home state of California.

The site committee heard bids Monday from Philadelphia and Miami Beach, Fla., as well. Chicago also will be heard today.

For Miami Beach, Mayor Kenneth Oka presented a cash offer of $350,000 and said other benefits would be worth $40,000 to $50,000.

The Democratic site committee decided at New Orleans Sunday to recommend Los Angeles for its 1960 convention. The final decision will be made at the Democratic National Committee meeting at Washington Feb. 27.

The GOP national committee probably will give much thought to picking a more neutral site than either Los Angeles or New York for its convention.

Pneumonia Puts Castro In Sickbed

said he was inclined to accept the Castro invitation.

Castro issued the invitation in hopes of stilling growing criticism in the U.S. against the trial and execution of more than 200 "war criminals" accused of murders and other crimes while they were serving deposed dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Castro was getting increasing support at home for his campaign against the Batistianos whom the revolutionary government has accused of murdering 20,000 men, women and children during the six-year Batista regime.

Msgr. Alfredo Muller, auxiliary bishop of Havana who is the No. 2 Roman Catholic Cleric in Cuba, said he and the church were usually opposed to capital punishment "but in the case of the current proceedings here in Cuba it is justified."

In Havana it was announced that Castro personally will prosecute a group of war crimes defendants in a showcase trial some time this week at Havana's La Cabana Fortress.

The decision to start the trials rests with Provisional President Manuel Urrutia, Castro said. "Urrutia is making the decision. I am not a strong man and I do not want to be one, either," he said.

Women Seek Bahamas Vote

NASSAU, Bahamas — (AP) — A group of women bearing placards demanding the right to vote converged on the Bahamas Assembly Monday.

The legislators declined to hear the delegation in the House chamber but adjourned to the courthouse and listened to the petition there.

Only male freeholders over 21 are allowed to vote in the Bahamas at present.

Secretary of State Lennox Boyd last year ordered the Legislature to provide for universal male suffrage but said women hadn't shown enough interest for him to urge their enfranchisement.

The legislature still has taken no action on female suffrage.

Russia's Moving of Jews Hit

Mikoyan Urged To Block Plan

The American Jewish Committee reported Monday that it is "gravely concerned" over reports of a large scale forced movement of Soviet Jews to the Birobidzhan district in Siberia.

The report, released in Miami, said the move may be proposed at the Soviet Party Communist Congress which opens next week in Moscow.

Representatives of the AJC appealed to Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan in New York to intercede in blocking the forced migration plan.

The Russian official is reported by Jessica P. Schwarz, executive assistant of the AJC here, to have responded:

"The reported plan for the recreation of a Jewish State in Birobidzhan and the large scale transfer of Jewish population in Russia to there is without foundation."

The AJC says it opposes the forced move of Jews or anyone else.

"The fundamental right of the individual to preserve or change his dwelling place and cultural environment in accordance with his own needs and aspirations has been sanctioned by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights," the AJC maintains.

"The basic difficulty in regard to Birobidzhan consists in the inherent artificiality of the idea of settling an urban European element in a primitive Asian area adjacent to the Chinese border, to which no historic, sociological and spiritual ties bind them."

The Birobidzhan district has been labeled by some Soviets as "an autonomous Jewish region."

The AJC group says Jews constitute only one-fifth the population of this district "in which almost all expressions of Jewish cultural life such as schools, theaters, publishing houses have been surpressed."

It added that "the renewal of the scheme (to settle Jews there) would be completely devoid of any incentive for Jews to accept voluntarily the enormous sacrifices and burdens involved."

Ike Puts Stress On Recovery in 77 Million Budget

1960 fiscal year because of negotiations with Russia over suspending tests.

Foreign aid is a favorite target of the congressional pruning knife. But Eisenhower beat the lawmakers to it this time with a plan for cutting the total for next year by 383 millions, to $3,498,000,000.

That would be a net reduction, with boosts for technical assistance and economic help for friendly countries partly offsetting a slash in military assistance.

As Eisenhower sees it, the domestic economic outlook has changed, bringing opportunities for advances at home and abroad. He put it this way:

"The situation we face today as a nation differs significantly from that a year ago. We are now entering a period of national prosperity and high employment. This is a time for the government to conduct itself so as best to help the nation move forward strongly and confidently in economic and social progress at home, while fulfilling our responsibilities abroad.

"This budget proposes to increase our military effectiveness, to enhance domestic well-being, to help friendly nations to foster their development, to preserve fiscal soundness, and to encourage economic growth and stability, not only in the fiscal year 1960 but in the years beyond. And it clearly shows that these things can be done within our income."

Eisenhower has had his differences with Congress in the past — and probably will again — on foreign aid, airport construction, aid to areas with chronic unemployment, repairing of slums, and school construction.

In this budget, he proposed programs of his own for all these except schools. But they may not be exactly acceptable in a Congress whose Democratic leaders have said they intend to write their own ticket on legislation and spending.

Eisenhower is figuring on skimping and stinting on many domestic items and even some military programs.

Not only that, but instead of tax cuts now, Eisenhower wants some boosts here and there. And he wants some tax loopholes closed.

To keep the vast interstate highway building program on a pay-as-you-go basis, he said, the federal tax on motor fuels must go up from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon.

He urged, too, that the tax on aviation gas be hiked from 2 to 4½ cents a gallon and that a new tax of 4½ cents be applied to jet fuel. Eisenhower invited airlines to pass these taxes on to passengers and shippers if Congress imposes them. He said that would be fair and sound.

The president asked that excise and corporation tax rates be kept at present levels. The corporation levies and some excises are due to drop next summer unless Congress extends them.

Without saying exactly what he has in mind, the chief executive said proposals for "corrective amendments" of the laws on taxing cooperatives will go to Congress soon.

He also asked for action now on what he called an equitable plan of the Treasury Department for taxing income of life insurance companies.

All in all, of the $77,100,000,000 the government plans to take in during the next fiscal year, Eisenhower said 76½ billion will come from increased receipts under present tax rates and 600 million from new taxes and proposed boosts in such things as patent fees and postal rates.

He wants 350 millions from the higher postal rates to cut down the post office deficit. In his budget message, Eisenhower did not spell out just what rates he wants raised, but the administration has pushed in the past for a five-cent letter stamp. Details on Eisenhower's postal proposals are expected to go to Congress later.

Nothing much can be done about cutting down the second biggest item in the budget—a whopping $8,096,000,000 for interest on the national debt.

But the third largest category of expenditures — for agriculture and agricultural resources — is coming down by nearly 800 millions. The new figure is $5,996,000,000.

Most of the decrease is by reason of ending the acreage reserve part of the soil bank program. As in his State of the Union message to Congress 10 days ago, Eisenhower said legislation is urgently needed to revise the farm price support program. But he saved details for a special message later.

For the time being, Eisenhower said, heavy expenditures for veterans benefits will be dropping — by 110 millions in the upcoming fiscal year. They still will hit $5,088,000,000 — the fourth biggest item in the budget.

Without spelling out specifics, the president said there should be a modification of benefits to veterans and their families for disability or death not related to military service — an idea likely to strike sparks from some veterans organizations.

Eisenhower also called for legislation to modernize the veterans pension program in the light of social developments and changes — again with details to come later.

This is a budget that had a little something for nearly everybody:

For Hawaii, statehood; for the District of Columbia, home rule. Eisenhower said it is unconscionable to delay either any longer.

For the thirsty, a start is proposed on plans for a plant to make salt water fit for farm, industrial and municipal use.

For House members there is a dig at their new office building. Mainly because of construction of that and other federal office buildings, Eisenhower said, the costs of the government's administrative and housekeeping operations is going up by 62 millions, to $1,735,000,000.

The chief executive didn't mention it, but buried in tables of figures attached to the budget message is a line showing that expenses of keeping up the White House mansion and grounds are expected to mount from $497,000 to $531,000.

Expenses of the President's executive office are slated to rise by $4,049,000, to $70,201,000, chiefly because of activities of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

On the side of economy, Eisenhower considered it "both possible and prudent to take a breathing spell" in the starting of new public works projects, such as veterans hospitals and water resources developments.

He suggested, too, that states and municipalities chip in more of the cash for flood control, sewage treatment plants, vocational education, disaster relief, aid to the needy, and improving blighted areas in cities.

National Summary

High pressure that maintained a pattern of cool weather in the East over the weekend drifted off the south Atlantic coast Monday with southerly breezes spreading warmer air from the Gulf states into New England.

By noon 60 degree temperatures warmed the Gulf regions from Florida into Texas with Houston and Brownsville recording readings in the 70s.

The eastward sweep of the cold air mass from the plains to the New England states will drop temperatures at a cold wave rate into Illinois and Indiana.

The brief warming trend ahead of the cold front will give snow, sleet and then rain in an area from southern New England into the mountains of western North Carolina early Tuesday.

Warm air in the southern states will stay the cold long enough to develop a band of showers and thunderstorms from central Texas to the lower Mississippi Valley.

Pacific air across the Rockies will spread snow from the Continental Divide across the western side of the cold air mass from Montana to Oklahoma and northern New Mexico.

Fair weather will prevail in the northern plains with dawn temperatures down to 20 below in Minnesota and Wisconsin and in the southwest with mild temperatures.

'But He Knows What He's Doing'

Youngest Prison Warden In State Only 25 Years Old

By DOUG SILVER
Herald Correspondent

FORT PIERCE — Florida's youngest prison warden is a soft-spoken, sure-footed man who knows where he's going.

William McMullen is only 25 . . . but he's a real old pro when it comes to handling his 55 prisoners.

He smiles easily, and adds "sir" to his answers to visitors. But there's authority in his eyes. His bearing is that of a man who knows what he's doing and how to get it done.

McMullen is warden at the prison camp on Oleander Avenue.

Last July guards at state prison camps were disarmed.

Since then no prisoner has attempted to escape at the local camp.

A solitary confinement cell was built in September but nobody's occupied it yet.

Why has the new policy proven so successful here?

After a visit to the camp the other day it's this reporter's conclusion that this record can be attributed to the careful classification of the prisoners and the kind of operation provided by the warden.

McMullen has been in charge of the Fort Pierce camp since September, 1957. He came here from Moore Haven where he was a deputy.

He's a Pinellas County boy, graduating from Largo High School.

There are six honor camps in the statewide setup and Fort Pierce is one. This means that the system of unarmed guards applies not only within the camp but also out on the road when the men are working.

SENTRY BOX, outmoded by new policy of unarmed guards, is inspected by Deputy Warden D. C. Hudson (left) and Warden William McMullen of Fort Pierce prison road camp.

Only one guard is armed, a deputy who stays up all night while the men are sleeping in their barracks.

The youthful warden explained that the state classifies all prisoners in three groups — those needing close, medium or minimum custody. There are no close custody men at Fort Pierce.

Those needing medium custody work on the roads and the minimum surveillance men stay around the camp, mostly as cooks and other kitchen workers.

Warden McMullen believes in encouraging hobby work among his charges and proudly displayed samples of model covered wagons and stagecoaches which many of the men make in their spare time.

The warden has helped find a market for these items through the help of local stores. He said: "Be sure the men get full credit for these things. They made 'em — I didn't."

He also believes in giving credit to others for the camp's smooth running state of affairs, citing the classification system designed by L. W. Griffith of Tallahassee, state director of Road Prisons.

McMullen likewise emphasized that his local staff plays a big part in the camp's success.

Key West Tax Said Illegal

Utilities Request Suit Answered

By HARRY CAICEDO
Key West Bureau Chief

KEY WEST — State Attorney Phil O'Connell Monday asked Circuit Court to deny the city's petition to validate its $2,750,000 - issue of utilities tax revenue certificates.

O'CONNELL

In his answer to the city's validation lawsuit, O'Connell termed the validation request "illegal and invalid" on several counts.

O'Connell questioned the legality of City Ordinances 702, 703 and Resolution 1659, all of which are related to the financial scheme set up by the city to pay for a vast capital improvement program.

Another answer, also filed Monday, by Henry B. Lee III and Louis Signorelli, as taxpayers and property owners, was almost identical in wording to O'Connell's answer.

O'Connell described Ordinance 702, which imposes a 10 per cent tax on all local utilities, as "primarily directed against the users of electricity in Key West."

O'Connell notes the electric system is owned by the city and its rates controlled by the City Commission, on recommendation of the municipal utility board. He calls the rates now in effect here "among the highest in the U.S."

Imposing a utility tax "is simply a round-about way of increasing electrical rates, which is not within the authority of the City Commission," the state attorney charges.

Other points he attacks:

THE STATUTE allowing imposition of a utility tax was never intended to apply to municipally-owned utilities.

REVENUES from the city electric system are pledged to pay for its own 1955 bond commitments.

THE NET EFFECT of validating the bonds, authorized by Ordinance 703, would be to add $2,750,000 to the debt to be paid by revenues from the electric system, which is in violation of the city's "contractural obligations."

—ORDINANCE 703 is defective and invalid because the title and body of the document are not in conformity. It fixes no rate of interest on the certificates.

—IT FAILS to provide for sale of the bonds upon competitive bidding, as required by the City Charter.

—RESOLUTION 1659 (which set the maximum interest rates payable under the bond ordinance) is invalid because it attempts to amend an ordinance with a resolution. Furthermore, it does not fix the interest rate by "merely fixing the maximum rate."

—THE CONTRACT between the city and the bonding houses of Barcus, Kindred & Co., and Atwell & Co., Inc., is illegal because it is not issued in conformity with the city charter.

Finally, O'Connell charges the utility tax ordinance is not final and effective because litigation is pending on a citizens' petition to have the ordinance repealed.

The hearing on the validation, originally scheduled for Monday, was continued at the request of O'Connell. He is asking for a hearing after March 1.

Searchers Fail In Hunt for Body

JACKSONVILLE — (UPI) — Authorities searched for the body of a Florida businessman believed buried by a young cook already serving a sentence of five years to life for the fatal stabbing of a California TV announcer.

California police said Roy Victor Olson, 23, confessed to fatally stabbing James Eugene Harrison, 32, Indian River City, about Oct. 7 near Jacksonville.

He also said he killed a man named John Weiler, 37, Seattle, Wash., at Seattle.

The confessions were made Saturday to two Florida investigators in Vacaville, Calif. Later Olson was quoted as saying: "Well, that's it. I wonder how many others I've killed."

Lt. Roy Sands of the Duval County Sheriff's Office and Ralph Clark of Brevard County, said Olson told them Harrison picked him up while hitchhiking on U. S. 90 between Lake City and Jacksonville.

The Indian River businessman was last seen leaving his office Oct. 7 when he told his family he had a business appointment at nearby Cocoa. His blood-spattered station wagon was found in Jacksonville a week later.

Olson said he killed Harrison after they stopped at a dirt road "to stretch their legs." Then he said he stole $500 from the victim's wallet and drove the station wagon into Jacksonville where he abandoned it.

In Brevard County, where Harrison's Indian River City home is, Sheriff James W. Dunn said he had additional information which would indicate Olson's statement was accurate.

He said Mrs. Edward Walters, Titusville, owner of a service station and friend of the Harrison family, said she saw a shovel in the rear of Harrison's car the day he disappeared.

Mrs. Walters also said she gave Harrison some bags of fertilizer which would explain the bags which Olson thought contained lime. Earlier, Dunn said Olson's story about a shovel and sacks of lime didn't fit into the picture.

KEY WEST—John W. Tyler has been appointed chief of the criminal division in the Monroe County Sheriff's Department, Sheriff John M. Spottswood announced.

TYLER

Tyler, 41, comes to his new post from Dade County's Criminal Bureau of Investigation, which he helped organize and headed for seven years.

Prior to that, Tyler was with the FBI for 14 years, beginning in 1937 as a fingerprint specialist.

Tyler received his early education in Kansas and later attended Benjamin Franklin University in Washington, D.C. He holds a Florida State Teacher's certificate in criminology and is a member of the staff of the Florida Police Academy at Miami.

No Base Cutbacks Due at Key West, Delegation Told

By DAVID J. KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Navy refused Monday to reverse its decision to transfer 10 ships and 1,600 men from Key West to Charleston, S.C.

But a large delegation of civic and business leaders from Key West and Miami was given flat assurances the Navy plans no cut back in the shore installation.

"The Navy has no intention of ever getting out of Key West," Navy Secretary Thomas Gates said.

"The biggest problem we have is 500 Russian subs. I can't conceive of closing the Key West Submarine Base."

Gates told Florida Senators George Smathers and Spessard Holland and Rep. Dante Fascell the transfer of the 10 ships is part of a new "dispersal" program, affecting Navy bases all along the eastern seaboard from Newport, R.I. to Key West.

Gates conceded there might be cause for criticism if examined from the standpoint of Key West alone. "But the overall change is a very good thing," he said.

Gates Fascell

. . . disagree on motives

Eight submarines, one rescue vessel and one tender are being transferred. Twelve submarines and one tender will continue to operate out of Key West.

Gates said the sonar school will continue in operation and there will be no cutback of the Naval air installation at Boca Chica.

Gates and the high-ranking Navy brass fended off Fascell's pointed reference to statements made last November by Rep. Mendel Rivers (D., S.C.).

Fascell said Rivers, an influential member of the House Armed Services Committee, stated publicly he had been working on the transfer for 12 months and he had succeeded in getting the Navy to go along.

Gates said the Navy could not be responsible for what Congressmen tell constituents.

He insisted the Navy made the decision "completely on its own" and without any help from Rivers.

Gates said the transferred subs are to become part of a big fleet which will operate in the deep Atlantic waters off the middle east coast.

He pointed out 15 destroyers are being transferred from Norfolk to Charleston and a number of ships will be assigned to the Mayport base, near Jacksonville.

Gates was told Key West is unable to fully develop as a tourist center because the Navy has "usurped" all the choice beach areas.

"Key West went bankrupt and became a ghost town when the Navy pulled out in 1933," said Paul Marks, a Miami attorney and a native of Key West. "We don't want that happening again."

Gates was asked to appreciate the economic impact of which is dependent upon Navy the transfer on a community business.

Key West spokesmen said the transfer means the loss of six million dollars of an annual thirty-six-million dollar Navy payroll there.

Miami Mayor Robert King High and Dade Metro Commissioner Robert Haverfield said Miami merchants also will "take it on the chin."

High estimated the loss to Miami as a result of the transfer at between fifteen million dollars and 20 million dollars a year.

Ninety per cent of the provisions for Key West come from Miami, High said. Between 90 and 100 trailer trucks carry supplies to Key West every week.

Gates was asked to keep these factors in mind if the occasion to assign additional units to Key West should arise.

Gates also spiked talk the transfer came because the Navy is unhappy with treatment received from Key West civilians.

"We've had a lot of trouble with Key West in the past," he said. "But that has not been true for the last three or four years. Our relationships in Key West now are as good, or better, than anywhere else in the country."

Others attending the meeting in the Senate Office Building included:

Mayor Dello Cobo of Key West; Howard Wilson, Monroe County Tax Collector; Joe Sirugo, Key West businessman; Kermit Lewin of the Key West Chamber of Commerce, and Warren Smyth, assistant manager of the Mimi-Dade County Chamber

Antietam Hits Port

PENSALOCA — (UPI) — The USS Antietam entered the harbor here for the first time Monday, completing a 900-mile trip around the tip of Florida from Mayport, near Jacksonville.

The Essex-class carrier was unable to enter the shallow channel since it was transferred here in August, until completion of a dredging project.

Previously the vessel anchored offshore, while operating in local waters.

Fire Razes Clearwater Landmark

CLEARWATER —(UPI)— A $250,000 fire destroyed the fashionable Heilman's Beachcomber Restaurant here Monday.

The blaze broke out about 4 p.m. and firemen fought for almost two hours before they extinguished it. The flames ranged out of control for almost 30 minutes.

The building, in the heart of Clearwater's shopping district and about a block from the Gulf of Mexico, was a complete loss.

Firemen said the blaze started in the double-roof, over the kitchen. From there it spread out of control.

No injuries were reported, but one woman was hit by a piece of hose when it uncoupled under pressure.

Three companies of firemen were called to the scene, including some from as far away as South Clearwater.

The restaurant is one of the better-known eating houses on the Florida west coast.

Police called for restraining ropes about an hour after the blaze broke out to hold back hundreds of spectators who flocked to the scene. Some were attracted by the clouds of black smoke that could be seen for miles.

26½ Ounce Infant Growing Rapidly

TAMPA — (AP) — William Clifton Hamm, who weighed only one pound 10½ ounces shortly after his birth at Tampa General Hospital last week, is given a good chance of survival by attending physicians.

Doctors said the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Clifford Hamm has started taking milk from a bottle and gets plenty of sleep. He's growing rapidly, they say.

Arthur Burns, director of the hospital, said the infant is the smallest born at the hospital.

Raiders Curtail Production

'Shine Output Dropping Off

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— An intensified enforcement drive has sent Florida's moonshine production into an eclipse, State Beverage Director H. G. Cochran reported Monday.

Results have been particularly noticeable the past six months, he said.

While the number of arrests convictions and fines mounted, the number of stills found and the amount of mash destroyed took a sharp dip.

Cochran said in a report for the last half of 1958 that figures showed joint efforts by federal and state agencies had sent the number of stills into a decline.

"Our policy of making every effort to make catches at each still seizure along with more shine arrests, trials and convictions is lessening the moonshine traffic within the state," he said.

During the last six months of 1958 a total of 314 stills were found and 218,251 gallons of mash destroyed. In the same period of 1957, 337 stills were found and 313,891 gallons of mash destroyed.

In the same period there were 229 more arrests for moonshine whisky violations and 202 more arrests for violation of laws relating to legal whisky.

There also were 234 more convictions for violating liquor laws.

Heaviest activity has been in the third district of northeast Florida where 112 stills were smashed and 100,765 gallons of mash destroyed in the past six months.

Counties in the third district are: Baker, Bradford, Clay, Duval, Nassau, St. Johns and Union.

Big Smash, No Contest

Steamroller Loses Bout With Freight

Herald Bureau

HOLLYWOOD — A four-ton pavement roller was knocked through the air like a golf ball here Monday morning by a freight train.

No one was injured, police said.

The roller was on a trailer. The 18-car freight drove it 44 feet through the air.

The roller landed on a grade-crossing signal box, crushing it; and then bounced into a power pole, snapping it like a twig.

The front roller wheel flew off and sailed 100 feet farther down Dixie Hwy.

Traffic was snarled at seven grade-crossings by damage to the signal box.

The roller was on a trailer hitched to a dump truck driven by Louis C. Farruggia, 34, of Hollywood. The vehicle stalled on the Florida East Coast grade crossing at Garfield St., near Dixie Hwy.

Farruggia told police he leaped from the truck and tried to flag down the train, approaching at about 35 miles and hour, but it was too late. The engineer said he had applied the train's brakes 1,000 feet before impact.

The $4,000 roller was a total loss. Damage to the signal box was set at $1,500.

Bank Deposit Tax Repeal, Other Slashes Said Unlikely

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— Any move to repeal the 1957 law doubling the tax on bank deposits and stock and bond holdings will meet with failure, Senate President Designate Dewey M. Johnson of Quincy predicted Monday.

Johnson said he did not see how the 1959 legislature in good conscience could repeal any revenue measure at a time when governmental spending will have to be pruned sharply to balance the budget.

"Any tax repealed would have to be replaced by another. And I am certain the 1959 legislature is not going to vote any new taxes for any purpose," he said.

Several legislators from the larger counties have said they will try to repeal the 1957 law which increased the tax on bank deposits from 1-20th to 1-10th mill and on stocks and bonds holdings from one to two mills.

Johnson said he was convinced that the legislature would adopt an appropriations bill tailored to fit the revenue that existing taxes will produce.

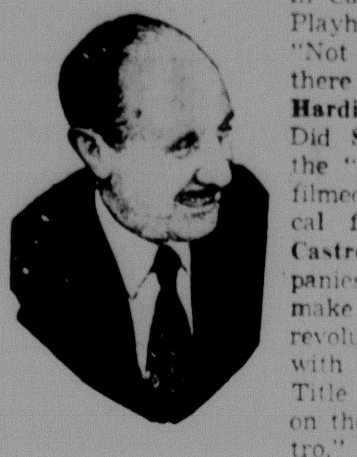
Faster and Fancier, Americana Revue Clicks



POSSIBLY the longest hop from one stand to another made by show veteran Edward Everett Horton will be the one which will take him from the Palm Springs Playhouse in California to Royal Poinciana Playhouse in Palm Beach, with "Not in the Book," which opens there Feb. 9, with either Ann Harding or Dorothy Stone . . . Did Sam Katzman step out of the "Stake-Out" TV series being filmed here to take on a theatrical film concerned with Fidel Castro? Several Hollywood companies have signified intent to make pictures about the Cuban revolution by registering title with Motion Picture Producers Title Registration Bureau. Not on the list was "Hi-Fidelity Castro."

Removal of Padding Helped

"A RAG, a Bone and a Ponytail," continues at Larry Tisch's Americana Hotel Bal Masque, but it is a fancier rag, a more meaty bone and a faster traveling ponytail than when it opened just before the holidays. The Sid Kuller-Selma Marlowe production was a rattling good bit of musical comedy in the original offering but it had about a half hour of needless padding.

Now that padding has been taken out and the sequence of acts adjusted, it's a lark from start to finish. The cast is the same — a solid collection of acts that have arrived but haven't yet been dubbed with stardom in the live variety field, such as the Blackburn Twins and Jerry Collins; Barbara Heller, whose impressions have been a click on television; Kay Cee Jones, who has had some success on records, Mara Lynn, Shirl Haven, Jack DeLeon, Mark Reddy, Skip Norman, Jay Salerno and others.

Best numbers are still "Funnel of Love" in which the whole cast indulges in a sophisticated switch of husbands and wives in the manner of "La Ronde;" a "Rainbow Blues" song interlude of great artistry — especially in the staging," and an atomic-paced "Celebrities on Parade" in which more than a score of impressions are done — also by the entire ensemble. "A Rag, a Bone and a Ponytail" is something different for the cafe goer — there's nary a dull moment in it.

Why not "With Borge and Back?" . . . Jack Collins was keyboarding at Pit Lounge in Fort Lauderdale, but before you could say Pit Lounge he had opened at Robinson's Roost in Daytona.

Maestro to Conduct Own Work

MARIE GOODHART has been alerted to stand by for some more assignments in "Stake-Out," Screen Gems television series which is being filmed here. The Coronet model appeared in one produced by Sam Katzman late last year . . . Henry Levine, musical director of the Cavalcade of Stars band at the Deauville, has composed a work called "Flight 49." He will conduct when it is done at Bayfront Park on Friday night.

Ben Yomen has produced a musical play about two moon people on earth in search of the formula for peace in the Universe for the Miami Beach Community Singers. It will be premiered at Miami Beach Auditorium Feb. 22.

Comics Phil Ford and Mimi Hines have told us not to miss a car called the Mafia at the up-coming foreign and sports car show here. It has a hood under the hood and a .45 heater is standard equipment . . . Dancer-comedian Danny Windsor of the Red Carpet has a part in a coming Playhouse 90 musical called "The Lady and the Gambler," with Jane Powell featured . . . Ruben Gonzalez opens with his Latin-American band in the Mirage Room of the Sahara on Jan. 29.

SWITCH in a delinquency story is "Johnny Rocco" in which it is the father who, played by Stephen McNally, needs the reformation and Richard Eyer, the son, who tries to effect it. Film, in which James Flavin, center, is featured, opens Tuesday at Paramount, Coral and Colony.

How Ike 'Played Housewife' With Budget

By DON OBERDORFER
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower administration huffed and puffed, but the cussed thing still wouldn't balance.

So the budget makers resorted to some tricks, the kind a wife might use to concoct a sample family budget to impress her husband.

Here's how they "balanced" it:

1—They had promised the International Monetary Fund a new subscription of $1,370,000,000. This would have thrown the new budget completely out of whack.

So the President in his budget message Monday asked Congress to give him the money right now, in a fiscal year that is already badly in the red.

This is like rushing out to buy that new TV set before the month is over, so it won't show up on the next month's budget.

Secretary of the Treasury Robert Anderson says the administration is eager to get the money in the old budget year because it promised to "expedite" this thing. The money will be used by the international fund to help stabilize soft currencies.

* * *

2—The administration is selling off 620 million dollars in certain government assets.

"This is like an individual selling off 100 shares of stock to take care of an expensive operation on his wife," explains Budget Bureau Director Maurice Stans.

In the old fiscal year the government sold only 100 million of these assets in this way, so it is really financing 520 million of expenditures by selling the assets.

Don't worry — the government isn't planning to sell the White House or the Washington Monument to balance the new budget.

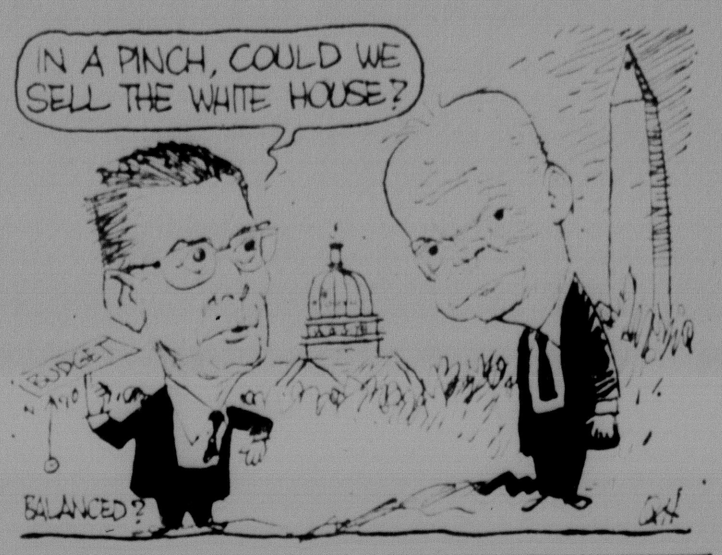
The assets to be sold are loans in the portfolio of the Export-Import Bank, mortgages held by the Federal National Mortgage Association and bonds held under the college housing program.

* * *

3—The budget-makers made a deep cut in the allowance for contingencies, which is like slashing your budget allowance for pin money.

Last year the budget men included 300 million dollars as a general contingency allowance, plus a 500 million contingency allowance for defense. In the new budget, the contingency allowance is only 100 million.

If you charge the monetary fund money to the new fiscal year instead of the old, and hold the sales of assets and the contingency allowance to the old year's level, the Eisenhower 1960 budget would be $2,490,000,000 in the red.



IN A PINCH, COULD WE SELL THE WHITE HOUSE?

Traveler's Finances To Suffer

Gasoline, Airline Hikes Suggested

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The traveling American is in for a jolt in the pocketbook if tax proposals submitted Monday by President Eisenhower are approved by Congress.

The president asked for:

A 50 per cent boost (from 3 to $4\frac{1}{2}$ cents a gallon) in federal tax on auto gasoline.

A 50 per cent boost (from 3 to $4\frac{1}{2}$ cents a gallon) in the tax on aviation gas.

A new $4\frac{1}{2}$ cents a gallon tax on jet fuel.

And the President made it clear he feels the individual air traveler should pick up the tab for the aviation fuel levies.

"I believe it fair and sound that such taxes be reflected in the rates of transportation paid by the passengers and shippers," Eisenhower said in his budget message.

In effect, this is an "invitation" to the Civil Aeronautics Board to raise airline fares so that the taxes (if approved by Congress) will be passed on to the traveler.

How much of a fare increase this would mean (if the CAB went along with the President) could not be determined immediately.

Some informed sources guessed it would take a five to six per cent fare boost to compensa for the taxes recommended by the President.

HECTOR

Eisenhower's thinking on passing on the taxes runs directly contrary to suggestions offered by CAB Chairman James R. Durfee and Member Louis J. Hector of Miami.

They have suggested that the way to fill seats on the huge jet airliners is to attract new passengers by lowering fares.

There has been a great debate in aviation circles over the problem of a large increase in seating capacity coming in with the use of jet aircraft.

The additional levies would come on top of the 10 per cent tax on domestic travel which has been in effect since during World War II.

It costs travelers an extra 10 cents for every $1 worth of airplane, railroad or bus ticket he buys.

And Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson made it clear in a briefing on the budget that the administration would strenuously oppose any move to repeal the travel tax this year.

Highest Peacetime Budget Hinges on Recovery Hopes

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower Monday submitted to an already questioning Congress a massive, precariously balanced budget totaling 77 billion dollars.

Heavy on defense allocations in an era of continuing Communist threats, this is the administration's proposed spending chart for the 1960 fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Never in peacetime has so big a budget been laid before the legislators at the opening of a new session. A year ago, Eisenhower proposed what was then a record peacetime budget just short of 74 billions.

But the recession sent government income down and spending up. So the spending figure for the present fiscal year ending June 30 now is estimated at nearly 81 billions.

And the half billion dollar surplus anticipated a year ago has turned into a deficit of almost 13 billions for the 1959 fiscal year. The estimated deficit is up nearly 700 millions since September.

Eisenhower told Congress it must raise the permanent limit on the national debt to 285 billions and provide a temporary limit even higher than that. The current temporary debt ceiling is 288 billion. It is due to drop to 283 billion next June 30.

The new budget is a bare 70 million dollars in the black. But it is what Eisenhower called a responsible, confident, positive, attainable budget, backed by glowing prospects of "continued vigorous economic recovery."

Over and over, he sounded that recovery refrain.

The budget counts on tapping taxpayers for a record sum while dangling before them a hope of tax reductions in the uncertain future.

The measure holds out promises to enhance domestic well-being and to protect personal savings and incomes from erosive inflation.

Yet it also calls for higher gasoline taxes that surely would be passed on to the consumer, and for another boost in postal rates. If Congress goes along—and it isn't at all sure that Congress will—the federal gas tax will jump from 3 to $4\frac{1}{2}$ cents a gallon and it probably will cost a nickel instead of four cents to mail a letter.

Eisenhower said three dollars of every five in the budget—a total of $45,805,000,000 out of $77,030,000,000—must go to keeping the U.S. military structure ready to meet any threat with weapons operating from the bottom of the sea and through the fringes of space.

Key members of Congress questioned in advance whether the budget would carry enough money for defense. The total is down 315 millions from the current year's expenditures for the Defense Department, atomic energy, stockpiling of strategic materials, and military aid to allies.

For the Defense Department alone, the spending figure is up 145 millions, to a total of $40,850,000,000. Some Democrats and a number of Republicans on Capitol Hill have criticized sums of that size as inadequate.

In contrast with last year's budget message, this new 30,000-word document speaks of a persisting rather than a growing military danger from the Communist world.

But it all but calls a halt on continued whittling down of military manpower. It places less emphasis on planes and more on missiles — some 800 million dollars more.

It proposes to push spending for scientific research and space development to a record level. Eisenhower mentioned a million-pound thrust engine, and a nuclear rocket engine.

Expenditures for the Atomic Energy Commission also are expected to hit a record high of $2,700,000,000, with development and production of nuclear weapons kept at high levels.

No new funds are requested for testing such weapons in the

Democrats Inherit Another Crisis--Adlai

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Adlai E. Stevenson said Monday President Eisenhower's policy of "thrift by drift" was partly responsible for America's "fat, dumb and happy" complacency toward Russia's determined Cold War challenge.

Stevenson

The greatest national need was "not to balance the budget but to wage peace," he said.

The next 10 years, Stevenson added, would "really prove" whether the American system of democratic government could match the rigid, dedicated communistic threat of Russia.

He said the prognosis was not good unless there was a change in America's "fatal addiction" to the short view and its unwillingness to face the facts.

The two-time presidential nominee of the Democratic Party told a jammed Woman's National Democratic Club luncheon audience that Americans today "fritter away their time on trivialities" in a "fatal addiction to the short view."

Contending the situation was "partly due to lack of leadership — guess where," he complained that "private satisfaction" received priority over "public necessity." More money was spent on entertainment than education, and on tobacco than on textbooks.

Stevenson said the Democrats seemed destined to come to power in times of crisis.

"We seem to be on the eve of inheriting another crisis," he said.

He said the Democratic Party apparently was the only party neither "afraid of the facts nor afraid of the people knowing the facts," and aware that "freedom is not a soft option — can be had cheap."

He expressed confidence that once Americans are fully aware of the real danger to a democratic system of government, there is nothing they will not be willing to do to meet the challenge.

Walkout Alert on At Pan Am

Contract Snagged Over Work Hours

By DOM BONAFEDE and DAN BROWN
Herald Staff Writers

Pan American World Airways ground personnel — including 3,000 in Miami and 1,500 at Cape Canaveral — were put on a strike alert Monday while union and management met in eleventh hour negotiations.

A walkout by members of the Transport Workers Union could cripple the world-wide airline — and seriously hamper the nation's missile research development program.

Union officials, who have been meeting with company representatives and a federal mediator in New York City for the past week, reported a "pushbutton" strategy set up has been devised to call a strike within 24 hours.

About 8,000 systemwide employes are employed in the dispute. The union is seeking higher wages, shorter hours and improved working conditions.

"We are waiting word from New York to walk out at any time," commented Art Hallgren, vice president of Miami Local 500, TWU.

The last union contract expired Dec. 1 and both sides have been meeting off and on since then.

Negotiations finally came to a climax a week ago and talks were pushed up to reach a new settlement.

In New York, a PAA spokesman said that the big issue was the union's demand for a cut in weekly working hours. He said TWU workers, presently on a 40-hour week, are seeking a $37\frac{1}{2}$ hour week because of worker fears fewer ground crew members will be required when PAA starts using jet airliners on a big scale.

The union first asked for a 32-hour week but later reduced their demands.

"Strike standby" telegrams were sent to union members at all PAA installations Monday.

Meanwhile, company and union representatives settled a jurisdictional dispute which caused a sit down strike at the Cape Canaveral missile base last Friday.

The dispute involved the working requirements of PAA stock clerks.

Company officials termed the squabble a "misunderstanding."

Mercury Will Begin Climb Today

It'll be nice in Miami Tuesday, while folks in some parts of North Florida still shiver, the weatherman said.

The warm-up should spread throughout the state by Wednesday, he added.

"We'll be in the low to mid-70s here," Weatherman Philip Ackerman said.

"The outlook is nice, at least for the next few days. In the winter, you can't tell beyond that."

Parts of northernmost Florida will have temperatures in the 40s early Tuesday, warming up during the day.

There was scattered frost in North Florida Monday, but little or no crop damage, the Frost Warning Service said.

Dade escaped frost, Ackerman said, when the winds shifted from north to northeast.

Pakistan Aid Up

KARACHI — (AP) — Pakistan may get $226,850,000 in grants and loans from the U. S. during 1959, official sources said Monday. That would be $78,910,000 more than the amount received in 1958.

Pneumonia Puts Fidel In Sickbed

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Revolutionary Leader Fidel Castro has pneumonia and is running a high fever, his secretary said Monday night.

Castro was confined to his suite in the Havana Hilton Hotel during the weekend by an attack of influenza, but he continued to transact official business from his sickbed and to receive callers until late Monday.

His secretary, Mrs. Blanco de Poce, indicated the pulmonary complication may force him to curb his activities.

Asked whether the latest development would affect Castro's scheduled appearance at the mass rally scheduled for Wednesday, the secretary said the doctor planned to keep him abed until the last minute in an effort to enable him to attend, but that it was too early to state definitely that he would be there.

Before the disclosure of Castro's worsened condition was made, revolutionary "war crimes" trials were postponed or suspended throughout Cuba Monday.

Castro had announced he had invited five U.S. senators and five representatives to witness the trials. Most of those invited sharply rejected the bid.

Sen George A. Smathers was among those who rejected the bid.

"As a longtime friend of your country," Smathers cabled the rebel chieftain, from Washington, "I have a deep and abiding interest in its affairs.

"However, no useful purpose can be served by my presence or my comments on this occasion.

"I think too much already has been said by individuals who at present know too little about what is going on in your country.

"I join . . . in prayers for forbearance and a sensible approach to many problems with which you are now confronted," Smathers cabled.

Sen. Wayne Morse, (D., Ore.), who has been severely critical of the executions of alleged "war criminals," and Sens. John Sparkman (D., Ala.), and Homer Capehart (R., Ind.) also rejected invitations.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D., N.Y.), one of the House members invited, planned to accept Castro's invitation. Powell, a Negro, has defended the new rebel regime. It was understood that he suggested some of the names of the congressmen invited by Castro.

Besides Smathers and Morse, other senators invited were Theodore Francis Green (D., R. I.), Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) and John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.).

Two House members invited indicated they might make the trip Wednesday.

Rep. Wayne Hays (D., Ohio) said, "I am free and I've got a bag." The office of Rep. Charles O. Porter (D., Ore.)

Contractor Suing Port for $45,738

FORT LAUDERDALE — Contractor Frank Rule filed suit against the Port Authority and three of its members Monday, demanding payment of $45,738 owing on his contract for sprinkler installations.

The Grand Jury is currently investigating the port's award of two contracts to Rule — including the $53,000 sprinkler job — by unadvertised change-of-work orders.

Assistant State Attorney Quentin Long advised the port to hold up payment of the balance. It was first blocked on the advice of former Port Attorney Shelby Dale.

A 92-page complaint was filed for Rule by Attorney Carl Hiaasen. It asked payment plus interest from Dec. 15 — by the port or by Commissioners Ed Crowells, Igor Dart and W. P. Hartman.

Nelson DeBan and George Sewallis, former commissioners who defended the procedure, are not named in the suit.

It also asks that the port be enjoined from "enjoying the fruits" of Rule's construction pending payment.

Rule was authorized to put sprinklers in two warehouses, one of them built by another contractor.

The Grand Jury will resume its probe when Long has compiled information it requested. It is also studying port insurance awards.

Wilkins was assistant secretary of labor from 1954 to 1958, resigning last November.

U.S., State Decisions Identical

RICHMOND, Va. —(AP)— Virginia's legal barriers against racial integration, under which nine white schools have been shuttered since September, toppled Monday in the State Supreme Court.

The unappealable 5-2 decision brought the immediate prospect of some classroom race mixing before the Legislature can attempt to erect new blockades.

It also brought from Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. an expression of "faith in the ability and judgment" of the seven members of the state court, plus the announcement he will confer with other state leaders on the best course to take.

The state court opinion followed by minutes the decision of a three-judge federal court in Norfolk striking down the state law under which six Norfolk schools have been kept closed. The federal court said it wasn't attempting to tell Virginia — aside from state constitutional requirements — it had to operate public schools.

But as long as the state did operate such a system, it added, the closing of some of the schools, or even grades of the schools, violates the rights of a citizen to equal protection under the law.

The State Supreme Court, however, ruled that Virginia still was subject to a requirement of the state constitution to operate a public school system throughout the state.

This was the nub of the Almond administration's test of the so-called massive resistance laws before the court.

The court held the closure and state seizure violated a constitutional section vesting supervision of local schools in local school boards; that the governor has no authority to set up a substitute state school system; that the governor has no authority to close any schools in areas, or near areas, policed by federal forces; and that the Legislature's efforts to restrict state school funds to segregated schools are illegal.

The court then proceeded to throw out the school closing law which has been invoked in Norfolk affecting 10,000 pupils; Charlottesville, affecting 1,700, and Warren County High at Front Royal, 1,000. Almost all of the displaced pupils in Warren and Charlottesville have been attending makeshift private classes in churches and other community buildings. About 4,500 of the displaced Norfolk pupils are in private classes or tutoring groups.

How Ike 'Played Housewife' With Budget

By DON OBERDORFER
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower administration huffed and puffed, but the cussed thing still wouldn't balance.

So the budget makers resorted to some tricks, the kind a wife might use to concoct a sample family budget to impress her husband.

Here's how they "balanced" it:

1—They had promised the International Monetary Fund a new subscription of $1,370,000,000. This would have thrown the new budget completely out of whack.

So the President in his budget message Monday asked Congress to give him the money right now, in a fiscal year that is already badly in the red.

This is like rushing out to buy that new TV set before the month is over, so it won't show up on the next month's budget.

Secretary of the Treasury Robert Anderson says the administration is eager to get the money in the old budget year because it promised to "expedite" this thing. The money will be used by the international fund to help stabilize soft currencies.

* * *

2—The administration is selling off 620 million dollars in certain government assets.

"This is like an individual selling off 100 shares of stock to take care of an expensive operation on his wife," explains Budget Bureau Director Maurice Stans.

In the old fiscal year the government sold only 100 million of these assets in this way, so it is really financing 520 million of expenditures by selling the assets.

Don't worry — the government isn't planning to sell the White House or the Washington Monument to balance the new budget.

The assets to be sold are loans in the portfolio of the Export-Import Bank, mortgages held by the Federal National Mortgage Association and bonds held under the college housing program.

* * *

3—The budget-makers made a deep cut in the allowance for contingencies, which is like slashing your budget allowance for pin money.

Last year the budget men included 300 million dollars as a general contingency allowance, plus a 500 million contingency allowance for defense. In the new budget, the contingency allowance is only 100 million.

If you charge the monetary fund money to the new fiscal year instead of the old, and hold the sales of assets and the contingency allowance to the old year's level, the Eisenhower 1960 budget would be $2,490,000,000 in the red.

Traveler's Finances To Suffer

Gasoline, Airline Hikes Suggested

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The traveling American is in for a jolt in the pocketbook if tax proposals submitted Monday by President Eisenhower are approved by Congress.

The president asked for:

A 50 per cent boost (from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon) in federal tax on auto gasoline.

A 50 per cent boost (from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon) in the tax on aviation gas.

A new 4½ cents a gallon tax on jet fuel.

And the President made it clear he feels the individual air traveler should pick up the tab for the aviation fuel levies.

"I believe it fair and sound that such taxes be reflected in the rates of transportation paid by the passengers and shippers," Eisenhower said in his budget message.

In effect, this is an "invitation" to the Civil Aeronautics Board to raise airline fares so that the taxes (if approved by Congress) will be passed on to the traveler.

How much of a fare increase this would mean (if the CAB went along with the President) could not be determined immediately.

Some informed sources guessed it would take a five to six per cent fare boost to compensa for the taxes recommended by the President.

HECTOR

Eisenhower's thinking on passing on the taxes runs directly contrary to suggestions offered by CAB Chairman James R. Durfee and Member Louis J. Hector of Miami.

They have suggested that the way to fill seats on the huge jet airliners is to attract new passengers by lowering fares.

There has been a great debate in aviation circles over the problem of a large increase in seating capacity coming in with the use of jet aircraft.

The additional levies would come on top of the 10 per cent tax on domestic travel which has been in effect since during World War II.

It costs travelers an extra 10 cents for every $1 worth of airplane, railroad or bus ticket he buys.

And Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson made it clear in a briefing on the budget that the administration would strenuously oppose any move to repeal the travel tax this year.

Highest Peacetime Budget Hinges on Recovery Hopes

WASHINGTON —(P— President Eisenhower Monday submitted to an already questioning Congress a massive, precariously balanced budget totaling 77 billion dollars.

Heavy on defense allocations in an era of continuing Communist threats, this is the administration's proposed spending chart for the 1960 fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Never in peacetime has so big a budget been laid before the legislators at the opening of a new session. A year ago, Eisenhower proposed what was then a record peacetime budget just short of 74 billions.

But the recession sent government income down and spending up. So the spending figure for the present fiscal year ending June 30 now is estimated at nearly 81 billions.

And the half billion dollar surplus anticipated a year ago has turned into a deficit of almost 13 billions for the 1959 fiscal year. The estimated deficit is up nearly 700 millions since September.

Eisenhower told Congress it must raise the permanent limit on the national debt to 285 billions and provide a temporary limit even higher than that. The current temporary debt ceiling is 288 billion. It is due to drop to 283 billion next June 30.

The new budget is a bare 70 million dollars in the black. But it is what Eisenhower called a responsible, confident, positive, attainable budget, backed by glowing prospects of "continued vigorous economic recovery."

Over and over, he sounded that recovery refrain.

The budget counts on tapping taxpayers for a record sum while dangling before them a hope of tax reductions in the uncertain future.

The measure holds out promises to enhance domestic well-being and to protect personal savings and incomes from erosive inflation.

Yet it also calls for higher gasoline taxes that surely would be passed on to the consumer, and for another boost in postal rates. If Congress goes along—and it isn't at all sure that Congress will—the federal gas tax will jump from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon and it probably will cost a nickel instead of four cents to mail a letter.

Eisenhower said three dollars of every five in the budget—a total of $45,805,000,000 out of $77,030,000,000—must go to keeping the U.S. military structure ready to meet any threat with weapons operating from the bottom of the sea and through the fringes of space.

Key members of Congress questioned in advance whether the budget would carry enough money for defense. The total is down 315 millions from the current year's expenditures for the Defense Department, atomic energy, stockpiling of strategic materials, and military aid to allies.

For the Defense Department alone, the spending figure is up 145 millions, to a total of $40,850,000,000. Some Democrats and a number of Republicans on Capitol Hill have criticized sums of that size as inadequate.

In contrast with last year's budget message, this new 30,000-word document speaks of a persisting rather than a growing military danger from the Communist world.

But it all but calls a halt on continued whittling down of military manpower. It places less emphasis on planes and more on missiles — some 800 million dollars more.

It proposes to push spending for scientific research and space development to a record level. Eisenhower mentioned a million-pound thrust engine, and a nuclear rocket engine.

Expenditures for the Atomic Energy Commission also are expected to hit a record high of $2,700,000,000, with development and production of nuclear weapons kept at high levels.

No new funds are requested for testing such weapons in the

Hits 'Thrift by Drift'

Democrats Inherit Another Crisis--Adlai

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Adlai E. Stevenson said Monday President Eisenhower's policy of "thrift by drift" was partly responsible for America's "fat, dumb and happy" complacency toward Russia's determined Cold War challenge.

Stevenson

The greatest national need was "not to balance the budget but to wage peace," he said.

The next 10 years, Stevenson added, would "really prove" whether the American system of democratic government could match the rigid, dedicated communistic threat of Russia.

He said the prognosis was not good unless there was a change in America's "fatal addiction" to the short view and its unwillingness to face the facts.

The two-time presidential nominee of the Democratic Party told a jammed Woman's National Democratic Club luncheon audience that Americans today "fritter away their time on trivialities" in a "fatal addiction to the short view."

Contending the situation was "partly due to lack of leadership — guess where," he complained that "private satisfaction" received priority over "public necessity." More money was spent on entertainment than education, and on tobacco than on textbooks.

Stevenson said the Democrats seemed destined to come to power in times of crisis.

"We seem to be on the eve of inheriting another crisis," he said.

He said the Democratic Party apparently was the only party neither "afraid of the facts nor afraid of the people knowing the facts," and aware that "freedom is not a soft option — can be had cheap."

He expressed confidence that once Americans are fully aware of the real danger to a democratic system of government, there is nothing they will not be willing to do to meet the challenge.

Walkout Alert on At Pan Am

Contract Snagged Over Work Hours

By DOM BONAFEDE and DAN BROWN
Herald Staff Writers

Pan American World Airways ground personnel — including 3,000 in Miami and 1,500 at Cape Canaveral — were put on a strike alert Monday while union and management met in eleventh hour negotiations.

A walkout by members of the Transport Workers Union could cripple the world-wide airline — and seriously hamper the nation's missile research development program.

Union officials, who have been meeting with company representatives and a federal mediator in New York City for the past week, reported a "pushbutton" strategy setup has been devised to call a strike within 24 hours.

About 8,000 systemwide employes are employed in the dispute. The union is seeking higher wages, shorter hours and improved working conditions.

"We are waiting word from New York to walk out at any time," commented Art Hallgren, vice president of Miami Local 500, TWU.

The last union contract expired Dec. 1 and both sides have been meeting off and on since then.

Negotiations finally came to a climax a week ago and talks were pushed up to reach a new settlement.

In New York, a PAA spokesman said that the big issue was the union's demand for a cut in weekly working hours. He said TWU workers, presently on a 40-hour week, are seeking a 37½ hour week because of worker fears fewer ground crew members will be required when PAA starts using jet airliners on a big scale.

The union first asked for a 32-hour week but later reduced their demands.

"Strike standby" telegrams were sent to union members at all PAA installations Monday.

Meanwhile, company and union representatives settled a jurisdictional dispute which caused a sit down strike at the Cape Canaveral missile base last Friday.

The dispute involved the working requirements of PAA stock clerks.

Company officials termed the squabble a "misunderstanding."

The warm-up should spread throughout the state by Wednesday, he added.

"The outlook is nice, at least for the next few days. In the winter, you can't tell beyond that."

Parts of northernmost Florida will have temperatures in the 40s early Tuesday, warming up during the day.

There was scattered frost in North Florida Monday, but little or no crop damage, the Frost Warning Service said.

Dade escaped frost, Ackerman said, when the winds shifted from north to northeast.

Pneumonia Puts Fidel In Sickbed

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Revolutionary Leader Fidel Castro has pneumonia and is running a high fever, his secretary said Monday night.

Castro was confined to his suite in the Havana Hilton Hotel during the weekend by an attack of influenza, but he continued to transact official business from his sickbed and to receive callers until late Monday.

His secretary, Mrs. Blanco de Poce, indicated the pulmonary complication may force him to curb his activities.

Asked whether the latest development would affect Castro's scheduled appearance at the mass rally scheduled for Wednesday, the secretary said the doctor planned to keep him abed until the last minute in an effort to enable him to attend, but that it was too early to state definitely that he would be there.

Before the disclosure of Castro's worsened condition was made, revolutionary "war crimes" trials were postponed or suspended throughout Cuba Monday.

Castro had announced he had invited five U.S. senators and five representatives to witness the trials. Most of those invited sharply rejected the bid.

Sen. George A. Smathers was among those who rejected the bid.

"As a longtime friend of your country," Smathers cabled the rebel chieftain, from Washington, "I have a deep and abiding interest in its affairs.

"However, no useful purpose can be served by my presence or my comments on this occasion.

"I think too much already has been said by individuals who at present know too little about what is going on in your country.

"I join . . . in prayers for forbearance and a sensible approach to many problems with which you are now confronted," Smathers cabled.

Sen. Wayne Morse, (D., Ore.), who has been severely critical of the executions of alleged "war criminals," and Sens. John Sparkman (D., Ala.), and Homer Capehart (R., Ind.) also rejected invitations.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D., N.Y.), one of the House members invited, planned to accept Castro's invitation. Powell, a Negro, has defended the new rebel regime. It was understood that he suggested some of the names of the congressmen invited by Castro.

Besides Smathers and Morse, other senators invited were Theodore Francis Green (D., R. I.), Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) and John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.).

Two House members invited indicated they might make the trip Wednesday.

Rep. Wayne Hays (D., Ohio) said, "I am free and I've got a bag." The office of Rep. Charles O. Porter (D., Ore.)

Mikoyan Wins On Side Issues, Loses Big Ones

By ROBERT S. HOYT
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Anastas I. Mikoyan goes home to Russia today with half a loaf, which — he'd be the first to tell you — is better than none.

He and U.S. officials played footsie for days, with official conferences sandwiched in between the popping flash bulbs.

Not until Monday was it made completely clear by our State Department that we weren't giving an inch on his official requests for better trade conditions.

But the No. 2 Russian had the U. S. eating out of his hand all the varied side dishes he served up, everything but the main course.

With American businessmen he apparently built a fire which has our officials chanting: "Ruskie Go Home." While he may have started public opinion thinking along lines that could ultimately result in more trade, he failed to accomplish what he himself said he came after.

He wanted three things:

Changing the rules so Russia could be extended long-term credit to buy in the U. S.

Favorable tariff conditions for U. S. S. R. goods coming here.

Changes in our policy of not allowing strategic goods to be sent behind the Iron Curtain.

Though he protested that the U. S. is "inflexible," the State Department told him curtly that "when conditions change policies will change," and that was that.

While he was given a reception that by all accounts was "friendly," there wasn't a day without either a public snub by a U. S. official who wouldn't be caught at a luncheon table with him or a picket line of Hungarians lurking around the corner.

Anastas did not come through the experience unscathed, but he gave better than he got from the many sharp questioners he encountered.

And, in the process, he dropped a gem or two worthy of study by our experts:

ASKED ABOUT the migration from East to West Berlin, he suggested that such flights might be prompted more by a desire for a higher standard of living than by a thirst for freedom.

ASKED IF China's Mao Tse-tung was not the world's leading Communist theoretician, Mikoyan said: "He is as good a theoretician as he was."

ASKED ABOUT the truth of claims that Russia has an atomic-powered airplane, he said: "I have not tried to learn military secrets while here, and you should do likewise."

ASKED WHAT would happen if the U. S. used force to supply Berlin, Mikoyan said: "force meets with force, usually."

ABOUT former President Harry S. Truman, he remarked bluntly that "it is a good thing" he "is no longer in office." He said Truman "seems to fear the American people will have a better opinion of the Soviet Union." He said it was during Truman's administration that Russian-U. S. relations began to deteriorate.

AS FOR EISENHOWER, Mikoyan said he likes him "and the reason is clear." He didn't elaborate.

IN ANSWER to questions about the need of the U. S. and the U. S. S. R. to get along, Mikoyan declared himself in favor of peace. He had the audacity even to suggest that godly and ungodly materialism could live side-by-side in the world if leaders of both countries put their minds to it.

And so, as Anastas wings his way over the ocean, into the rising sun, he might well be framing the answers he will have for Premier Nikita Khrushchev about his journey.

He could tell his boss: "In Waukegan we killed 'em, but at the State Department we didn't do so good."

Cold Wave Cuts Into Midwest

CHICAGO —(AP)— A new cold wave knifed into the Midwest Monday. The eastward surge of Arctic air brought the threat of more snow in storm-buffeted areas of New York State and western Pennsylvania.

The Atlantic Seaboard northward to New England enjoyed a brief warmup in advance of the cold front.

Readings pushed into the 60s along the gulf from Texas to Florida. Houston and Brownsville, Tex., had temperatures in the 70s.

But portions of Minnesota and North Dakota shivered in sub-zero cold at midday. Overnight temperatures were expected to slide down to 20 below in Minnesota and Wisconsin and to near zero in Chicago.

New York State was a sea of snow. The fall, starting Friday and running into the weekend, ranged from 67 inches near Lake Ontario to 16 inches in northern New York and a trace in New York City.

A dozen deaths in New York State were attributed to exertion heart attacks or storm-connected accidents. Numerous motorists in western New York abandoned their cars in vaults of snow and ice.

Snow drifts three to four feet high blocked some roads in the Erie, Pa. area. Many rural schools remained closed because buses could not travel over the snow-clogged roads.

Snow flurries and occasional squalls with considerable blowing and drifting snow were on tap for the snow-plagued eastern Great Lakes region today.

Drifting snow also closed schools north of Muskegon, Mich., after 12½ inches of new snow fell in the area.

The new cold front extended from the Great Lakes across the Ohio Valley and into central Texas by midday Monday and was expected to spread into the middle and North Atlantic states and New England today.

GOP's Hunting Convention Site

DES MOINES, Iowa—(UPI)— Republican leaders began their search for a 1960 convention site Monday without ruling out the home territory of either of the major possibilities for the 1960 presidential nomination.

Arguments were heard Monday for New York, the home of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. Spokesmen will be heard today for Los Angeles, the home field of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and for San Francisco, which also is in his home state of California.

The site committee heard bids Monday from Philadelphia and Miami Beach, Fla., as well. Chicago also will be heard today.

For Miami Beach, Mayor Kenneth Oka presented a cash offer of $350,000 and said other benefits would be worth $40,000 to $50,000.

The Democratic site committee decided at New Orleans Sunday to recommend Los Angeles for its 1960 convention. The final decision will be made at the Democratic National Committee meeting at Washington Feb. 27.

The GOP national committee probably will give much thought to picking a more neutral site than either Los Angeles or New York for its convention.

Pneumonia Puts Castro In Sickbed

said he was inclined to accept the Castro invitation.

Castro issued the invitation in hopes of stilling growing criticism in the U.S. against the trial and execution of more than 200 "war criminals" accused of murders and other crimes while they were serving deposed dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Castro was getting increasing support at home for his campaign against the Batistianos whom the revolutionary government has accused of murdering 20,000 men, women and children during the six-year Batista regime.

Msgr. Alfredo Muller, auxiliary bishop of Havana who is the No. 2 Roman Catholic Cleric in Cuba, said he and the church were usually opposed to capital punishment "but in the case of the current proceedings here in Cuba it is justified."

In Havana it was announced that Castro personally will prosecute a group of war crimes defendants in a showcase trial some time this week at Havana's La Cabana Fortress.

The decision to start the trials rests with Provisional President Manuel Urrutia, Castro said. "Urrutia is making the decision. I am not a strong man and I do not want to be one, either," he said.

Women Seek Bahamas Vote

NASSAU, Bahamas —(AP)— A group of women bearing placards demanding the right to vote converged on the Bahamas Assembly Monday.

The legislators declined to hear the delegation in the House chamber but adjourned to the courthouse and listened to the petition there.

Only male freeholders over 21 are allowed to vote in the Bahamas at present.

Secretary of State Lennox Boyd last year ordered the Legislature to provide for universal male suffrage but said women hadn't shown enough interest for him to urge their enfranchisement.

The legislature still has taken no action on female suffrage.

Russia's Moving of Jews Hit

Mikoyan Urged To Block Plan

The American Jewish Committee reported Monday that it is "gravely concerned" over reports of a large scale forced movement of Soviet Jews to the Birobidzhan district in Siberia.

The report, released in Miami, said the move may be proposed at the Soviet Party Communist Congress which opens next week in Moscow.

Representatives of the AJC appealed to Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan in New York to intercede in blocking the forced migration plan.

The Russian official is reported by Jessica P. Schwarz, executive assistant of the AJC here, to have responded:

"The reported plan for the recreation of a Jewish State in Birobidzhan and the large scale transfer of Jewish population in Russia to there is without foundation."

The AJC says it opposes the forced move of Jews or anyone else.

"The fundamental right of the individual to preserve or change his dwelling place and cultural environment in accordance with his own needs and aspirations has been sanctioned by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights," the AJC maintains.

"The basic difficulty in regard to Birobidzhan consists in the inherent artificiality of the idea of settling an urban European element in a primitive Asian area adjacent to the Chinese border, to which no historic, sociological and spiritual ties bind them."

The Birobidzhan district has been labeled by some Soviets as "an autonomous Jewish region."

The AJC group says Jews constitute only one-fifth the population of this district "in which almost all expressions of Jewish cultural life such as schools, theaters, publishing houses have been surpressed."

It added that "the renewal of the scheme (to settle Jews there) would be completely devoid of any incentive for Jews to accept voluntarily the enormous sacrifices and burdens involved."

Texas Blaze Kills 6 People

Sheriff Paul Hopkins said the man had been tentatively identified as Air Force Lt. H. B. Johnson.

Ike Puts Stress On Recovery in 77 Million Budget

1960 fiscal year because of negotiations with Russia over suspending tests.

Foreign aid is a favorite target of the congressional pruning knife. But Eisenhower beat the lawmakers to it this time with a plan for cutting the total for next year by 383 millions, to $3,498,000,000.

That would be a net reduction, with boosts for technical assistance and economic help for friendly countries partly offsetting a slash in military assistance.

As Eisenhower sees it, the domestic economic outlook has changed, bringing opportunities for advances at home and abroad. He put it this way:

"The situation we face today as a nation differs significantly from that a year ago. We are now entering a period of national prosperity and high employment. This is a time for the government to conduct itself so as best to help the nation move forward strongly and confidently in economic and social progress at home, while fulfilling our responsibilities abroad.

"This budget proposes to increase our military effectiveness, to enhance domestic well-being, to help friendly nations to foster their development, to preserve fiscal soundness, and to encourage economic growth and stability, not only in the fiscal year 1960 but in the years beyond. And it clearly shows that these things can be done within our income."

Eisenhower has had his differences with Congress in the past — and probably will again — on foreign aid, airport construction, aid to areas with chronic unemployment, repairing of slums, and school construction.

In this budget, he proposed programs of his own for all these except schools. But they may not be exactly acceptable in a Congress whose Democratic leaders have said they intend to write their own ticket on legislation and spending.

Eisenhower is figuring on skimping and stinting on many domestic items and even some military programs.

Not only that, but instead of tax cuts now, Eisenhower wants some boosts here and there. And he wants some tax loopholes closed.

To keep the vast interstate highway building program on a pay-as-you-go basis, he said, the federal tax on motor fuels must go up from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon.

He urged, too, that the tax on aviation gas be hiked from 2 to 4½ cents a gallon and that a new tax of 4½ cents be applied to jet fuel. Eisenhower invited airlines to pass these taxes on to passengers and shippers if Congress imposes them. He said that would be fair and sound.

The president asked that excise and corporation tax rates be kept at present levels. The corporation levies and some excises are due to drop next summer unless Congress extends them.

Without saying exactly what he has in mind, the chief executive said proposals for "corrective amendments" of the laws on taxing cooperatives will go to Congress soon.

He also asked for action now on what he called an equitable plan of the Treasury Department for taxing income of life insurance companies.

All in all, of the $77,100,000,000 the government plans to take in during the next fiscal year, Eisenhower said 76½ billion will come from increased receipts under present tax rates and 600 million from new taxes and proposed boosts in such things as patent fees and postal rates.

He wants 350 millions from the higher postal rates to cut down the post office deficit. In his budget message, Eisenhower did not spell out just what rates he wants raised, but the administration has pushed in the past for a five-cent letter stamp. Details on Eisenhower's postal proposals are expected to go to Congress later.

Nothing much can be done about cutting down the second biggest item in the budget — a whopping $8,096,000,000 for interest on the national debt.

But the third largest category of expenditures — for agriculture and agricultural resources — is coming down by nearly 800 millions. The new figure is $5,996,000,000.

Most of the decrease is by reason of ending the acreage reserve part of the soil bank program. As in his State of the Union message to Congress 10 days ago, Eisenhower said legislation is urgently needed to revise the farm price support program. But he saved details for a special message later.

For the time being, Eisenhower said, heavy expenditures for veterans benefits will be dropping — by 110 millions in the upcoming fiscal year. They still will hit $5,088,000,000 — the fourth biggest item in the budget.

Without spelling out specifics, the president said there should be a modification of benefits to veterans and their families for disability or death not related to military service — an idea likely to strike sparks from some veterans organizations.

Eisenhower also called for legislation to modernize the veterans pension program in the light of social developments and changes — again with details to come later.

This is a budget that had a little something for nearly everybody:

For Hawaii, statehood; for the District of Columbia, home rule. Eisenhower said it is unconscionable to delay either any longer.

For the thirsty, a start is proposed on plans for a plant to make salt water fit for farm, industrial and municipal use.

For House members there is a dig at their new office building. Mainly because of construction of that and other federal office buildings, Eisenhower said, the costs of the government's administrative and housekeeping operations is going up by 62 millions, to $1,735,000,000.

The chief executive didn't mention it, but buried in tables of figures attached to the budget message is a line showing that expenses of keeping up the White House mansion and grounds are expected to mount from $497,000 to $531,000.

Expenses of the President's executive office are slated to rise by $4,049,000, to $70,201,000, chiefly because of activities of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

On the side of economy, Eisenhower considered it "both possible and prudent to take a breathing spell" in the starting of new public works projects, such as veterans hospitals and water resources developments.

He suggested, too, that states and municipalities chip in more of the cash for flood control, sewage treatment plants, vocational education, disaster relief, aid to the needy, and improving blighted areas in cities.

National Summary

High pressure that maintained a pattern of cool weather in the East over the weekend drifted off the south Atlantic coast Monday with southerly breezes spreading warmer air from the Gulf states into New England.

By noon 60 degree temperatures warmed the Gulf regions from Florida into Texas with Houston and Brownsville recording readings in the 70s.

The eastward sweep of the cold air mass from the plains to the New England states will drop temperatures at a cold wave rate into Illinois and Indiana.

The brief warming trend ahead of the cold front will give snow, sleet and then rain in an area from southern New England into the mountains of western North Carolina early Tuesday.

Warm air in the southern states will stay the cold long enough to develop a band of showers and thunderstorms from central Texas to the lower Mississippi Valley.

Pacific air across the Rockies will spread snow from the Continental Divide across the western side of the cold air mass from Montana to Oklahoma and northern New Mexico.

Fair weather will prevail in the northern plains with dawn temperatures down to 20 below in Minnesota and Wisconsin and in the southwest with mild temperatures.

Mikoyan Wins On Side Issues, Loses Big Ones

By ROBERT S. HOYT
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Anastas I. Mikoyan goes home to Russia today with half a loaf, which — he'd be the first to tell you — is better than none.

He and U.S. officials played footsie for days, with official conferences sandwiched in between the popping flash bulbs.

Not until Monday was it made completely clear by our State Department that we weren't giving an inch on his official requests for better trade conditions.

But the No. 2 Russian had the U. S. eating out of his hand all the varied side dishes he served up, everything but the main course.

With American businessmen he apparently built a fire which has our officials chanting: "Ruskie Go Home." While he may have started public opinion thinking along lines that could ultimately result in more trade, he failed to accomplish what he himself said he came after.

He wanted three things:

Changing the rules so Russia could be extended long-term credit to buy in the U. S.

Favorable tariff conditions for U. S. S. R. goods coming here.

Changes in our policy of not allowing strategic goods to be sent behind the Iron Curtain.

Though he protested that the U. S. is "inflexible," the State Department told him curtly that "when conditions change policies will change," and that was that.

While he was given a reception that by all accounts was "friendly," there wasn't a day without either a public snub by a U. S. official who wouldn't be caught at a luncheon table with him or a picket line of Hungarians lurking around the corner.

Anastas did not come through the experience unscathed, but he gave better than he got from the many sharp questioners he encountered.

And, in the process, he dropped a gem or two worthy of study by our experts:

ASKED ABOUT the migration from East to West Berlin, he suggested that such flights might be prompted more by a desire for a higher standard of living than by a thirst for freedom.

ASKED IF China's Mao Tse-tung was not the world's leading Communist theoretician, Mikoyan said: "He is as good a theoretician as he was."

ASKED ABOUT the truth of claims that Russia has an atomic-powered airplane, he said: "I have not tried to learn military secrets while here, and you should do likewise."

ASKED WHAT would happen if the U. S. used force to supply Berlin, Mikoyan said: "force meets with force, usually."

ABOUT former President Harry S. Truman, he remarked bluntly that "it is a good thing" he "is no longer in office." He said Truman "seems to fear the American people will have a better opinion of the Soviet Union." He said it was during Truman's administration that Russian-U. S. relations began to deteriorate.

AS FOR EISENHOWER, Mikoyan said he likes him "and the reason is clear." He didn't elaborate.

IN ANSWER to questions about the need of the U. S. and the U. S. S. R. to get along, Mikoyan declared himself in favor of peace. He had the audacity even to suggest that godly and ungodly materialism could live side-by-side in the world if leaders of both countries put their minds to it.

And so, as Anastas wings his way over the ocean, into the rising sun, he might well be framing the answers he will have for Premier Nikita Khrushchev about his journey.

He could tell his boss: "In Waukegan we killed 'em, but at the State Department we didn't do so good."

Cold Wave Cuts Into Midwest

CHICAGO —(AP)— A new cold wave knifed into the Midwest Monday. The eastward surge of Arctic air brought the threat of more snow in storm-buffeted areas of New York State and western Pennsylvania.

The Atlantic Seaboard northward to New England enjoyed a brief warmup in advance of the cold front.

Readings pushed into the 60s along the gulf from Texas to Florida. Houston and Brownsville, Tex., had temperatures in the 70s.

But portions of Minnesota and North Dakota shivered in sub-zero cold at midday. Overnight temperatures were expected to slide down to 20 below in Minnesota and Wisconsin and to near zero in Chicago.

New York State was a sea of snow. The fall, starting Friday and running into the weekend, ranged from 67 inches near Lake Ontario to 16 inches in northern New York and a trace in New York City.

A dozen deaths in New York State were attributed to exertion heart attacks or storm-connected accidents. Numerous motorists in western New York abandoned their cars in vaults of snow and ice.

Snow drifts three to four feet high blocked some roads in the Erie, Pa. area. Many rural schools remained closed because buses could not travel over the snow-clogged roads.

Snow flurries and occasional squalls with considerable blowing and drifting snow were on tap for the snow-plagued eastern Great Lakes region today.

Drifting snow also closed schools north of Muskegon, Mich., after 12½ inches of new snow fell in the area.

The new cold front extended from the Great Lakes across the Ohio Valley and into central Texas by midday Monday and was expected to spread into the middle and North Atlantic states and New England today.

GOP's Hunting Convention Site

DES MOINES, Iowa—(UPI) — Republican leaders began their search for a 1960 convention site Monday without ruling out the home territory of either of the major possibilities for the 1960 presidential nomination.

Arguments were heard Monday for New York, the home of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. Spokesmen will be heard today for Los Angeles, the home field of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and for San Francisco, which also is in his home state of California.

The site committee heard bids Monday from Philadelphia and Miami Beach, Fla., as well. Chicago also will be heard today.

For Miami Beach, Mayor Kenneth Oka presented a cash offer of $350,000 and said other benefits would be worth $40,000 to $50,000.

The Democratic site committee decided at New Orleans Sunday to recommend Los Angeles for its 1960 convention. The final decision will be made at the Democratic National Committee meeting at Washington Feb. 27.

The GOP national committee probably will give much thought to picking a more neutral site than either Los Angeles or New York for its convention.

Pneumonia Puts Castro In Sickbed

said he was inclined to accept the Castro invitation.

Castro issued the invitation in hopes of stilling growing criticism in the U.S. against the trial and execution of more than 200 "war criminals" accused of murders and other crimes while they were serving deposed dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Castro was getting increasing support at home for his campaign against the Batistianos whom the revolutionary government has accused of murdering 20,000 men, women and children during the six-year Batista regime.

Msgr. Alfredo Muller, auxiliary bishop of Havana who is the No. 2 Roman Catholic Cleric in Cuba, said he and the church were usually opposed to capital punishment "but in the case of the current proceedings here in Cuba it is justified."

In Havana it was announced that Castro personally will prosecute a group of war crimes defendants in a showcase trial some time this week at Havana's La Cabana Fortress.

The decision to start the trials rests with Provisional President Manuel Urrutia, Castro said. "Urrutia is making the decision. I am not a strong man and I do not want to be one, either," he said.

Women Seek Bahamas Vote

NASSAU, Bahamas —(AP)— A group of women bearing placards demanding the right to vote converged on the Bahamas Assembly Monday.

The legislators declined to hear the delegation in the House chamber but adjourned to the courthouse and listened to the petition there.

Only male freeholders over 21 are allowed to vote in the Bahamas at present.

Secretary of State Lennox Boyd last year ordered the Legislature to provide for universal male suffrage but said women hadn't shown enough interest for him to urge their enfranchisement.

The legislature still has taken no action on female suffrage.

Russia's Moving of Jews Hit

Mikoyan Urged To Block Plan

The American Jewish Committee reported Monday that it is "gravely concerned" over reports of a large scale forced movement of Soviet Jews to the Birobidzhan district in Siberia.

The report, released in Miami, said the move may be proposed at the Soviet Party Communist Congress which opens next week in Moscow.

Representatives of the AJC appealed to Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan in New York to intercede in blocking the forced migration plan.

The Russian official is reported by Jessica P. Schwarz, executive assistant of the AJC here, to have responded:

"The reported plan for the recreation of a Jewish State in Birobidzhan and the large scale transfer of Jewish population in Russia to there is without foundation."

The AJC says it opposes the forced move of Jews or anyone else.

"The fundamental right of the individual to preserve or change his dwelling place and cultural environment in accordance with his own needs and aspirations has been sanctioned by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights," the AJC maintains.

"The basic difficulty in regard to Birobidzhan consists in the inherent artificiality of the idea of settling an urban European element in a primitive Asian area adjacent to the Chinese border, to which no historic, sociological and spiritual ties bind them."

The Birobidzhan district has been labeled by some Soviets as "an autonomous Jewish region."

The AJC group says Jews constitute only one-fifth the population of this district "in which almost all expressions of Jewish cultural life such as schools, theaters, publishing houses have been surpressed."

It added that "the renewal of the scheme (to settle Jews there) would be completely devoid of any incentive for Jews to accept voluntarily the enormous sacrifices and burdens involved."

Ike Puts Stress On Recovery in 77 Million Budget

1960 fiscal year because of negotiations with Russia over suspending tests.

Foreign aid is a favorite target of the congressional pruning knife. But Eisenhower beat the lawmakers to it this time with a plan for cutting the total for next year by 383 millions, to $3,498,000,000.

That would be a net reduction, with boosts for technical assistance and economic help for friendly countries partly offsetting a slash in military assistance.

As Eisenhower sees it, the domestic economic outlook has changed, bringing opportunities for advances at home and abroad. He put it this way:

"The situation we face today as a nation differs significantly from that a year ago. We are now entering a period of national prosperity and high employment. This is a time for the government to conduct itself so as best to help the nation move forward strongly and confidently in economic and social progress at home, while fulfilling our responsibilities abroad.

"This budget proposes to increase our military effectiveness, to enhance domestic well-being, to help friendly nations to foster their development, to preserve fiscal soundness, and to encourage economic growth and stability, not only in the fiscal year 1960 but in the years beyond. And it clearly shows that these things can be done within our income."

Eisenhower has had his differences with Congress in the past — and probably will again — on foreign aid, airport construction, aid to areas with chronic unemployment, repairing of slums, and school construction.

In this budget, he proposed programs of his own for all these except schools. But they may not be exactly acceptable in a Congress whose Democratic leaders have said they intend to write their own ticket on legislation and spending.

Eisenhower is figuring on skimping and stinting on many domestic items and even some military programs.

Not only that, but instead of tax cuts now, Eisenhower wants some boosts here and there. And he wants some tax loopholes closed.

To keep the vast interstate highway building program on a pay-as-you-go basis, he said, the federal tax on motor fuels must go up from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon.

He urged, too, that the tax on aviation gas be hiked from 2 to 4½ cents a gallon and that a new tax of 4½ cents be applied to jet fuel. Eisenhower invited airlines to pass these taxes on to passengers and shippers if Congress imposes them. He said that would be fair and sound.

The president asked that excise and corporation tax rates be kept at present levels. The corporation levies and some excises are due to drop next summer unless Congress extends them.

Without saying exactly what he has in mind, the chief executive said proposals for "corrective amendments" of the laws on taxing cooperatives will go to Congress soon.

He also asked for action now on what he called an equitable plan of the Treasury Department for taxing income of life insurance companies.

All in all, of the $77,100,000,000 the government plans to take in during the next fiscal year, Eisenhower said 76½ billion will come from increased receipts under present tax rates and 600 million from new taxes and proposed boosts in such things as patent fees and postal rates.

He wants 350 millions from the higher postal rates to cut down the post office deficit. In his budget message, Eisenhower did not spell out just what rates he wants raised, but the administration has pushed in the past for a five-cent letter stamp. Details on Eisenhower's postal proposals are expected to go to Congress later.

Nothing much can be done about cutting down the second biggest item in the budget — a whopping $8,096,000,000 for interest on the national debt.

But the third largest category of expenditures — for agriculture and agricultural resources — is coming down by nearly 800 millions. The new figure is $5,996,000,000.

Most of the decrease is by reason of ending the acreage reserve part of the soil bank program. As in his State of the Union message to Congress 10 days ago, Eisenhower said legislation is urgently needed to revise the farm price support program. But he saved details for a special message later.

For the time being, Eisenhower said, heavy expenditures for veterans benefits will be dropping — by 110 millions in the upcoming fiscal year. They still will hit $5,088,000,000 — the fourth biggest item in the budget.

Without spelling out specifics, the president said there should be a modification of benefits to veterans and their families for disability or death not related to military service — an idea likely to strike sparks from some veterans organizations.

Eisenhower also called for legislation to modernize the veterans pension program in the light of social developments and changes — again with details to come later.

This is a budget that had a little something for nearly everybody:

For Hawaii, statehood; for the District of Columbia, home rule. Eisenhower said it is unconscionable to delay either any longer.

For the thirsty, a start is proposed on plans for a plant to make salt water fit for farm, industrial and municipal use.

For House members there is a dig at their new office building. Mainly because of construction of that and other federal office buildings, Eisenhower said, the costs of the government's administrative and housekeeping operations is going up by 62 millions, to $1,735,000,000.

The chief executive didn't mention it, but buried in tables of figures attached to the budget message is a line showing that expenses of keeping up the White House mansion and grounds are expected to mount from $497,000 to $531,000.

Expenses of the President's executive office are slated to rise by $4,049,000, to $70,201,000, chiefly because of activities of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

On the side of economy, Eisenhower considered it "both possible and prudent to take a breathing spell" in the starting of new public works projects, such as veterans hospitals and water resources developments.

He suggested, too, that states and municipalities chip in more of the cash for flood control, sewage treatment plants, vocational education, disaster relief, aid to the needy, and improving blighted areas in cities.

National Summary

High pressure that maintained a pattern of cool weather in the East over the weekend drifted off the south Atlantic coast Monday with southerly breezes spreading warmer air from the Gulf states into New England.

By noon 60 degree temperatures warmed the Gulf regions from Florida into Texas with Houston and Brownsville recording readings in the 70s.

The eastward sweep of the cold air mass from the plains to the New England states will drop temperatures at a cold wave rate into Illinois and Indiana.

The brief warming trend ahead of the cold front will give snow, sleet and then rain in an area from southern New England into the mountains of western North Carolina early Tuesday.

Warm air in the southern states will stay the cold long enough to develop a band of showers and thunderstorms from central Texas to the lower Mississippi Valley.

Pacific air across the Rockies will spread snow from the Continental Divide across the western side of the cold air mass from Montana to Oklahoma and northern New Mexico.

Fair weather will prevail in the northern plains with dawn temperatures down to 20 below in Minnesota and Wisconsin and in the southwest with mild temperatures.

Balanced Budget Blamed

Officials Plan A New Appeal

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — Broward County Port Authority members were shocked Monday to find President Eisenhower left out of his budget proposal $1,650,000 for deepening and enlarging the port.

Chairman E. J. Crowells said he would talk this morning with Congressman Paul Rogers about the possibility of getting the appropriation restored.

On Wednesday he will ask the Port Board to send Port Manager R. T. Spangler and Attorney Ted Cabot to Washington to see what they can do to get money for the project, which has been in the works for four years.

The Herald Bureau in Washington reported the project was a victim "of the President's burning desire for a balanced budget." The president laid down a policy of no new starts on public works projects this year.

The project has run the full course — investigation and approval by the Corps of Engineers, approval by the Senate and House appropriations committees and the Bureau of the Budget.

CROWELLS

Such a project requires Congress to vote two bills, the first authorizing the project, the second appropriating funds.

The first bill was passed by both houses last year and $28,000 was appropriated for advanced planning and design.

The port is too small now to handle efficiently all of the ships that come here, Crowells said. It could accommodate many more when expanded.

It's building a dock 1,400 feet to the south, and the turning basin will have to be extended to serve it, he pointed out.

The $1,650,000 was to be an initial appropriation to carry out the first year's phase of the work of extending and deepening the turning basin and channel so that the port could accommodate super tankers and bigger ships than now can be handled.

The total cost of the project will be $7,175,000, of which the federal government would pay $6,683,000. The Port District will pay the rest.

Robert S. McConnaughey, vice chairman of the Port Authority, said he feels the project is of considerable importance to national defense, since a pipeline for jet fuel is to be laid from the port to Miami International Airport and the Homestead Air Force Base.

The project calls for deepening the channel to 40 feet and most of the turning basin to 37 feet.

McConnaughey felt that the President's budget may contain funds for other Florida projects of lesser importance than enlarging the port and that possibly some of these funds could be cut or dropped, and replaced with the port appropriation.

Two Bills Readied by Hollywood

Herald Bureau

HOLLYWOOD — City Attorney August Paoli will present two bills to state legislators Wednesday at the Broward County Courthouse.

One would set up procedure for annexation of the sprawling West Hollywood area, and the other would permit the city to obtain leases to private property for parking and recreational facilities.

Paoli will report to city commissioners today on the annexation bill.

"According to the statutes it will take a majority of two thirds of the votes cast in a dual referendum to annex West Hollywood," Paoli said.

Observers feel the city would have a difficult time annexing the area with a regular 51 per cent majority rule in effect.

The bill will call for referendums in both Hollywood and West Hollywood. There are factions in each area that do not want annexation.

West Hollywood leaders will confer with the legislators the same day on incorporation plans.

Paoli said the city can lease its property to private individuals now, but is prevented by the charter from leasing private lands for municipal use.

"The city might be able to obtain a lease to private property, but I think it would require a referendum," Paoli said.

(1) They found out they didn't know the exact length of their mortgage, in terms of years. They wrote the institution which holds the mortgage, a Miami savings and loan association, and asked. No answer. "Shame on them . . . a great big efficient Miami bank and no one can read words, only figures."

(2) A TV program sponsor announced that if anyone wrote him a letter telling why he should or should not stay open on Sunday, the writer would receive a cigaret lighter. They wrote. No lighter.

(3) A TV announcer asked for letters: 'Write him and receive a cigaret lighter. Just for the heck of it, the Miramar woman and her husband wrote again. Came the announcement from the station: They had 1,000 letters and only 60 lighters.

Let's cut it out, the lady suggests, and not just look big and beautiful, but BE that way. Amen . . .

It made us realize that the 10 hometown boys who were nominated for the honor, much as we think of them, never had a chance. This was fast company . . .

Remember Our First Railroads?

READING THE NOTE here about the arrival of the first Seaboard train in South Florida, Vic Moore recalls that the reason why the tracks were laid so far west of town was an agreement with Henry Flagler's Florida East Coast. Big Smash, No Contest

Steamroller Loses Bout With Freight

Herald Bureau

HOLLYWOOD — A four-ton pavement roller was knocked through the air like a golf ball here Monday morning by a freight train.

No one was injured, police said.

The roller was on a trailer. The 18-car freight drove it 44 feet through the air.

The roller landed on a grade-crossing signal box, crushing it; and then bounced into a power pole, snapping it like a twig.

The front roller wheel flew off and sailed 100 feet farther down Dixie Hwy.

Traffic was snarled at seven grade-crossings by damage to the signal box.

The roller was on a trailer hitched to a dump truck driven by Louis C. Farruggia, 34, of Hollywood. The vehicle stalled on the Florida East Coast grade crossing at Garfield St., near Dixie Hwy.

Farruggia told police he leaped from the truck and tried to flag down the train, approaching at about 35 miles and hour, but it was too late. The engineer said he had applied the train's brakes 1,000 feet before impact.

The $4,000 roller was a total loss. Damage to the signal box was set at $1,500.

Trash Fire Casts Pall On Studies

HALLANDALE — Smoke from a Hallandale city trash dump, near Lanier Junior High School, create a health hazard and prevents students from using their playground, southwest Hollywood residents charged Monday.

School Board Member J. O. Calvin of Hollywood said he would investigate the complaints today. "I will file a protest immediately if the charges are true," he said.

One of those complaining is a skin specialist, Dr. J. M. Greenhouse. "The smoke could precipitate upper respiratory infections," he said. "I've known it to happen in St. Louis, where I used to live."

He said the smoke caused throat and eye irritations and affected persons with sinus and asthmatic conditions.

The Southwest Hollywood Civic Association unanimously adopted a resolution, demanding immediate action by the City of Hallandale.

A Lanier School official, who declined to be quoted by name, confirmed the charges.

The official said that occasionally the smoke made it difficult to conduct classes, and the school had problems with persons dumping trash on school grounds, instead of the adjoining dump. The school is on Pembroke Rd.

Calvin said the school board hoped to have a new senior high on the same grounds by next September. The board just acquired more acreage for the expansion.

"I didn't think Hallandale was still dumping over there," he said.

Health Department Sanitarian Sidney Paetro said he had not received any complaints.

Hallandale City Manager Ralph Smith said the city had been burning tree clippings and other dry trash when there was an east wind. An east wind would carry the smoke over a relatively unpopulated section.

He said no wet garbage is burned at the site. Hallandale uses the Hollywood incinerator for garbage disposal.

"That smoke is worse than garbage smoke," said Mort Burns, chairman of the southwest group.

Smith said he did not know old tires had been burned on the dump as charged by the residents. He said it was used about once a week.

Clerk Ready With Check

FORT LAUDERDALE — Circuit Court Clerk Frank Marks will present the County Commission today with a $143,930.74 check for the general fund. It represents excess fees received by his office in 1958.

It's an increase of about 10 per cent over 1957 despite the recession, Marks said. "I'm very proud of the showing," Marks said.

Legislators Hear Local Proposals

County Fire Unit Appeal Hits Snag

Volunteers Fear Being Eliminated

By PETER LAINE
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — Conflicts over Melrose Park incorporation and county fire protection followed an urgent plea for mental health aid at Monday's legislative delegation hearing.

Officials of the Melrose Park Homeowners Association said they wanted to incorporate their own community, and not merge with New Rivers.

"We would rather join Fort Lauderdale," declared Murad Mano.

New Rivers spokesmen said they were "surprised" at Melrose Park's attitude, but would present their own incorporation plans.

Mano, for the MPHA, declared the previous delegation was "remiss" in dropping the incorporation bill when it got to Tallahassee in 1957.

State Rep. A. J. Ryan Jr. promised the association would be notified of the bill's status "in plenty of time" this year.

John Lassiter, secretary of the County Volunteer Firemen's Association, asked for a bill setting up five fire stations to protect unincorporated areas.

"It would cost about $250,000 a year to set up and maintain," he added.

Officers of the New Rivers and Rock Island units opposed the idea. It would eliminate volunteer departments, they said.

M. L. Lehman, firemen association president, said: "I'm embarrassed. We'll iron out our differences at Monday's meeting. We're trying to strengthen protection, not lose volunteers' identity."

Dr. Henry Bessette, head of the Broward County Mental Hygiene Clinic, told the delegation: "We're so understaffed that the ordinary applicant may have to wait seven months for help."

He asked for more funds to finance another team comprising a psychologist, a psychiatric social worker, and a consultant child psychiatrist.

"Our survey shows 60 children under 12 in the county need in-patient care," Dr. Bessette added. "We need a center for them."

The University of Miami is interested in using the clinic as a training center, he added.

Requests heard by Ryan, State Rep. Emerson Allsworth, and State Sen. George Tedder also included:

LEO SABLE, 3066 N. Atlantic Blvd., on action to stop beach erosion. "We intend to do something about it," Ryan said.

BILL STEVENS, Oakland Park mayor, for charter changes. They include expansion of the city to the north and west, and the establishment of a Greater Oakland Park area reaching to State Rd. 7 on the west and McNab Rd. on the north.

ARCHIE PFLANZER, Oakland Park contractor, who complained that too many builders run out on their bills. Allsworth said there will be attempts to amend the lien law this year.

MRS. ROSE MAY, 1341 NW Third Ave., who asked that the Central and South Florida Flood Control District be required to complete its drainage program before the county starts similar work.

More hearings will be held Wednesday. Scheduled are Hallandale Vice Mayor Russell Wilson on charter changes; H. C. Schwartz, chairman of the South Broward Hospital District, on changes to the enabling act for the South Florida State Hospital; Hollywood Attorney A. C. Paoli on charter changes; Jack Hines, County Taxpayers League president, on county activities; Hollywood Chamber of Commerce officials on West Hollywood incorporation; Mrs. Phyllis Hall on nonpartisan School Board elections; Mrs. M. C. Dearden, president of the League of Women Voters, on a new constitution; and Frank Akerman on special liquor licenses.

Good Old-Fashioned Feud Brews

Official Grabs Free Cruise

FORT LAUDERDALE — City Hall had the makings of a good oldfashioned feud Monday after one city official "rolled" another for an attractive free trip.

The trip is a flight to Norfolk, Va., and return ride

The trip is a flight to Norfolk, Va., and return ride aboard the USS Newport News, a heavy cruiser which will dock at Port Everglades Friday.

Vice Mayor Robert Childers and City Manager William Veeder are expected to leave today.

The Navy issued invitations to Mayor John Russell and City Publicity Director Forrest Crane.

Russell couldn't go, and Childers was to sub for him.

"My invitation was taken by the city manager," complained Crane, who obviously was miffed about the whole thing. "I'm at his mercy."

Veeder is Crane's boss.

Veeder is Crane's boss.

Did Veeder really "roll" Crane for the trip?

"Ina sense, yes," he replied, not at all disturbed by the situation, "but not exactly.

"Russell said, 'Work out anything you can.' I told Crane I was trying to work it out so a commissioner could go but if no commissioner could go, he (Crane) and I would go."

The USS Newport News is a flagship of Rear Adm. Lewis S Parks, commander, cruiser force, Atlantic Fleet.

"I will wire the admiral my regrets and tell him why," Crane said. "I'd already wired my acceptance."

Commented Commissioner Ed Johns, who wasn't invited and isn't going: "Friction has always been there. I got my ears pinned back when I tried to get him (Crane) a raise."

"Only thing I'm concerned with is that the city is represented," Mayor Russell said.

Sewer Plan Authorized

Herald Bureau

DANIA—The City Commission Monday night authorized consulting engineers to draw up plans for a sanitary sewer system.

The action came on a request from the engineers, Philpot, Ross and Saarinen for specific information on where the sewers are to go.

Preliminary cost of the sewer system is $2,050,000.

FORT LAUDERDALE — Fake $100 bills are beginning to show up in Broward County.

John Marshall, agent in charge of the U.S. Secret Service office in Miami, said a counterfeit bill passed at Hialeah Race Track was obtained here.

Marshall said the person who passed the bill at Hialeah apparently was unaware the money wasn't good.

"There may be more in Broward County," Marshall said. "There's no way to tell what's in the hands of tourists."

Marshall said the fake bills have been in circulation in Chicago, New York and other northern cities. Fourteen have been discovered here, he said.

"We don't know if they are being 'passed' by professional thieves or if tourists are innocently handing them out," he said.

Marshall said the bills have the check numbers K-21 and L-21, the back plate number 110, and are drawn on the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

The money has shown up at banks, Tropical Park and Hialeah.

Thomas Lynch, vice president and general manager of the Hollywood Kennel Club said mutul clerks and cashiers at the dog track have been alerted to watch for the bills.

"We haven't spotted any yet," he said.

Neither have employes of the Dania Jai-Alai Fronton, said Eric Tait, controller. They, too, have been alerted to watch for the counterfeit money.

Balanced Budget Blamed

Officials Plan A New Appeal

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — Broward County Port Authority members were shocked Monday to find President Eisenhower left out of his budget proposal $1,650,000 for deepening and enlarging the port.

Chairman E. J. Crowells said he would talk this morning with Congressman Paul Rogers about the possibility of getting the appropriation restored.

On Wednesday he will ask the Port Board to send Port Manager R. T. Spangler and Attorney Ted Cabot to Washington to see what they can do to get money for the project, which has been in the works for four years.

CROWELLS

The Herald Bureau in Washinton reported the project was a victim "of the President's burning desire for a balanced budget." The president laid down a policy of no new starts on public works projects this year.

The project has run the full course — investigation and approval by the Corps of Engineers, approval by the Senate and House appropriations committees and the Bureau of the Budget.

Such a project requires Congress to vote two bills, the first authorizing the project, the second appropriating funds.

The first bill was passed by both houses last year and $28,000 was appropriated for advanced planning and design.

The port is too small now to handle efficiently all of the ships that come here, Crowells said. It could accommodate many more when expanded.

It's building a dock 1,400 feet to the south, and the turning basin will have to be extended to serve it, he pointed out.

The $1,650,000 was to be an initial appropriation to carry out the first year's phase of the work of extending and deepening the turning basin and channel so that the port could accommodate super tankers and bigger ships than now can be handled.

The total cost of the project will be $7,175,000, of which the federal government would pay $6,683,000. The Port District will pay the rest.

Robert S. McConnaughey, vice chairman of the Port Authority, said he feels the project is of considerable importance to national defense, since a pipeline for jet fuel is to be laid from the port to Miami International Airport and the Homestead Air Force Base.

The project calls for deepening the channel to 40 feet and most of the turning basin to 37 feet.

McConnaughey felt that the President's budget may contain funds for other Florida projects of lesser importance than enlarging the port and that possibly some of these funds could be cut or dropped, and replaced with the port appropriation.

Two Bills Readied by Hollywood

Herald Bureau

HOLLYWOOD — City Attorney August Paoli will present two bills to state legislators Wednesday at the Broward County Courthouse.

One would set up procedure for annexation of the sprawling West Hollywood area, and the other would permit the city to obtain leases to private property for parking and recreational facilities.

Paoli will report to city commissioners today on the annexation bill.

"According to the statutes it will take a majority of two thirds of the votes cast in a dual referendum to annex West Hollywood," Paoli said.

Observers feel the city would have a difficult time annexing the area with a regular 51 per cent majority rule in effect.

The bill will call for referendums in both Hollywood and West Hollywood. There are factions in each area that do not want annexation.

West Hollywood leaders will confer with the legislators the same day on incorporation plans.

Paoli said the city can lease its property to private individuals now, but is prevented by the charter from leasing private lands for municipal use.

"The city might be able to obtain a lease to private property, but I think it would require a referendum," Paoli said.

'You Can Fool Some People . . .'

REALLY, SHE SAYS, she likes living here (her home's in Miramar) and isn't an habitual griper, but for almost two years now she and her husband have been laughing off "silly business methods." Now they feel it might be well to speak up about a few of them. For example:

(1) They found out they didn't know the exact length of their mortgage, in terms of years. They wrote the institution which holds the mortgage, a Miami savings and loan association, and asked. No answer. "Shame on them . . . a great big efficient Miami bank and no one can read words, only figures."

(2) A TV program sponsor announced that if anyone wrote him a letter telling why he should or should not stay open on Sunday, the writer would receive a cigaret lighter. They wrote. No lighter.

(3) A TV announcer asked for letters: 'Write him and receive a cigaret lighter. Just for the heck of it, the Miramar woman and her husband wrote again. Came the announcement from the station: They had 1,000 letters and only 60 lighters.

Let's cut it out, the lady suggests, and not just look big and beautiful, but BE that way. Amen . . .

10 OYMC Was Good Publicity

THE TRUE WORTH of the Ten Outstanding Young Men Congress here didn't become apparent to the community as a whole, it seems, until the final night when the award winners were paraded across the TV screen.

It may not have been the most lucrative convention Fort Lauderdale has ever had, but it hasn't been surpassed for the distinguished achievements of the people it brought here. The fact that a University of Florida man was among them made it doubly good.

It made us realize that the 10 hometown boys who were nominated for the honor, much as we think of them, never had a chance. This was fast company . . .

Remember Our First Railroads?

READING THE NOTE here about the arrival of the first Seaboard train in South Florida, Vic Moore recalls that the reason why the tracks were laid so far west of town was an agreement with Henry Flagler's Florida East Coast. There was to be no other railroad within 2½ miles. The details seem to be hazy. Does anyone remember? . . .

Anyone who thinks all booted motorcycle riders are juvenile delinquents — or potential delinquents — should have seen them in action Saturday and Sunday. They worked all night picking up contributions to the UCP telethon . . . The amateur radio operators of the county, directed by Jim Knight, dozens of high school students and a number of adult clubs rate a cheer for helping out at the First National Bank headquarters . . .

Something unusual in singing commercials will be coming over the local radio stations soon. It's a musical plug for the Kiwanis Boat and Sport Show — a song written by Charley Gravett to a tune swiped from an old Kiwanis song and recorded by a chorus of 100 club members . . .

Big Smash, No Contest

Steamroller Loses Bout With Freight

Herald Bureau

HOLLYWOOD — A four-ton pavement roller was knocked through the air like a golf ball here Monday morning by a freight train.

No one was injured, police said.

The roller was on a trailer. The 18-car freight drove it 44 feet through the air.

The roller landed on a grade-crossing signal box, crushing it; and then bounced into a power pole, snapping it like a twig.

The front roller wheel flew off and sailed 100 feet farther down Dixie Hwy.

Traffic was snarled at seven grade-crossings by damage to the signal box.

The roller was on a trailer hitched to a dump truck driven by Louis C. Farruggia, 34, of Hollywood. The vehicle stalled on the Florida East Coast grade crossing at Garfield St., near Dixie Hwy.

Farruggia told police he leaped from the truck and tried to flag down the train, approaching at about 35 miles and hour, but it was too late. The engineer said he had applied the train's brakes 1,000 feet before impact.

The $4,000 roller was a total loss. Damage to the signal box was set at $1,500.

Trash Fire Casts Pall On Studies

HALLANDALE — Smoke from a Hallandale city trash dump, near Lanier Junior High School, create a health hazard and prevents students from using their playground, southwest Hollywood residents charged Monday.

School Board Member J. O. Calvin of Hollywood said he would investigate the complaints today. "I will file a protest immediately if the charges are true," he said.

One of those complaining is a skin specialist, Dr. J. M. Greenhouse. "The smoke could precipitate upper respiratory infections," he said. "I've known it to happen in St. Louis, where I used to live."

He said the smoke caused throat and eye irritations and affected persons with sinus and asthmatic conditions.

The Southwest Hollywood Civic Association unanimously adopted a resolution, demanding immediate action by the City of Hallandale.

A Lanier School official, who declined to be quoted by name, confirmed the charges.

The official said that occasionally the smoke made it difficult to conduct classes, and the school had problems with persons dumping trash on school grounds, instead of the adjoining dump. The school is on Pembroke Rd.

Calvin said the school board hoped to have a new senior high on the same grounds by next September. The board just acquired more acreage for the expansion.

"I didn't think Hallandale was still dumping over there," he said.

Health Department Sanitarian Sidney Paetro said he had not received any complaints.

Hallandale City Manager Ralph Smith said the city had been burning tree clippings and other dry trash when there was an east wind. An east wind would carry the smoke over a relatively unpopulated section.

He said no wet garbage is burned at the site. Hallandale uses the Hollywood incinerator for garbage disposal.

"That smoke is worse than garbage smoke," said Mort Burns, chairman of the southwest group.

Smith said he did not know old tires had been burned on the dump, as charged by the residents. He said it was used about once a week.

Clerk Ready With Check

FORT LAUDERDALE — Circuit Court Clerk Frank Marks will present the County Commission today with a $143,930.74 check for the general fund. It represents excess fees received by his office in 1958.

It's an increase of about 10 per cent over 1957 despite the recession, Marks said. "I'm very proud of the showing," Marks said.

Legislators Hear Local Proposals

County Fire Unit Appeal Hits Snag

Volunteers Fear Being Eliminated

By PETER LAINE

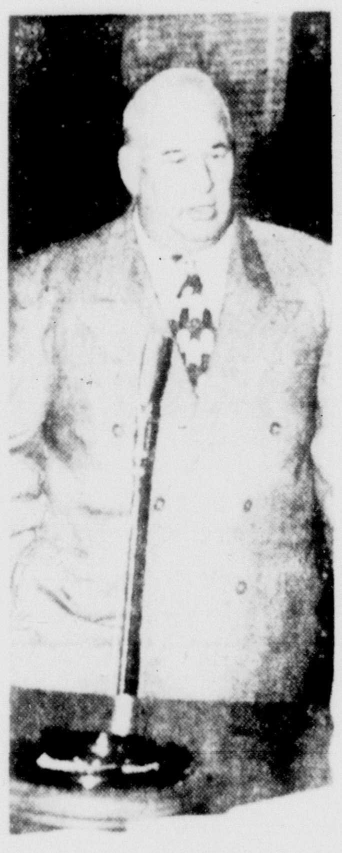
FORT LAUDERDALE — Conflicts over Melrose Park incorporation and county fire protection followed an urgent plea for mental health aid at Monday's legislative delegation hearing.

Officials of the Melrose Park Homeowners Association said they wanted to incorporate their own community, and not merge with New Rivers.



Backs Incorporation

William Simpson
. . . for incorporation

"We would rather join Fort Lauderdale," declared Murad Mano.

New Rivers spokesmen said they were "surprised" at Melrose Park's attitude, but would present their own incorporation plans.

Mano, for the MPHA, declared the previous delegation was "remiss" in dropping the incorporation bill when it got to Tallahassee in 1957.

State Rep. A. J. Ryan Jr. promised the association would be notified of the bill's status "in plenty of time" this year.

John Lassiter, secretary of the County Volunteer Firemen's Association, asked for a bill setting up five fire stations to protect unincorporated areas.

"It would cost about $250,000 a year to set up and maintain," he added.

Officers of the New Rivers and Rock Island units opposed the idea. It would eliminate volunteer departments, they said.

M. L. Lehman, firemen association president, said: "I'm embarrassed. We'll iron out our differences at Monday's meeting. We're trying to strengthen protection, not lose volunteers' identity."

Dr. Henry Bessette, head of the Broward County Mental Hygiene Clinic, told the delegation: "We're so understaffed that the ordinary applicant may have to wait seven months for help."

He asked for more funds to finance another team comprising a psychologist, a psychiatric social worker, and a consultant child psychiatrist.

"Our survey shows 60 children under 12 in the county need in-patient care," Dr. Bessette added. "We need a center for them."

The University of Miami is interested in using the clinic as a training center, he added.

Requests heard by Ryan, State Rep. Emerson Allsworth, and State Sen. George Tedder also included:

LEO SABLE, 3066 N. Atlantic Blvd., on action to stop beach erosion. "We intend to do something about it," Ryan said.

MRS. ROSE MAY, 1341 NW Third Ave., who asked that the Central and South Florida Flood Control District be required to complete its drainage program before the county starts similar work.

More hearings will be held Wednesday. Scheduled are Hallandale Vice Mayor Russell Wilson on charter changes; H. C. Schwartz, chairman of the South Broward Hospital District, on changes to the enabling act for the South Florida State Hospital; Hollywood Attorney A. C. Paoli on charter changes; Jack Hines, County Taxpayers League president, on county activities; Hollywood Chamber of Commerce officials on West Hollywood incorporation; Mrs. Phyllis Hall on nonpartisan School Board elections; Mrs. M. Official Grabs Free Cruise

CRANE

VEEDER

FORT LAUDERDALE — City Hall had the makings of a good oldfashioned feud Monday after one city official "rolled" another for an attractive free trip.

The trip is a flight to Norfolk, Va., and return ride

The trip is a flight to Norfolk, Va., and return ride aboard the USS Newport News, a heavy cruiser which will dock at Port Everglades Friday.

Vice Mayor Robert Childers and City Manager William Veeder are expected to leave today.

The Navy issued invitations to Mayor John Russell and City Publicity Director Forrest Crane.

Russell couldn't go, and Childers was to sub for him.

"My invitation was taken by the city manager," complained Crane, who obviously was miffed about the whole thing. "I'm at his mercy."

Veeder is Crane'sob s
Veeder is Crane's boss.

Did Veeder really "roll" Crane for the trip?

"Ina sense, yes," he replied, not at all disturbed by the situation, "but not exactly.

"Russell said, 'Work out anything you can.' I told Crane I was trying to work it out so a commissioner could go but if no commissioner could go, he (Crane) and I would go."

The USS Newport News ia a flagship of Rear Adm. Lewis S. Parks, commander, cruiser force, Atlantic Fleet.

"I will wire the admiral my regrets and tell him why," Crane said. "I'd already wired my acceptance."

Commented Commissioner Ed Johns, who wasn't invited and isn't going: "Friction has always been there. I got my ears pinned back when I tried to get him (Crane) a raise."

"Only thing I'm concerned with is that the city is represented," Mayor Russell said.

Sewer Plan Authorized

Herald Bureau

DANIA—The City Commission Monday night authorized consulting engineers to draw up plans for a sanitary sewer system.

The action came on a request from the engineers, Philpot, Ross and Saarinen for specific information on where the sewers are to go.

Preliminary cost of the sewer system is $2,050,000.

Commissioner Robert Houston, pointing out that cost-cutting has been discussed, pushed for commission authorization of the plans. He said the fiscal agent could not pinpoint actual cost of the system until the plans are ready.

The city fathers briefly discussed the proposed location of the system, but decided nothing definitely.

Removal of Padding Helped

"A RAG, a Bone and a Ponytail," continues at Larry Tisch's Americana Hotel Bal Masque, but it is a fancier rag, a more meaty bone and a faster traveling ponytail than when it opened just before the holidays. The Sid Kuller-Selma Marlowe production was a rattling good bit of musical comedy in the original offering but it had about a half hour of needless padding.

Now that padding has been taken out and the sequence of acts adjusted, it's a lark from start to finish. The cast is the same — a solid collection of acts that have arrived but haven't yet been dubbed with stardom in the live variety field, such as the Blackburn Twins and Jerry Collins; Barbara Heller, whose impressions have been a click on television; Kay Cee Jones, who has had some success on records, Mara Lynn, Shirl Haven, Jack DeLeon, Mark Reddy, Skip Norman, Jay Salerno and others.

Best numbers are still "Funnel of Love" in which the whole cast indulges in a sophisticated switch of husbands and wives in the manner of "La Ronde;" a "Rainbow Blues" song interlude of great artistry — especially in the staging," and an atomic-paced "Celebrities on Parade" in which more than a score of impressions are done — also by the entire ensemble. "A Rag, a Bone and a Ponytail" is something different for the cafe goer — there's nary a dull moment in it.

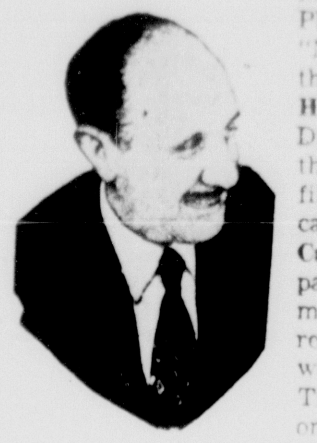
Nightlife with George Bourke

Faster and Fancier, Americana Revue Clicks



POSSIBLY the longest hop from one stand to another made by show veteran Edward Everett Horton will be the one which will take him from the Palm Springs Playhouse in California to Royal Poinciana Playhouse in Palm Beach, with "Not in the Book," which opens there Feb. 9, with either Ann Harding or Dorothy Stone . . . Did Sam Katzman step out of the "Stake-Out" TV series being filmed here to take on a theatrical film concerned with Fidel Castro? Several Hollywood companies have signified intent to make pictures about the Cuban revolution by registering title with Motion Picture Producers Title Registration Bureau. Not on the list was "Hi-Fidelity Castro."

* * *

Removal of Padding Helped

"A RAG, a Bone and a Ponytail," continues at Larry Tisch's Americana Hotel Bal Masque, but it is a fancier rag, a more meaty bone and a faster traveling ponytail than when it opened just before the holidays. The Sid Kuller-Selma Marlowe production was a rattling good bit of musical comedy in the original offering but it had about a half hour of needless padding.

Now that padding has been taken out and the sequence of acts adjusted, it's a lark from start to finish. The cast is the same — a solid collection of acts that have arrived but haven't yet been dubbed with stardom in the live variety field, such as the Blackburn Twins and Jerry Collins; Barbara Heller, whose impressions have been a click on television; Kay Cee Jones, who has had some success on records, Mara Lynn, Shirl Haven, Jack DeLeon, Mark Reddy, Skip Norman, Jay Salerno and others.

Best numbers are still "Funnel of Love" in which the whole cast indulges in a sophisticated switch of husbands and wives in the manner of "La Ronde;" a "Rainbow Blues" song interlude of great artistry — especially in the staging," and an atomic-paced "Celebrities on Parade" in which more than a score of impressions are done — also by the entire ensemble. "A Rag, a Bone and a Ponytail" is something different for the cafe goer — there's nary a dull moment in it.

Witch Way Now for Movie Muse?

WE'RE IN for a cycle of modern "witch" films since Dan Taradash did a splendid job on "Bell, Book and Candle." There's "Warlock," already in production at another studio, and now Robert Alda and Linda Christian have been signed for "Witchcraft." . . . Big Tubby Boots has taken on a big job at the Gaiety. He'll produce and star in the revues there . . . Sherry Britton may not want it known but she'll bring a brain into the Clover Club this week as well as a well-ordered body. She's been seen frequently on the legit stage.

Wonder whatever happened to Jane Bergmeier, once of the June Taylor Dancers? She's now Mrs. Mickey Manners, wife of the Singapore's entertainment director and has two children, Scott, 3, and Chris, 2 . . . Flip side of Cathy Carr's new hit, "First Anniversary," carries Ed "Harbor Lounge" Snyder's composition of "With Love." . . . Buzz and Frank Carroll — he's half of Carroll and Gorman, of the Martinique Hotel lounge — sold their Miami Beach home and hotel and moved to Miami.

'Auntie Mame' Prolongs Visit

FLORIDA STATE Theaters is having trouble evicting "Auntie Mame" from the Olympia, Beach and Gables Theaters, she has so many paying friends at the box-office — and so "Some Came Running," which was to have opened a run last week, will have to slow down until Wednesday.

Charles Chaplin has been invited to produce some movies in Russia. Not a remake of "The Dictator!" . . . Miamian George Campbell, who has been on Victor Borge's management staff for two years, has written a book about his travels called "You Won't Believe This." Why not "With Borge and Back?" . . . Jack Collins was keyboarding at Pit Lounge in Fort Lauderdale, but before you could say Pit Lounge he had opened at Robinson's Roost in Daytona.

* * *

Maestro to Conduct Own Work

MARIE GOODHART has been alerted to stand by for some more assignments in "Stake-Out," Screen Gems television series which is being filmed here. The Coronet model appeared in one produced by Sam Katzman late last year . . . Henry Levine, musical director of the Cavalcade of Stars band at the Deauville, has composed a work called "Flight 49." He will conduct when it is done at Bayfront Park on Friday night.

Ben Yomen has produced a musical play about two moon people on earth in search of the formula for peace in the Universe for the Miami Beach Community Singers. It will be premiered at Miami Beach Auditorium Feb. 22.

Is Burl Ives recuperating from a recent illness at his Bahamas hideaway? . . . Joe Cohen reports that the Zombie is not dead! He means the alcoholic concoction called the Zombie, of course, and based his claim on its continuing popularity at Luau . . . Music test: Name two singers from Cannonsburg, Pa.? Perry Como and . . . Perry Como and — I give up. It's Perry Como and Mitzi Welch. She's featured with her husband. Ken, at Polo Room of the Shamrock Isle hotel. Jerry Twitchell takes over as maestro there Friday.

Comics Phil Ford and Mimi Hines have told us not to miss a car called the Mafia at the up-coming foreign and sports car show here. It has a hood under the hood and a .45 heater is standard equipment . . . Dancer-comedian Danny Windsor of the Red Carpet has a part in a coming Playhouse 90 musical called "The Lady and the Gambler," with Jane Powell featured . . . Ruben Gonzalez opens with his Latin-American band in the Mirage Room of the Sahara on Jan. 29.

SWITCH in a delinquency story is "Johnny Rocco" in which it is the father who, played by Stephen McNally, needs the reformation and Richard Eyer, the son, who tries to effect it. Film, in which James Flavin, center, is featured, opens Tuesday at Paramount, Coral and Colony.

Library Films 'Go' to Africa

Africa will be the next stop in the travel film series presented at the Miami Public Library, on Thursday. Showings will be at 1, 3:30 and 8 p.m.

Admissions are by free tickets, available, for as long as they last at the Main Library. Tickets may also be obtained at the branch libraries by requesting them in advance.

Betty Grable—A Portrait of Her at 42

'I'm not the glamorous type,' says Betty Grable
. . . who's in Miami for four weeks

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

Celebrity Parade

"Sorry to have kept you waiting," Betty Grable said in a voice known to millions of movie-goers — a voice that had a slight early-morning-frog note, for she had arrived the night before by train from California.

" . . . but I was up late last night. Oh, that train trip nearly killed me . . . oh, I don't fly," she said. "I have a funny feeling about it." Even during World War II when Betty Grable was the darling of the armed forces, their favorite Pin Up Girl, she took trains when she visited training camps.

Betty has leased a Palm Island house for 4 weeks while she fulfills a three-week Latin Quarter engagement. She loves the view from the picture window.

Doesn't she have the sunshine-waterfront scene in her state? "Yeah, but with a smog. And it's not on the water like this — you know? This is wonderful," and she almost sighed the words as she smiled her famous smile. "It's like going from soot to clean."

* * *

DOES SHE LOOK HER AGE? Well, first you have to find out that age. And Betty is not talking. (Reference books list her age as 42.)

"No, I don't tell my age. What woman does? To begin with, they wouldn't believe me, if I did." But she constantly refers to her movies (which she's never seen) as "a long time ago," without a trace of false pride.

The Grable skin is unbelievably smooth, a little lax at the chinline — no, not a double chin, but rather thick around the vocal chords, like many singers. She had on "the eyelashes" for photographs, blue eye shadow on lids of deep blue eyes, and a beauty mark on one cheek. Her platinum hair was pulled back in a pony tail.

Betty wore dungarees, well-tapered, with a matching striped top. Her figure would make a teenager today envious. No diet, she says, and, except for rehearsing, no exercise. "It's just luck that it didn't turn to flab."

She's friendly and fun to talk with.

"Yes, I always dress like this at home. I'm not the glamorous type. On the stage I love to do all the glamorous stuff — the jewelry and the costumes." She shrugged. "But that's on the stage."

She stopped abruptly. "Ohhh, look!" she said and jumped up from the sofa. "The man's FISHING. That's my favorite pastime. I've never been deep sea, but I've fished on lakes and rivers. I'm the type who can sit all day. I have the patience."

This is her way of talking — rather fast, down to earth about anything she sees and often drawing it into the talk with a voice as small and intimate as though she's showing you a new born kitten.

* * *

SHE'S A WOMAN summed up by Adela Rogers St. John as "tough as a top sergeant, steady as a rock and shrewd as a Washington taxi driver."

Miss Grable admits to being "lazy" and a "poor businesswoman." But she's a keen judge of her own talents.

She took a suspension once for refusing a dramatic role. "I was sincere. Here I'm trying to tell them how I feel and I'm crying and they say, 'Of course, you can do it, just cry — exactly what you're doing now.' I tried to tell them that I wasn't acting THEN, that THAT was completely different."

Once during suspension, when she lost $50,000 in salary, a James horse came in to win a $100,000 purse. She and husband trumpeter Harry James own a money-making race horse farm in the San Fernando Valley. Their home is in Beverly Hills.

* * *

WHAT ABOUT the James children — Vicki, 14, a Beverly Hills High student, and Jessica (Jesse James), 11, a Beverly Hills Catholic School student?

"They don't take lessons. There's a piano if they're interested . . . No, they haven't taken dancing lessons . . . I think dancing is the greatest thing in the world for a girl, but I'm not going to force lessons . . .

"They're having a childhood that I didn't have — social life, high school. They're so BUSY."

* * *

IN SPITE OF her movie success, Miss Grable likes doing night clubs now. She started slightly over a year ago ("No more 5 a.m. calls to the studio," she says happily).

Miamians will see her for the first time here, although she was here for the movie premier of "Moon Over Miami."

"I love playing nightclubs," she said. "Especially where there are slot machines. I love to shoot dice, play blackjack . . . No, I'm not a big bettor, but I just like the excitement of it."

Future plans? She'd like to do television. "I think I'd be better off doing a series." And she'd like it to be with husband Harry, but not the Ozzie Nelson-type thing. "Me pushing a vacuum cleaner about might be going too far."

—Herald Staff Photos by Ray Fisher

'We Give Our Children Love, But We Insist That They Mind'

Column with a Heart

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I too am a four foot, 11 inch mother like Column Reader. I have a son 14 and a daughter 10. I had the first lesson on how to make my children mind when he was six months old.

Being the first grandchild, he had two doting grandmothers. As soon as I saw they were spoiling him, I put my foot down. Thank goodness, my husband was on my side.

We became strict, and when we said no, we meant it. We give our children all the love and affection any two parents can give their children, but we insist they mind.

Today my son is five feet seven, but he still respects this small hand of mine.

I am a working mother, not for pleasure, but out of necessity, and both children have their chores. When my husband and I get home at night, the beds are made, house straightened up, dusted, ash trays emptied and table set.

When I started to work a year ago, I explained to the children the importance of my working, and asked for their help. They have been wonderful.

Our rule is to be firm but give love and understanding with it. If they break something and it was an accident, pick up the pieces and forget it. If it was broken out of spite, punishment that they dislike works wonders.

Columns' Readers's children are young and can be taught to mind.

Start Child's Discipline Early

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

My thanks to Sister Mary for giving me the incentive to write this letter. I was told that you can start discipline as early as six months and I did. My daughter is now 26 months old and all I have to do is say no.

Of course, sometimes I have to smack her hands, and sometimes she gets it on the bottom, but she hasn't gotten a complex yet!

As Sister Mary says, a child has to cry instead of doing for itself as we do. When mine cried, I changed her. If she still cried, I fed her. I never got exasperated in front of her as though she were an imposition.

My sister-in-law, mother of five, had an operation and I filled in until her mother came down. I told them that if I had to speak more than once, I wouldn't come after them empty handed. They were almost angels, and we had fun.

I have another sister-in-law who's a nervous wreck. Once I counted 23 times that she begged, threatened and pleaded with her kids before they came in.

I never pitched a screaming tantrum, stamped my feet or said no to my mother because I knew better.

You can't tell a mother about her Little Iodine or Dennis the Menace, but maybe some will take a hint reading this column.

HAPPY MOTHER

Betty Grable—A Portrait of Her at 42

'I'm not the glamorous type,' says Betty Grable
. . . who's in Miami for four weeks

By JEAN WARDLOW
Herald Staff Writer

Celebrity Parade

"Sorry to have kept you waiting," Betty Grable said in a voice known to millions of movie-goers — a voice that had a slight early-morning-frog note, for she had arrived the night before by train from California.

". . . but I was up late last night. Oh, that train trip nearly killed me . . . oh, I don't fly," she said. "I have a funny feeling about it." Even during World War II when Betty Grable was the darling of the armed forces, their favorite Pin Up Girl, she took trains when she visited training camps.

Betty has leased a Palm Island house for 4 weeks while she fulfills a three-week Latin Quarter engagement. She loves the view from the picture window.

Doesn't she have the sunshine-waterfront scene in her state? "Yeah, but with a smog. And it's not on the water like this — you know? This is wonderful," and she almost sighed the words as she smiled her famous smile. "It's like going from soot to clean."

* * *

DOES SHE LOOK HER AGE? Well, first you have to find out that age. And Betty is not talking. (Reference books list her age as 42.)

"No, I don't tell my age. What woman does? To begin with, they wouldn't believe me, if I did." But she constantly refers to her movies (which she's never seen) as "a long time ago," without a trace of false pride.

The Grable skin is unbelievably smooth, a little lax at the chinline — no, not a double chin, but rather thick around the vocal chords, like many singers. She had on "the eyelashes" for photographs, blue eye shadow on lids of deep blue eyes, and a beauty mark on one cheek. Her platinum hair was pulled back in a pony tail.

Betty wore dungarees, well-tapered, with a matching striped top. Her figure would make a teenager today envious. No diet, she says, and, except for rehearsing, no exercise. "It's just luck that it didn't turn to flab."

She's friendly and fun to talk with.

"Yes, I always dress like this at home. I'm not the glamorous type. On the stage I love to do all the glamorous stuff — the jewelry and the costumes." She shrugged. "But that's on the stage."

She stopped abruptly. "Ohhh, look!" she said and jumped up from the sofa. "The man's FISHING. That's my favorite pastime. I've never been deep sea, but I've fished on lakes and rivers. I'm the type who can sit all day. I have the patience."

This is her way of talking — rather fast, down to earth about anything she sees and often drawing it into the talk with a voice as small and intimate as though she's showing you a new born kitten.

* * *

SHE'S A WOMAN summed up by Adela Rogers St. John as "tough as a top sergeant, steady as a rock and shrewd as a Washington taxi driver."

Miss Grable admits to being "lazy" and a "poor businesswoman." But she's a keen judge of her own talents.

She took a suspension once for refusing a dramatic role. "I was sincere. Here I'm trying to tell them how I feel and I'm crying and they say, 'Of course, you can do it, just cry — exactly what you're doing now.' I tried to tell them that I wasn't acting THEN, that THAT was completely different."

Once during suspension, when she lost $50,000 in salary, a James horse came in to win a $100,000 purse. She and husband trumpeter Harry James own a money-making race horse farm in the San Fernando Valley. Their home is in Beverly Hills.

* * *

WHAT ABOUT the James children — Vicki, 14, a Beverly Hills High student, and Jessica (Jesse James, 11, a Beverly Hills Catholic School student?

"They don't take lessons. There's a piano if they're interested . . . No, they haven't taken dancing lessons . . . I think dancing is the greatest thing in the world for a girl, but I'm not going to force lessons . . .

"They're having a childhood that I didn't have — social life, high school. They're so BUSY."

* * *

IN SPITE OF her movie success, Miss Grable likes doing night clubs now. She started slightly over a year ago ("No more 5 a.m. calls to the studio," she says happily).

Miamians will see her for the first time here, although she was here for the movie premier of "Moon Over Miami."

"I love playing nightclubs," she said. "Especially where there are slot machines. I love to shoot dice, play blackjack . . . No, I'm not a big bettor, but I just like the excitement of it."

Future plans? She'd like to do television. "I think I'd be better off doing a series." And she'd like it to be with husband Harry, but not the Ozzie Nelson-type thing. "Me pushing a vacuum cleaner about might be going too far."

'We Give Our Children Love, But We Insist That They Mind'

Column with a Heart

DEAR ELEANOR HART:

I too am a four foot, 11 inch mother like Column Reader. I have a son 14 and a daughter 10. I had the first lesson on how to make my children mind when he was six months old.

Being the first grandchild, he had two doting grandmothers. As soon as I saw they were spoiling him, I put my foot down. Thank goodness, my husband was on my side.

We became strict, and when we said no, we meant it. We give our children all the love and affection any two parents can give their children, but we insist they mind.

Today my son is five feet seven, but he still respects this small hand of mine.

I am a working mother, not for pleasure, but out of necessity, and both children have their chores. When my husband and I get home at night, the beds are made, house straightened up, dusted, ash trays emptied and table set.

When I started to work a year ago, I explained to the children the importance of my working, and asked for their help. They have been wonderful.

Our rule is to be firm but give love and understanding with it. If they break something and it was an accident, pick up the pieces and forget it. If it was broken out of spite, punishment that they dislike works wonders.

Columns' Readers's children are young and can be taught to mind.

Pyro Laundry Case Challenged in Court

Herald Bureau

WILTON MANORS — Henry Riebling, 2400 NE Eighth Ave., filed suit in Circuit court Monday challenging the Board of Adjustment's authorization of a coin-operated laundry in a business 1 zone near his home.

Pyro Inc., a Fort Lauderdale company plans to operate a laundry on Wilton Dr. Laundries are classified as business 2 in the city's zoning ordinance.

Municipal Judge William Leonard, who represents Pyro, won a favorable majority decision from the board two weeks ago.

Attorney Paris Singer, for Riebling, charged that the board usurped council power, and that it had no jurisdiction to hear an appeal from a tenant.

A hearing on Riebling's new motion is set for 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

'But It's Still Jail'

New Jail's 'Jake,' Prisoners Learn

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — City jail prisoners, making their new quarters homelike Monday, were generally agreed the new is better than the old jail.

"But it's still jail," said one.

"I'm a charter member and this is a castle," said another.

"It's a great improvement, we have a place to lie down, mattresses, soap and hot water," he added.

"I've been in three times in three weeks. If I have to keep making it, I hope it lasts like this," he said.

He called the old jail a "crowded pigpen." Nobody argues with him.

But the 55 prisoners who were establishing themselves in the new jail Monday had plenty of room. They didn't have to sleep on the floor last night.

The police officers were setting into routine Monday with a minimum amount of confusion.

They, too, were exulting over the increased space in the new building.

"We don't have to stand in line to write reports," said one patrolman happily.

Another Bankhead Arrives: 'Just Say We're Cousins, Dear'

FORT LAUDERDALE — The southern charm of the Bankhead clan extends to aunts and kissin' cousins of Sisters Eugenia and Tallulah, whose latest kin to take up winter residence here is Mrs. Henry Bankhead.

The charming widow of Col. Bankhead (brother of William Bankhead, Tallulah's father, and Senator John Bankhead) is here for the season at the home of Mrs. Louisa Carpenter and Eugenia Bankhead. ("Eugenia, Tallulah and I say we're cousins, dear, because we're the same age—'aunt' sounds so old.")

This year Eugenia has joined the international set in Tangier, where she's taken an apartment overlooking the Mediterranean for the winter. She doesn't plan to return to her Lauderdale home until spring.

Louisa Carpenter is due back from her Maryland estate later in the week in time to catch the races at Hialeah Saturday. She and Mrs. Bankhead plan to be on hand to see Louisa's horse, Chit Chat, run. At the moment Louisa is in Newport, R.I., where she helped Billy Bankhead, Eugenia's son, celebrate his 16th birthday. Billy is a student at St. George's.

House guest of Mrs. Bankhead is an Atlanta friend, Mrs. Guy Hartman, who was honor guest at a dinner party her hostess gave recently. Other Atlanta guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bob Harris, who have a winter home on Victor Park Rd.

Monster Fish Story

FRED GREVE has sailed back to home port at Bahia-Mar from the Bahamas aboard his venturesome sailboat, the Dawn Star. Fred took another turn at a fantastic fish that's been eluding Ragged Islanders for years.

So big he cuts shark lines, this denizen of the deep channel near Duncantown has been eluding the best Bahamian sailors for years. Every time Fred visits his Flamingo Island, where he used to raise goats and sheep, he tries to catch the legendary monster. "I hope to get him some day," says Fred, whose fishing friends have devised new equipment for the purpose.

The Dawn Star, built as a ketch, as an unusual feature—a squaresail, further distinguished by the fact that it was a gift of Sir Winston Churchill, whose daughter and son-in-law used to own the beautiful 75-foot sailboat. She's crossed the Atlantic three times and took part in the evacuation of Dunkirk.

3 on Ballot Today In Deerfield

Herald Bureau

DEERFIELD BEACH — Hal Mullen, who drew 434 votes in the primary, is favored to win one of two city commission seats to be decided in today's election but a major contest has developed between candidates Frank Gray and incumbent Gerdén Johnson.

Johnson was the second high vote getter in the five-way primary race.

But since then J. Russell Willis has withdrawn from the race and thrown his support to Gray. Joseph Durante, who lost out in the primaries, is also roofing for Gray.

The big test will be whether Johnson, who polled 334 votes in the primary, can win over enough Gray-Russel-Durante supporters to come in second high. The combine polled a total of 531 votes last Tuesday.

Candidate Mullen has formally announced opposition to any change in zoning at the Cove Yacht Basin — a controversy still undecided by the Zoning Board. Mullen also advocates a strong effort to bring "high type, clean and progressive manufacturing firms" to town.

Johnson has campaigned on a platform of work toward elimination of erosion, controlled zoning, improved recreational and school facilities, and city beautification.

Gray is anxious to "bring to the office the enthusiasm of youth," and denounces support of any "pressure group or self-centered interests."

The polls — in the City Commission chambers — will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Trucker Charged In Theft

FORT LAUDERDALE — Quentin Earl Williams, 30, of 6333 SW 16th St., West Hollywood, was freed from county jail under $1,000 bond Monday following his arrest on charges of grand larceny.

Police charged he took a truckload of cement from the Rose Cement Co. 3328 SW Second Ave., Saturday and sold it to two purchasers for a total of $270.

Police alleged Williams, an independent trucker who formerly had a contract with the cement company, came to company offices at 6 a.m., an hour before trucks usually load, and loaded 180 bags of cement on his vehicle.

The loss was discovered by Arthur J. Rose, 54, Miami Beach, owner of the cement company, when he took inventory Saturday.

Dies at 83

Mrs. Goodbread, Pioneer of 1908

By DUANE JONES
Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — A romance that started 70 years ago ended Monday with the death of Mrs. Sarah Goodbread, one of Fort Lauderdale's first residents.

The 83-year-old woman came here in 1908 and clerked in the city's first drygoods store, owned by Frank Stranahan and located at the present site of the Western Union office.

Mrs. Goodbread, a native of White Springs, Fla., also was the city's second postal clerk.

"She was a fine woman," her husband, Herbert, said Monday.

"In the 70 years I knew her, I never heard her say a bad thing about anyone.

"I met her in White Springs when we were kids. We attended the same church, and when she came to Fort Lauderdale I followed. We were married in 1912."

Mr. Goodbread said there were about 400 persons living in Fort Lauderdale when his wife arrived here. "There were streets, but they were more like cow paths. The store she worked in was the only one in town."

"My wife was a favorite with Indian traders," he recalled. "They used to stand in line to have her wait on them."

Active in church work here during her earlier years, Mrs. Goodbread had been ill and confined to her home the past 20.

Survivors in addition to her husband included a son, Wilbur, also of Fort Lauderdale.

Burial will be in Lake City. Fannin Funeral Home was in charge of local arrangements.

He was a World War II veteran and a member of the American Legion. Graveside services at Lauderdale Memorial Cemetery will be conducted by Gandy-Wiggins Legion Post 223.

Survivors include his wife, Myrtle; two sisters, Mrs. Mary Carle of Davie and Mrs. Kathryn Levy of Yulee, Fla.; and three brothers, W. Franklin of Vadalia, Ga., J. D. of Fort Lauderdale, and Henry E. of Savanhah.

Pyro Laundry Case Challenged in Court

Herald Bureau

WILTON MANORS — Henry Riebling, 2400 NE Eighth Ave., filed suit in Circuit court Monday challenging the Board of Adjustment's authorization of a coin-operated laundry in a business 1 zone near his home.

Pyro Inc., a Fort Lauderdale company, plans to operate a laundry on Wilton Dr. Laundries are classified as business 2 in the city's zoning ordinance.

Municipal Judge William Leonard, who represents Pyro, won a favorable majority decision from the board two weeks ago.

Attorney Paris Singer, for Riebling, charged that the board usurped council power, and that it had no jurisdiction to hear an appeal from a tenant.

A hearing on Riebling's new motion is set for 1:30 p.m. Thursday.

'But It's Still Jail'

New Jail's 'Jake,' Prisoners Learn

Herald Bureau

FORT LAUDERDALE — Cith jail prisoners, making their new quarters homelike Monday, were generally agreed the new is better than the old jail.

"But it's still jail," said one. "I'm a charter member and this is a castle," said another.

"It's a great improvement, we have a place to lie down, mattresses, soap and hot water," he added.

"I've been in three times in three weeks. If I have to keep making it, I hope it lasts like this," he said.

He called the old jail a "crowded pigpen." Nobody argues with him.

But the 55 prisoners who were establishing themselves in the new jail Monday had plenty of room. They didn't have to sleep on the floor last night.

The police officers were settling into routine Monday with a minimum amount of confusion.

They, too, were exulting over the increased space in the new building.

"We don't have to stand in line to write reports," said one patrolman happily.

Another Bankhead Arrives: 'Just Say We're Cousins, Dear'

FORT LAUDERDALE — The southern charm of the Bankhead clan extends to aunts and kissin' cousins of Sisters Eugenia and Tallulah, whose latest kin to take up winter residence here is Mrs. Henry Bankhead.

The charming widow of Col. Bankhead (brother of William Bankhead, Tallulah's father, and Senator John Bankhead) is here for the season at the home of Mrs. Louisa Carpenter and Eugenia Bankhead. ("Eugenia, Tallulah and I say we're cousins, dear, because we're the same age—'aunt' sounds so old.")

This year Eugenia has joined the international set in Tangier, where she's taken an apartment overlooking the Mediterranean for the winter. She doesn't plan to return to her Lauderdale home until spring.

Louisa Carpenter is due back from her Maryland estate later in the week in time to catch the races at Hialeah Saturday. She and Mrs. Bankhead plan to be on hand to see Louisa's horse, Chit Chat, run. At the moment Louisa is in Newport, R.I., where she helped Billy Bankhead, Eugenia's son, celebrate his 16th birthday. Billy is a student at St. George's.

House guest of Mrs. Bankhead is an Atlanta friend, Mrs. Guy Hartman, who was honor guest at a dinner party her hostess gave recently. Other Atlanta guests were Mr. and Mrs. Bob Harris, who have a winter home on Victor Park Rd.

So big he cuts shark lines, this denizen of the deep channel near Duncantown has been eluding the best Bahamian sailors for years. Every time Fred visits his Flamingo Island, where he used to raise goats and sheep, he tries to catch the legendary monster. "I hope to get him some day," says Fred, whose fishing friends have devised new equipment for the purpose.

The Dawn Star, built as a ketch, as an unusual feature —a squaresail, further distinguished by the fact that it was a gift of Sir Winston Churchill, whose daughter and son-in-law used to own the beautiful 75-foot sailboat. She's crossed the Atlantic three times and took part in the evacuation of Dunkirk.

DEERFIELD BEACH — Hal Mullen, who drew 434 votes in the primary, is favored to win one of two city commission seats to be decided in today's election but a major contest has developed between candidates Frank Gray and incumbent Gerdén Johnson.

Johnson was the second high vote getter in the five-way primary race.

But since then J. Russell Willis has withdrawn from the race and thrown his support to Gray. Joseph Durante, who lost out in the primaries, is also rooting for Gray.

The big test will be whether Johnson, who polled 334 votes in the primary, can win over enough Gray-Russel-Durante supporters to come in second high. The combine polled a total of 531 votes last Tuesday.

Candidate Mullen has formally announced opposition to any change in zoning at the Cove Yacht Basin — a controversy still undecided by the Zoning Board. Mullen also advocates a strong effort to bring "high type, clean and progressive manufacturing firms" to town.

Johnson has campaigned on a platform of work toward elimination of erosion, controlled zoning, improved recreational and school facilities, and city beautification.

Gray is anxious to "bring to the office the enthusiasm of youth," and denounces support of any "pressure group or self-centered interests."

The polls — in the City Commission chambers — will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Trucker Charged In Theft

FORT LAUDERDALE — Quentin Earl Williams, 30, of 6333 SW 16th St., West Hollywood, was freed from county jail under $1,000 bond Monday following his arrest on charges of grand larceny.

Police alleged Williams, an independent trucker who formerly had a contract with the cement company, came to company offices at 6 a.m., an hour before trucks usually load, and loaded 180 bags of cement on his vehicle.

The loss was discovered by Arthur J. Rose, 54, Miami Beach, owner of the cement company, when he took inventory Saturday.

Mrs. Goodbread, Pioneer of 1908

By DUANE JONES

Herald Staff Writer

FORT LAUDERDALE — A romance that started 70 years ago ended Monday with the death of Mrs. Sarah Goodbread, one of Fort Lauderdale's first residents.

The 83-year-old woman came here in 1908 and clerked in the city's first drygoods store, owned by Frank Stranahan and located at the present site of the Western Union office.

Mrs. Goodbread, a native of White Springs, Fla., also was the city's second postal clerk.

"In the 70 years I knew her, I never heard her say a bad thing about anyone.

"I met her in White Springs when we were kids. We attended the same church, and when she came to Fort Lauderdale I followed. We were married in 1912."

Mr. Goodbread said there were about 400 persons living in Fort Lauderdale when his wife arrived here. "There were streets, but they were more like cow paths. The store she worked in was the only one in town.

"My wife was a favorite with Indian traders," he recalled. "They used to stand in line to have her wait on them."

Active in church work here during her earlier years, Mrs. Goodbread had been ill and confined to her home the past 20.

Survivors in addition to her husband included a son, Wilbur, also of Fort Lauderdale.

Burial will be in Lake City. Fannin Funeral Home was in charge of local arrangements.

How Ike 'Played Housewife' With Budget

By DON OBERDORFER
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Eisenhower administration huffed and puffed, but the cussed thing still wouldn't balance.

So the budget makers resorted to some tricks, the kind a wife might use to concoct a sample family budget to impress her husband.

Here's how they "balanced" it:

1—They had promised the International Monetary Fund a new subscription of $1,370,000,000. This would have thrown the new budget completely out of whack.

So the President in his budget message Monday asked Congress to give him the money right now, in a fiscal year that is already badly in the red.

This is like rushing out to buy that new TV set before the month is over, so it won't show up on the next month's budget.

Secretary of the Treasury Robert Anderson says the administration is eager to get the money in the old budget year because it promised to "expedite" this thing. The money will be used by the international fund to help stabilize soft currencies.

* * *

2—The administration is selling off 620 million dollars in certain government assets.

"This is like an individual selling off 100 shares of stock to take care of an expensive operation on his wife," explains Budget Bureau Director Maurice Stans.

In the old fiscal year the government sold only 100 million of these assets in this way, so it is really financing 520 million of expenditures by selling the assets.

Don't worry — the government isn't planning to sell the White House or the Washington Monument to balance the new budget.

The assets to be sold are loans in the portfolio of the Export-Import Bank, mortgages held by the Federal National Mortgage Association and bonds held under the college housing program.

* * *

3—The budget-makers made a deep cut in the allowance for contingencies, which is like slashing your budget allowance for pin money.

Last year the budget men included 300 million dollars as a general contingency allowance, plus a 500 million contingency allowance for defense. In the new budget, the contingency allowance is only 100 million.

If you charge the monetary fund money to the new fiscal year instead of the old, and hold the sales of assets and the contingency allowance to the old year's level, the Eisenhower 1960 budget would be $2,490,000,000 in the red.

Traveler's Finances To Suffer

Gasoline, Airline Hikes Suggested

By DAVID KRASLOW
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—The traveling American is in for a jolt in the pocketbook if tax proposals submitted Monday by President Eisenhower are approved by Congress.

The president asked for:

A 50 per cent boost (from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon) in federal tax on auto gasoline.

A 50 per cent boost (from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon) in the tax on aviation gas.

A new 4½ cents a gallon tax on jet fuel.

And the President made it clear he feels the individual air traveler should pick up the tab for the aviation fuel levies.

"I believe it fair and sound that such taxes be reflected in the rates of transportation paid by the passengers and shippers," Eisenhower said in his budget message.

In effect, this is an "invitation" to the Civil Aeronautics Board to raise airline fares so that the taxes (if approved by Congress) will be passed on to the traveler.

How much of a fare increase this would mean (if the CAB went along with the President) could not be determined immediately.

Some informed sources guessed it would take a five to six per cent fare boost to compensate for the taxes recommended by the President.

HECTOR

Eisenhower's thinking on passing on the taxes runs directly contrary to suggestions offered by CAB Chairman James R. Durfee and Member Louis J. Hector of Miami.

They have suggested that the way to fill seats on the huge jet airliners is to attract new passengers by lowering fares.

There has been a great debate in aviation circles over the problem of a large increase in seating capacity coming in with the use of jet aircraft.

The additional levies would come on top of the 10 per cent tax on domestic travel which has been in effect since during World War II.

It costs travelers an extra 10 cents for every $1 worth of airplane, railroad or bus ticket he buys.

And Treasury Secretary Robert Anderson made it clear in a briefing on the budget that the administration would strenuously oppose any move to repeal the travel tax this year.

Highest Peacetime Budget Hinges on Recovery Hopes

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower Monday submitted to an already questioning Congress a massive, precariously balanced budget totaling 77 billion dollars.

Heavy on defense allocations in an era of continuing Communist threats, this is the administration's proposed spending chart for the 1960 fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Never in peacetime has so big a budget been laid before the legislators at the opening of a new session. A year ago, Eisenhower proposed what was then a record peacetime budget just short of 74 billions.

But the recession sent government income down and spending up. So the spending figure for the present fiscal year ending June 30 now is estimated at nearly 81 billions.

And the half billion dollar surplus anticipated a year ago has turned into a deficit of almost 13 billions for the 1959 fiscal year. The estimated deficit is up nearly 700 millions since September.

Eisenhower told Congress it must raise the permanent limit on the national debt to 285 billions and provide a temporary limit even higher than that. The current temporary debt ceiling is 288 billion. It is due to drop to 283 billion next June 30.

The new budget is a bare 70 million dollars in the black. But it is what Eisenhower called a responsible, confident, positive, attainable budget, backed by glowing prospects of "continued vigorous economic recovery."

Over and over, he sounded that recovery refrain.

The budget counts on tapping taxpayers for a record sum while dangling before them a hope of tax reductions in the uncertain future.

The measure holds out promises to enhance domestic well-being and to protect personal savings and incomes from erosive inflation.

Yet it also calls for higher gasoline taxes that surely would be passed on to the consumer, and for another boost in postal rates. If Congress goes along—and it isn't at all sure that Congress will—the federal gas tax will jump from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon and it probably will cost a nickel instead of four cents to mail a letter.

Eisenhower said three dollars of every five in the budget—a total of $45,805,000,000 out of $77,030,000,000—must go to keeping the U.S. military structure ready to meet any threat with weapons operating from the bottom of the sea and through the fringes of space.

Key members of Congress questioned in advance whether the budget would carry enough money for defense. The total is down 315 millions from the current year's expenditures for the Defense Department, atomic energy, stockpiling of strategic materials, and military aid to allies.

For the Defense Department alone, the spending figure is up 145 millions, to a total of $40,850,000,000. Some Democrats and a number of Republicans on Capitol Hill have criticized sums of that size as inadequate.

In contrast with last year's budget message, this new 30,000-word document speaks of a persisting rather than a growing military danger from the Communist world.

But it all but calls a halt on continued whittling down of military manpower. It places less emphasis on planes and more on missiles — some 800 million dollars more.

It proposes to push spending for scientific research and space development to a record level. Eisenhower mentioned a million-pound thrust engine, and a nuclear rocket engine.

Expenditures for the Atomic Energy Commission also are expected to hit a record high of $2,700,000,000, with development and production of nuclear weapons kept at high levels.

No new funds are requested for testing such weapons in the

Democrats Inherit Another Crisis--Adlai

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Adlai E. Stevenson said Monday President Eisenhower's policy of "thrift by drift" was partly responsible for America's "fat, dumb and happy" complacency toward Russia's determined Cold War challenge.

Stevenson

"The greatest national need was "not to balance the budget but to wage peace," he said.

The next 10 years, Stevenson added, would "really prove" whether the American system of democratic government could match the rigid, dedicated communistic threat of Russia.

He said the prognosis was not good unless there was a change in America's "fatal addiction" to the short view and its unwillingness to face the facts.

The two-time presidential nominee of the Democratic Party told a jammed Woman's National Democratic Club luncheon audience that Americans today "fritter away their time on trivialities" in a "fatal addiction to the short view."

Contending the situation was "partly due to lack of leadership — guess where," he complained that "private satisfaction" received priority over "public necessity." More money was spent on entertainment than education, and on tobacco than on textbooks.

Stevenson said the Democrats seemed destined to come to power in times of crisis.

"We seem to be on the eve of inheriting another crisis," he said.

He said the Democratic Party apparently was the only party neither "afraid of the facts nor afraid of the people knowing the facts," and aware that "freedom is not a soft option — can be had cheap."

He expressed confidence that once Americans are fully aware of the real danger to a democratic system of government, there is nothing they will not be willing to do to meet the challenge.

Walkout Alert on At Pan Am

Contract Snagged Over Work Hours

By DOM BONAFEDE and DAN BROWN
Herald Staff Writers

Pan American World Airways ground personnel — including 3,000 in Miami and 1,500 at Cape Canaveral — were put on a strike alert Monday while union and management met in eleventh hour negotiations.

A walkout by members of the Transport Workers Union could cripple the world-wide airline — and seriously hamper the nation's missile research development program.

Union officials, who have been meeting with company representatives and a federal mediator in New York City for the past week, reported a "pushbutton" strategy setup has been devised to call a strike within 24 hours.

About 8,000 systemwide employes are employed in the dispute. The union is seeking higher wages, shorter hours and improved working conditions.

"We are waiting word from New York to walk out at any time," commented Art Hallgren, vice president of Miami Local 500, TWU.

The last union contract expired Dec. 1 and both sides have been meeting off and on since then.

Negotiations finally came to a climax a week ago and talks were pushed up to reach a new settlement.

In New York, a PAA spokesman said that the big issue was the union's demand for a cut in weekly working hours. He said TWU workers, presently on a 40-hour week, are seeking a 37½ hour week because of worker fears fewer ground crew members will be required when PAA starts using jet airliners on a big scale.

The union first asked for a 32-hour week but later reduced their demands.

"Strike standby" telegrams were sent to union members at all PAA installations Monday.

Meanwhile, company and union representatives settled a jurisdictional dispute which caused a sit down strike at the Cape Canaveral missile base last Friday.

The dispute involved the working requirements of PAA stock clerks.

Company officials termed the squabble a "misunderstanding."

Mercury Will Begin Climb Today

It'll be nice in Miami Tuesday, while folks in some parts of North Florida still shiver, the weatherman said.

The warm-up should spread throughout the state by Wednesday, he added.

"We'll be in the low to mid-70s here," Weatherman Philip Ackerman said.

"The outlook is nice, at least for the next few days. In the winter, you can't tell beyond that."

Parts of northernmost Florida will have temperatures in the 40s early Tuesday, warming up during the day.

There was scattered frost in North Florida Monday, but little or no crop damage, the Frost Warning Service said.

Dade escaped frost, Ackerman said, when the winds shifted from north to northeast.

Pneumonia Puts Fidel In Sickbed

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Revolutionary Leader Fidel Castro has pneumonia and is running a high fever, his secretary said Monday night.

Castro was confined to his suite in the Havana Hilton Hotel during the weekend by an attack of influenza, but he continued to transact official business from his sickbed and to receive callers until late Monday.

His secretary, Mrs. Blanco de Poce, indicated the pulmonary complication may force him to curb his activities.

Asked whether the latest development would affect Castro's scheduled appearance at the mass rally scheduled for Wednesday, the secretary said the doctor planned to keep him abed until the last minute in an effort to enable him to attend, but that it was too early to state definitely that he would be there.

Before the disclosure of Castro's worsened condition was made, revolutionary "war crimes" trials were postponed or suspended throughout Cuba Monday.

Castro had announced he had invited five U.S. senators and five representatives to witness the trials. Most of those invited sharply rejected the bid.

Sen. George A. Smathers was among those who rejected the bid.

"As a longtime friend of your country," Smathers cabled the rebel chieftain, from Washington, "I have a deep and abiding interest in its affairs.

"However, no useful purpose can be served by my presence or my comments on this occasion.

"I think too much already has been said by individuals who at present know too little about what is going on in your country.

"I join . . . in prayers for forbearance and a sensible approach to many problems with which you are now confronted," Smathers cabled.

Sen. Wayne Morse (D., Ore.), who has been severely critical of the executions of alleged "war criminals," and Sens. John Sparkman (D., Ala.), and Homer Capehart (R., Ind.) also rejected invitations.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D., N.Y.), one of the House members invited, planned to accept Castro's invitation. Powell, a Negro, has defended the new rebel regime. It was understood that he suggested some of the names of the congressmen invited by Castro.

Besides Smathers and Morse, other senators invited were Theodore Francis Green (D., R.I.), Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) and John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.).

Two House members invited indicated they might make the trip Wednesday.

Rep. Wayne Hays (D., Ohio) said "I am free and I've got a bag." The office of Rep. Charles O. Porter (D., Ore.)

PB's Lytal Proposes Eight Public Beaches

WEST PALM BEACH — A plan to create eight oceanfront parks along Palm Beach County's 45-mile coast was advanced Monday by Lake Lytal county commission chairman.

Lytal proposed that the county snap up seven or eight strips of rapidly-disappearing oceanfront property to convert into public beaches.

Commissioners at an administrative conference agreed with Lytal's proposal.

Lytal urged commissioners to order a survey of possible sites and to appropriate funds in the 1960-61 budget to acquire the oceanfront property.

"We're fast losing available ocean frontage for public parks," Lytal declared.

He urged the county seek a law empowering it to purchase land in various locations from Highway A1A to the ocean. He suggested the parcels be at least 100 feet by 100 feet in order to provide turn-around and parking for 34 cars.

Assistant County Attorney Henry Lilenthal told Lytal the county has authority to acquire the land through its park powers.

"It won't take any legislation," he said, "but it will take lots and lots of money."

Commissioners estimated it might cost from $40,000 to $50,000 to acquire each strip of land.

Commissioner Roy Michael said the country may have to get the land through condemnation.

Michael also said the county will have to cope with zoning regulations if it seeks to establish public beaches in municipalities.

Commissioner Kenneth Foster suggested the county take steps to develop 75 acres of oceanfront property it already owns near Jupiter. But Michael and Lytal argued that the acreage is not in a "thickly populated" area.

Commissioners have often lamented that the county has barely five miles of public beach along its 45-mile coastline.

Rights Official Found Dead

WASHINGTON —(AP)— J. Ernest Wilkins, 64, a member of the Civil Rights Commission, was found dead at his home here Monday, police reported.

The body of the attorney, one of two Negroes to hold a "little cabinet" post, was discovered by a maid when she reported for work Monday morning, Lt. Charles Burns of the homicide squad said.

Wilkins was assistant secretary of labor from 1954 to 1958, resigning last November.

Inside police found enough marijuana to roll 1,700 cigarets. They held the driver for state narcotics officers.

U.S., State Decisions Identical

RICHMOND, Va. —(AP)— Virginia's legal barriers against racial integration, under which nine white schools have been shuttered since September, toppled Monday in the State Supreme Court.

The unappealable 5-2 decision brought the immediate prospect of some classroom race mixing before the Legislature can attempt to erect new blockades.

It also brought from Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. an expression of "faith in the ability and judgment" of the seven members of the state court, plus the announcement he will confer with other state leaders on the best course to take.

The state court opinion followed by minutes the decision of a three-judge federal court in Norfolk striking down the state law under which six Norfolk schools have been kept closed. The federal court said it wasn't attempting to tell Virginia — aside from state constitutional requirements — it had to operate public schools.

But as long as the state did operate such a system, it added, the closing of some of the schools, or even grades of the schools, violates the rights of a citizen to equal protection under the law.

The State Supreme Court, however, ruled that Virginia still was subject to a requirement of the state constitution to operate a public school system throughout the state.

This was the nub of the Almond administration's test of the so-called massive resistance laws before the court.

The court held the closure and state seizure violated a constitutional section vesting supervision of local schools in local school boards; that the governor has no authority to set up a substitute state school system; that the governor has no authority to close any schools in areas, or near areas, policed by federal forces; and that the Legislature's efforts to restrict state school funds to segregated schools are illegal.

The court then proceeded to throw out the school closing law which has been invoked in Norfolk affecting 10,000 pupils; Charlottesville, affecting 1,700, and Warren County High at Front Royal, 1,000. Almost all of the displaced pupils in Warren and Charlottesville have been attending makeshift private classes in churches and other community buildings. About 4,500 of the displaced Norfolk pupils are in private classes or tutoring groups.

Highest Peacetime Budget Hinges on Recovery Hopes

WASHINGTON —(AP)— President Eisenhower Monday submitted to an already questioning Congress a massive, precariously balanced budget totaling 77 billion dollars.

Heavy on defense allocations in an era of continuing Communist threats, this is the administration's proposed spending chart for the 1960 fiscal year beginning next July 1.

Never in peacetime has so big a budget been laid before the legislators at the opening of a new session. A year ago, Eisenhower proposed what was then a record peacetime budget just short of 74 billions.

Pan American World Airways ground personnel — including 3,000 in Miami and 1,500 at Cape Canaveral — were put on a strike alert Monday while union and management met in eleventh hour negotiations.

A walkout by members of the Transport Workers Union could cripple the world-wide airline — and seriously hamper the nation's missile research development program.

Union officials, who have been meeting with company representatives and a federal mediator in New York City for the past week, reported a "pushbutton" strategy setup has been devised to call a strike within 24 hours.

About 8,000 systemwide employes are employed in the dispute. The union is seeking higher wages, shorter hours and improved working conditions.

"We are waiting word from New York to walk out at any time," commented Art Hallgren, vice president of Miami Local 500, TWU.

The last union contract expired Dec. 1 and both sides have been meeting off and on since then.

Negotiations finally came to a climax a week ago and talks were pushed up to reach a new settlement.

In New York, a PAA spokesman said that the big issue was the union's demand for a cut in weekly working hours. He said TWU workers, presently on a 40-hour week, are seeking a 37½ hour week because of worker fears fewer ground crew members will be required when PAA starts using jet airliners on a big scale.

The union first asked for a 32-hour week but later reduced their demands.

"Strike standby" telegrams were sent to union members at all PAA installations Monday.

Meanwhile, company and union representatives settled a jurisdictional dispute which caused a sit down strike at the Cape Canaveral missile base last Friday.

The dispute involved the working requirements of PAA stock clerks.

Company officials termed the squabble a "misunderstanding."

Mercury Will Begin Climb Today

It'll be nice in Miami Tuesday, while folks in some parts of North Florida still shiver, the weatherman said.

The warm-up should spread throughout the state by Wednesday, he added.

"We'll be in the low to mid-70s here," Weatherman Philip Ackerman said.

"The outlook is nice, at least for the next few days. In the winter, you can't tell beyond that."

Parts of northernmost Florida will have temperatures in the 40s early Tuesday, warming up during the day.

There was scattered frost in North Florida Monday, but little or no crop damage, the Frost Warning Service said.

Dade escaped frost, Ackerman said, when the winds shifted from north to northeast.

Pakistan Aid Up

KARACHI —(AP)— Pakistan may get $226,850,000 in grants and loans from the U. S. during 1959, official sources said Monday. That would be $78,910,000 more than the amount received in 1958.

Pneumonia Puts Fidel In Sickbed

By Herald Wire Services

HAVANA, Cuba — Revolutionary Leader Fidel Castro has pneumonia and is running a high fever, his secretary said Monday night.

Castro was confined to his suite in the Havana Hilton Hotel during the weekend by an attack of influenza, but he continued to transact official business from his sickbed and to receive callers until late Monday.

His secretary, Mrs. Blanco de Poce, indicated the pulmonary complication may force him to curb his activities.

Asked whether the latest development would affect Castro's scheduled appearance at the mass rally scheduled for Wednesday, the secretary said the doctor planned to keep him abed until the last minute in an effort to enable him to attend, but that it was too early to state definitely that he would be there.

Before the disclosure of Castro's worsened condition was made, revolutionary "war crimes" trials were postponed or suspended throughout Cuba Monday.

Castro had announced he had invited five U.S. senators and five representatives to witness the trials. Most of those invited sharply rejected the bid.

Sen. George A. Smathers was among those who rejected the bid.

"As a longtime friend of your country," Smathers cabled the rebel chieftain, from Washington, "I have a deep and abiding interest in its affairs.

"However, no useful purpose can be served by my presence or my comments on this occasion.

"I think too much already has been said by individuals who at present know too little about what is going on in your country.

"I join . . . in prayers for forbearance and a sensible approach to many problems with which you are now confronted," Smathers cabled.

Sen. Wayne Morse, (D., Ore.), who has been severely critical of the executions of alleged "war criminals," and Sens. John Sparkman (D., Ala.), and Homer Capehart (R., Ind.) also rejected invitations.

Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D., N.Y.), one of the House members invited, planned to accept Castro's invitation. Powell, a Negro, has defended the new rebel regime. It was understood that he suggested some of the names of the congressmen invited by Castro.

Besides Smathers and Morse, other senators invited were Theodore Francis Green (D., R. I.), Homer Capehart (R., Ind.), Mike Mansfield (D., Mont.) and John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.).

Two House members invited indicated they might make the trip Wednesday.

Rep. Wayne Hays (D., Ohio) said, "I am free and I've got a bag." The office of Rep. Charles O. Porter (D., Ore.)

Commissioners Agree

PB's Lytal Proposes Eight Public Beaches

WEST PALM BEACH — A plan to create eight oceanfront parks along Palm Beach County's 45-mile coast was advanced Monday by Lake Lytal county commission chairman.

Lytal proposed that the county snap up seven or eight strips of rapidly-disappearing oceanfront property to convert into public beaches.

Commissioners at an administrative conference agreed with Lytal's proposal.

Lytal urged commissioners to order a survey of possible sites and to appropriate funds in the 1960-61 budget to acquire the oceanfront property.

"We're fast losing available ocean frontage for public parks," Lytal declared.

He urged the county seek a law empowering it to purchase land in various locations from Highway A1A to the ocean. He suggested the parcels be at least 100 feet by 100 feet in order to provide turn-around and parking for 34 cars.

Assistant County Attorney Henry Lilenthal told Lytal the county has authority to acquire the land through its park powers.

"It won't take any legislation," he said, "but it will take lots and lots of money."

Commissioners estimated it might cost from $40,000 to $50,000 to acquire each strip of land.

Commissioner Roy Michael said the country may have to get the land through condemnation.

Michael also said the county will have to cope with zoning regulations if it seeks to establish public beaches in municipalities.

Commissioner Kenneth Foster suggested the county take steps to develop 75 acres of oceanfront property it already owns near Jupiter. But Michael and Lytal argued that the acreage is not in a "thickly populated" area.

Commissioners have often lamented that the county has barely five miles of public beach along its 45-mile coastline.

Rights Official Found Dead

WASHINGTON —(AP)— J. Ernest Wilkins, 64, a member of the Civil Rights Commission, was found dead at his home here Monday, police reported.

The body of the attorney, one of two Negroes to hold a "little cabinet" post, was discovered by a maid when she reported for work Monday morning, Lt. Charles Burns of the homicide squad said.

Wilkins was assistant secretary of labor from 1954 to 1958, resigning last November.

He Was Woozey But Not Boozey

DALLAS —(AP)— Police gave a woozey 29-year-old man a balloon test for drunkenness at the scene of an auto crash here. He passed it like a teetotaler.

But his grin faded fast when a passerby appeared with a paper sack and said, "Here's the sack you put down on the parkway."

Inside police found enough marijuana to roll 1,700 cigarets. They held the driver for state narcotics officers.

U.S., State Decisions Identical

RICHMOND, Va. —(AP)— Virginia's legal barriers against racial integration, under which nine white schools have been shuttered since September, toppled Monday in the State Supreme Court.

The unappealable 5-2 decision brought the immediate prospect of some classroom race mixing before the Legislature can attempt to erect new blockades.

It also brought from Gov. J. Lindsay Almond Jr. an expression of "faith in the ability and judgment" of the seven members of the state court, plus the announcement he will confer with other state leaders on the best course to take.

The state court opinion followed by minutes the decision of a three-judge federal court in Norfolk striking down the state law under which six Norfolk schools have been kept closed. The federal court said it wasn't attempting to tell Virginia — aside from state constitutional requirements — it had to operate public schools.

But as long as the state did operate such a system, it added, the closing of some of the schools, or even grades of the schools, violates the rights of a citizen to equal protection under the law.

The State Supreme Court, however, ruled that Virginia still was subject to a requirement of the state constitution to operate a public school system throughout the state.

This was the nub of the Almond administration's test of the so-called massive resistance laws before the court.

The court held the closure and state seizure violated a constitutional section vesting supervision of local schools in local school boards; that the governor has no authority to set up a substitute state school system; that the governor has no authority to close any schools in areas, or near areas, policed by federal forces; and that the Legislature's efforts to restrict state school funds to segregated schools are illegal.

The court then proceeded to throw out the school closing law which has been invoked in Norfolk affecting 10,000 pupils; Charlottesville, affecting 1,700, and Warren County High at Front Royal, 1,000. Almost all of the displaced pupils in Warren and Charlottesville have been attending makeshift private classes in churches and other community buildings. About 4,500 of the displaced Norfolk pupils are in private classes or tutoring groups.

Mikoyan Wins On Side Issues, Loses Big Ones

By ROBERT S. HOYT
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Anastas I. Mikoyan goes home to Russia today with half a loaf, which — he'd be the first to tell you — is better than none.

He and U.S. officials played footsie for days, with official conferences sandwiched in between the popping flash bulbs.

Not until Monday was it made completely clear by our State Department that we weren't giving an inch on his official requests for better trade conditions.

But the No. 2 Russian had the U. S. eating out of his hand all the varied side dishes he served up, everything but the main course.

With American businessmen he apparently built a fire which has our officials chanting: "Ruskie Go Home." While he may have started public opinion thinking along lines that could ultimately result in more trade, he failed to accomplish what he himself said he came after.

He wanted three things:

Changing the rules so Russia could be extended long-term credit to buy in the U. S.

Favorable tariff conditions for U. S. S. R. goods coming here.

Changes in our policy of not allowing strategic goods to be sent behind the Iron Curtain.

Though he protested that the U. S. is "inflexible," the State Department told him curtly that "when conditions change policies will change," and that was that.

While he was given a reception that by all accounts was "friendly," there wasn't a day without either a public snub by a U. S. official who wouldn't be caught at a luncheon table with him or a picket line of Hungarians lurking around the corner.

Anastas did not come through the experience unscathed, but he gave better than he got from the many sharp questioners he encountered.

And, in the process, he dropped a gem or two worthy of study by our experts:

ASKED ABOUT the migration from East to West Berlin, he suggested that such flights might be prompted more by a desire for a higher standard of living than by a thirst for freedom.

ASKED IF China's Mao Tse-tung was not the world's leading Communist theoretician, Mikoyan said: "He is as good a theoretician as he was."

ASKED ABOUT the truth of claims that Russia has an atomic-powered airplane, he said: "I have not tried to learn military secrets while here, and you should do likewise."

ASKED WHAT would happen if the U. S. used force to supply Berlin, Mikoyan said: "force meets with force, usually."

ABOUT former President Harry S. Truman, he remarked bluntly that "it is a good thing" he "is no longer in office." He said Truman "seems to fear the American people will have a better opinion of the Soviet Union." He said it was during Truman's administration that Russian-U. S. relations began to deteriorate.

AS FOR EISENHOWER, Mikoyan said he likes him "and the reason is clear." He didn't elaborate.

IN ANSWER to questions about the need of the U. S. and the U. S. S. R. to get along, Mikoyan declared himself in favor of peace. He had the audacity even to suggest that godly and ungodly materialism could live side-by-side in the world if leaders of both countries put their minds to it.

And so, as Anastas wings his way over the ocean, into the rising sun, he might well be framing the answers he will have for Premier Nikita Khrushchev about his journey.

He could tell his boss: "In Waukegan we killed 'em, but at the State Department we didn't do so good."

Cold Wave Cuts Into Midwest

CHICAGO —(AP)— A new cold wave knifed into the Midwest Monday. The eastward surge of Arctic air brought the threat of more snow in storm-buffeted areas of New York State and western Pennsylvania.

The Atlantic Seaboard northward to New England enjoyed a brief warmup in advance of the cold front.

Readings pushed into the 60s along the gulf from Texas to Florida. Houston and Brownsville, Tex., had temperatures in the 70s.

But portions of Minnesota and North Dakota shivered in sub-zero cold at midday. Overnight temperatures were expected to slide down to 20 below in Minnesota and Wisconsin and to near zero in Chicago.

New York State was a sea of snow. The fall, starting Friday and running into the weekend, ranged from 67 inches near Lake Ontario to 16 inches in northern New York and a trace in New York City.

A dozen deaths in New York State were attributed to exertion heart attacks or storm-connected accidents. Numerous motorists in western New York abandoned their cars in vaults of snow and ice.

Snow drifts three to four feet high blocked some roads in the Erie, Pa. area. Many rural schools remained closed because buses could not travel over the snow-clogged roads.

Snow flurries and occasional squalls with considerable blowing and drifting snow were on tap for the snow-plagued eastern Great Lakes region today.

Drifting snow also closed schools north of Muskegon, Mich., after 12½ inches of new snow fell in the area.

The new cold front extended from the Great Lakes across the Ohio Valley and into central Texas by midday Monday and was expected to spread into the middle and North Atlantic states and New England today.

Cities Put in Bids

GOP's Hunting Convention Site

DES MOINES, Iowa—(UPI)—Republican leaders began their search for a 1960 convention site Monday without ruling out the home territory of either of the major possibilities for the 1960 presidential nomination.

Arguments were heard Monday for New York, the home of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. Spokesmen will be heard today for Los Angeles, the home field of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and for San Francisco, which also is in his home state of California.

The site committee heard bids Monday from Philadelphia and Miami Beach, Fla., as well. Chicago also will be heard today.

For Miami Beach, Mayor Kenneth Oka presented a cash offer of $350,000 and said other benefits would be worth $40,000 to $50,000.

The Democratic site committee decided at New Orleans Sunday to recommend Los Angeles for its 1960 convention. The final decision will be made at the Democratic National Committee meeting at Washington Feb. 27.

The GOP national committee probably will give much thought to picking a more neutral site than either Los Angeles or New York for its convention.

Pneumonia Puts Castro In Sickbed

said he was inclined to accept the Castro invitation.

Castro issued the invitation in hopes of stilling growing criticism in the U.S. against the trial and execution of more than 200 "war criminals" accused of murders and other crimes while they were serving deposed dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Castro was getting increasing support at home for his campaign against the Batistianos whom the revolutionary government has accused of murdering 20,000 men, women and children during the six-year Batista regime.

Msgr. Alfredo Muller, auxiliary bishop of Havana who is the No. 2 Roman Catholic Cleric in Cuba, said he and the church were usually opposed to capital punishment "but in the case of the current proceedings here in Cuba it is justified."

In Havana it was announced that Castro personally will prosecute a group of war crimes defendants in a showcase trial some time this week at Havana's La Cabana Fortress.

The decision to start the trials rests with Provisional President Manuel Urrutia, Castro said. "Urrutia is making the decision. I am not a strong man and I do not want to be one, either," he said.

Women Seek Bahamas Vote

NASSAU, Bahamas — (AP) — A group of women bearing placards demanding the right to vote converged on the Bahamas Assembly Monday.

The legislators declined to hear the delegation in the House chamber but adjourned to the courthouse and listened to the petition there.

Only male freeholders over 21 are allowed to vote in the Bahamas at present.

Secretary of State Lennox Boyd last year ordered the Legislature to provide for universal male suffrage but said women hadn't shown enough interest for him to urge their enfranchisement.

The legislature still has taken no action on female suffrage.

Russia's Moving of Jews Hit

Mikoyan Urged To Block Plan

The American Jewish Committee reported Monday that it is "gravely concerned" over reports of a large scale forced movement of Soviet Jews to the Birobidzhan district in Siberia.

The report, released in Miami, said the move may be proposed at the Soviet Party Communist Congress which opens next week in Moscow.

Representatives of the AJC appealed to Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan in New York to intercede in blocking the forced migration plan.

The Russian official is reported by Jessica P. Schwarz, executive assistant of the AJC here, to have responded:

"The reported plan for the recreation of a Jewish State in Birobidzhan and the large scale transfer of Jewish population in Russia to there is without foundation."

The AJC says it opposes the forced move of Jews or anyone else.

"The fundamental right of the individual to preserve or change his dwelling place and cultural environment in accordance with his own needs and aspirations has been sanctioned by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights," the AJC maintains.

"The basic difficulty in regard to Birobidzhan consists in the inherent artificiality of the idea of settling an urban European element in a primitive Asian area adjacent to the Chinese border, to which no historic, sociological and spiritual ties bind them."

The Birobidzhan district has been labeled by some Soviets as "an autonomous Jewish region."

The AJC group says Jews constitute only one-fifth the population of this district "in which almost all expressions of Jewish cultural life such as schools, theaters, publishing houses have been surpressed."

It added that "the renewal of the scheme (to settle Jews there) would be completely devoid of any incentive for Jews to accept voluntarily the enormous sacrifices and burdens involved."

Ike Puts Stress On Recovery in 77 Million Budget

1960 fiscal year because of negotiations with Russia over suspending tests.

Foreign aid is a favorite target of the congressional pruning knife. But Eisenhower beat the lawmakers to it this time with a plan for cutting the total for next year by 383 millions, to $3,498,000,000.

That would be a net reduction, with boosts for technical assistance and economic help for friendly countries partly offsetting a slash in military assistance.

As Eisenhower sees it, the domestic economic outlook has changed, bringing opportunities for advances at home and abroad. He put it this way:

"The situation we face today as a nation differs significantly from that a year ago. We are now entering a period of national prosperity and high employment. This is a time for the government to conduct itself so as best to help the nation move forward strongly and confidently in economic and social progress at home, while fulfilling our responsibilities abroad.

"This budget proposes to increase our military effectiveness, to enhance domestic well-being, to help friendly nations to foster their development, to preserve fiscal soundness, and to encourage economic growth and stability, not only in the fiscal year 1960 but in the years beyond. And it clearly shows that these things can be done within our income."

Eisenhower has had his differences with Congress in the past — and probably will again — on foreign aid, airport construction, aid to areas with chronic unemployment, repairing of slums, and school construction.

In this budget, he proposed programs of his own for all these except schools. But they may not be exactly acceptable in a Congress whose Democratic leaders have said they intend to write their own ticket on legislation and spending.

Eisenhower is figuring on skimping and stinting on many domestic items and even some military programs.

Not only that, but instead of tax cuts now, Eisenhower wants some boosts here and there. And he wants some tax loopholes closed.

To keep the vast interstate highway building program on a pay-as-you-go basis, he said, the federal tax on motor fuels must go up from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon.

He urged, too, that the tax on aviation gas be hiked from 2 to 4½ cents a gallon and that a new tax of 4½ cents be applied to jet fuel. Eisenhower invited airlines to pass these taxes on to passengers and shippers if Congress imposes them. He said that would be fair and sound.

The president asked that excise and corporation tax rates be kept at present levels. The corporation levies and some excises are due to drop next summer unless Congress extends them.

Without saying exactly what he has in mind, the chief executive said proposals for "corrective amendments" of the laws on taxing cooperatives will go to Congress soon.

He also asked for action now on what he called an equitable plan of the Treasury Department for taxing income of life insurance companies.

All in all, of the $77,100,000,000 the government plans to take in during the next fiscal year, Eisenhower said 76½ billion will come from increased receipts under present tax rates and 600 million from new taxes and proposed boosts in such things as patent fees and postal rates.

He wants 350 millions from the higher postal rates to cut down the post office deficit. In his budget message, Eisenhower did not spell out just what rates he wants raised, but the administration has pushed in the past for a five-cent letter stamp. Details on Eisenhower's postal proposals are expected to go to Congress later.

Nothing much can be done about cutting down the second biggest item in the budget—a whopping $8,096,000,000 for interest on the national debt.

But the third largest category of expenditures — for agriculture and agricultural resources — is coming down by nearly 800 millions. The new figure is $5,996,000,000.

Most of the decrease is by reason of ending the acreage reserve part of the soil bank program. As in his State of the Union message to Congress 10 days ago, Eisenhower said legislation is urgently needed to revise the farm price support program. But he saved details for a special message later.

For the time being, Eisenhower said, heavy expenditures for veterans benefits will be dropping — by 110 millions in the upcoming fiscal year. They still will hit $5,088,000,000 — the fourth biggest item in the budget.

Without spelling out specifics, the president said there should be a modification of benefits to veterans and their families for disability or death not related to military service — an idea likely to strike sparks from some veterans organizations.

Eisenhower also called for legislation to modernize the veterans pension program in the light of social developments and changes — again with details to come later.

This is a budget that had a little something for nearly everybody:

For Hawaii, statehood; for the District of Columbia, home rule. Eisenhower said it is unconscionable to delay either any longer.

For the thirsty, a start is proposed on plans for a plant to make salt water fit for farm, industrial and municipal use.

For House members there is a dig at their new office building. Mainly because of construction of that and other federal office buildings, Eisenhower said, the costs of the government's administrative and housekeeping operations is going up by 62 millions, to $1,735,000,000.

The chief executive didn't mention it, but buried in tables of figures attached to the budget message is a line showing that expenses of keeping up the White House mansion and grounds are expected to mount from $497,000 to $531,000.

Expenses of the President's executive office are slated to rise by $4,049,000, to $70,201,000, chiefly because of activities of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

On the side of economy, Eisenhower considered it "both possible and prudent to take a breathing spell" in the starting of new public works projects, such as veterans hospitals and water resources developments.

He suggested, too, that states and municipalities chip in more of the cash for flood control, sewage treatment plants, vocational education, disaster relief, aid to the needy, and improving blighted areas in cities.

National Summary

High pressure that maintained a pattern of cool weather in the East over the weekend drifted off the south Atlantic coast Monday with southerly breezes spreading warmer air from the Gulf states into New England.

By noon 60 degree temperatures warmed the Gulf regions from Florida into Texas with Houston and Brownsville recording readings in the 70s.

The eastward sweep of the cold air mass from the plains to the New England states will drop temperatures at a cold wave rate into Illinois and Indiana.

The brief warming trend ahead of the cold front will give snow, sleet and then rain in an area from southern New England into the mountains of western North Carolina early Tuesday.

Warm air in the southern states will stay the cold long enough to develop a band of showers and thunderstorms from central Texas to the lower Mississippi Valley.

Pacific air across the Rockies will spread snow from the Continental Divide across the western side of the cold air mass from Montana to Oklahoma and northern New Mexico.

Fair weather will prevail in the northern plains with dawn temperatures down to 20 below in Minnesota and Wisconsin and in the southwest with mild temperatures.

Mikoyan Wins On Side Issues, Loses Big Ones

By ROBERT S. HOYT
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Anastas I. Mikoyan goes home to Russia today with half a loaf, which — he'd be the first to tell you — is better than none.

He and U.S. officials played footsie for days, with official conferences sandwiched in between the popping flash bulbs.

Not until Monday was it made completely clear by our State Department that we weren't giving an inch on his official requests for better trade conditions.

But the No. 2 Russian had the U. S. eating out of his hand all the varied side dishes he served up, everything but the main course.

With American businessmen he apparently built a fire which has our officials chanting: "Ruskie Go Home." While he may have started public opinion thinking along lines that could ultimately result in more trade, he failed to accomplish what he himself said he came after.

He wanted three things:

Changing the rules so Russia could be extended long-term credit to buy in the U. S.

Favorable tariff conditions for U. S. S. R. goods coming here.

Changes in our policy of not allowing strategic goods to be sent behind the Iron Curtain.

Though he protested that the U. S. is "inflexible," the State Department told him curtly that "when conditions change policies will change," and that was that.

While he was given a reception that by all accounts was "friendly," there wasn't a day without either a public snub by a U. S. official who wouldn't be caught at a luncheon table with him or a picket line of Hungarians lurking around the corner.

Anastas did not come through the experience unscathed, but he gave better than he got from the many sharp questioners he encountered.

And, in the process, he dropped a gem or two worthy of study by our experts:

ASKED ABOUT the migration from East to West Berlin, he suggested that such flights might be prompted more by a desire for a higher standard of living than by a thirst for freedom.

ASKED IF China's Mao Tse-tung was not the world's leading Communist theoretician, Mikoyan said: "He is as good a theoretician as he was."

ASKED ABOUT the truth of claims that Russia has an atomic-powered airplane, he said: "I have not tried to learn military secrets while here, and you should do likewise."

ASKED WHAT would happen if the U. S. used force to supply Berlin, Mikoyan said: "force meets with force, usually."

ABOUT former President Harry S. Truman, he remarked bluntly that "it is a good thing" he "is no longer in office." He said Truman "seems to fear the American people will have a better opinion of the Soviet Union." He said it was during Truman's administration that Russian-U. S. relations began to deteriorate.

AS FOR EISENHOWER, Mikoyan said he likes him "and the reason is clear." He didn't elaborate.

IN ANSWER to questions about the need of the U. S. and the U. S. S. R. to get along, Mikoyan declared himself in favor of peace. He had the audacity even to suggest that godly and ungodly materialism could live side-by-side in the world if leaders of both countries put their minds to it.

And so, as Anastas wings his way over the ocean, into the rising sun, he might well be framing the answers he will have for Premier Nikita Khrushchev about his journey.

He could tell his boss: "In Waukegan we killed 'em, but at the State Department we didn't do so good."

Cold Wave Cuts Into Midwest

CHICAGO —(AP)— A new cold wave knifed into the Midwest Monday. The eastward surge of Arctic air brought the threat of more snow in storm-buffeted areas of New York State and western Pennsylvania.

The Atlantic Seaboard northward to New England enjoyed a brief warmup in advance of the cold front.

Readings pushed into the 60s along the gulf from Texas to Florida. Houston and Brownsville, Tex., had temperatures in the 70s.

But portions of Minnesota and North Dakota shivered in sub-zero cold at midday. Overnight temperatures were expected to slide down to 20 below in Minnesota and Wisconsin and to near zero in Chicago.

New York State was a sea of snow. The fall, starting Friday and running into the weekend, ranged from 67 inches near Lake Ontario to 16 inches in northern New York and a trace in New York City.

A dozen deaths in New York State were attributed to exertion heart attacks or storm-connected accidents. Numerous motorists in western New York abandoned their cars in vaults of snow and ice.

Snow drifts three to four feet high blocked some roads in the Erie, Pa. area. Many rural schools remained closed because buses could not travel over the snow-clogged roads.

Snow flurries and occasional squalls with considerable blowing and drifting snow were on tap for the snow-plagued eastern Great Lakes region today.

Drifting snow also closed schools north of Muskegon, Mich., after 12½ inches of new snow fell in the area.

The new cold front extended from the Great Lakes across the Ohio Valley and into central Texas by midday Monday and was expected to spread into the middle and North Atlantic states and New England today.

Cities Put in Bids

GOP's Hunting Convention Site

DES MOINES, Iowa—(UPI) — Republican leaders began their search for a 1960 convention site Monday without ruling out the home territory of either of the major possibilities for the 1960 presidential nomination.

Arguments were heard Monday for New York, the home of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. Spokesmen will be heard today for Los Angeles, the home field of Vice President Richard M. Nixon, and for San Francisco, which also is in his home state of California.

The site committee heard bids Monday from Philadelphia and Miami Beach, Fla., as well. Chicago also will be heard today.

For Miami Beach, Mayor Kenneth Oka presented a cash offer of $350,000 and said other benefits would be worth $40,000 to $50,000.

The Democratic site committee decided at New Orleans Sunday to recommend Los Angeles for its 1960 convention. The final decision will be made at the Democratic National Committee meeting at Washington Feb. 27.

The GOP national committee probably will give much thought to picking a more neutral site than either Los Angeles or New York for its convention.

Pneumonia Puts Castro In Sickbed

said he was inclined to accept the Castro invitation.

Castro issued the invitation in hopes of stilling growing criticism in the U.S. against the trial and execution of more than 200 "war criminals" accused of murders and other crimes while they were serving deposed dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Castro was getting increasing support at home for his campaign against the Batistianos whom the revolutionary government has accused of murdering 20,000 men, women and children during the six-year Batista regime.

Msgr. Alfredo Muller, auxiliary bishop of Havana who is the No. 2 Roman Catholic Cleric in Cuba, said he and the church were usually opposed to capital punishment "but in the case of the current proceedings here in Cuba it is justified."

In Havana it was announced that Castro personally will prosecute a group of war crimes defendants in a showcase trial some time this week at Havana's La Cabana Fortress.

The decision to start the trials rests with Provisional President Manuel Urrutia, Castro said. "Urrutia is making the decision. I am not a strong man and I do not want to be one, either," he said.

Women Seek Bahamas Vote

NASSAU, Bahamas — (AP) — A group of women bearing placards demanding the right to vote converged on the Bahamas Assembly Monday.

The legislators declined to hear the delegation in the House chamber but adjourned to the courthouse and listened to the petition there.

Only male freeholders over 21 are allowed to vote in the Bahamas at present.

Secretary of State Lennox Boyd last year ordered the Legislature to provide for universal male suffrage but said women hadn't shown enough interest for him to urge their enfranchisement.

The legislature still has taken no action on female suffrage.

Russia's Moving of Jews Hit

Mikoyan Urged To Block Plan

The American Jewish Committee reported Monday that it is "gravely concerned" over reports of a large scale forced movement of Soviet Jews to the Birobidzhan district in Siberia.

The report, released in Miami, said the move may be proposed at the Soviet Party Communist Congress which opens next week in Moscow.

Representatives of the AJC appealed to Soviet Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan in New York to intercede in blocking the forced migration plan.

The Russian official is reported by Jessica P. Schwarz, executive assistant of the AJC here, to have responded:

"The reported plan for the recreation of a Jewish State in Birobidzhan and the large scale transfer of Jewish population in Russia to there is without foundation."

The AJC says it opposes the forced move of Jews or anyone else.

"The fundamental right of the individual to preserve or change his dwelling place and cultural environment in accordance with his own needs and aspirations has been sanctioned by the Universal Declaration of Human Rights," the AJC maintains.

"The basic difficulty in regard to Birobidzhan consists in the inherent artificiality of the idea of settling an urban European element in a primitive Asian area adjacent to the Chinese border, to which no historic, sociological and spiritual ties bind them."

The Birobidzhan district has been labeled by some Soviets as "an autonomous Jewish region."

The AJC group says Jews constitute only one-fifth the population of this district "in which almost all expressions of Jewish cultural life such as schools, theaters, publishing houses have been surpressed."

It added that "the renewal of the scheme (to settle Jews there) would be completely devoid of any incentive for Jews to accept voluntarily the enormous sacrifices and burdens involved."

Ike Puts Stress On Recovery in 77 Million Budget

1960 fiscal year because of negotiations with Russia over suspending tests.

Foreign aid is a favorite target of the congressional pruning knife. But Eisenhower beat the lawmakers to it this time with a plan for cutting the total for next year by 383 millions, to $3,498,000,000.

That would be a net reduction, with boosts for technical assistance and economic help for friendly countries partly offsetting a slash in military assistance.

As Eisenhower sees it, the domestic economic outlook has changed, bringing opportunities for advances at home and abroad. He put it this way:

"The situation we face today as a nation differs significantly from that a year ago. We are now entering a period of national prosperity and high employment. This is a time for the government to conduct itself so as best to help the nation move forward strongly and confidently in economic and social progress at home, while fulfilling our responsibilities abroad.

"This budget proposes to increase our military effectiveness, to enhance domestic well-being, to help friendly nations to foster their development, to preserve fiscal soundness, and to encourage economic growth and stability, not only in the fiscal year 1960 but in the years beyond. And it clearly shows that these things can be done within our income."

Eisenhower has had his differences with Congress in the past — and probably will again — on foreign aid, airport construction, aid to areas with chronic unemployment, repairing of slums, and school construction.

In this budget, he proposed programs of his own for all these except schools. But they may not be exactly acceptable in a Congress whose Democratic leaders have said they intend to write their own ticket on legislation and spending.

Eisenhower is figuring on skimping and stinting on many domestic items and even some military programs.

Not only that, but instead of tax cuts now, Eisenhower wants some boosts here and there. And he wants some tax loopholes closed.

To keep the vast interstate highway building program on a pay-as-you-go basis, he said, the federal tax on motor fuels must go up from 3 to 4½ cents a gallon.

He urged, too, that the tax on aviation gas be hiked from 2 to 4½ cents a gallon and that a new tax of 4½ cents be applied to jet fuel. Eisenhower invited airlines to pass these taxes on to passengers and shippers if Congress imposes them. He said that would be fair and sound.

The president asked that excise and corporation tax rates be kept at present levels. The corporation levies and some excises are due to drop next summer unless Congress extends them.

Without saying exactly what he has in mind, the chief executive said proposals for "corrective amendments" of the laws on taxing cooperatives will go to Congress soon.

He also asked for action now on what he called an equitable plan of the Treasury Department for taxing income of life insurance companies.

All in all, of the $77,100,000,000 the government plans to take in during the next fiscal year, Eisenhower said 76½ billion will come from increased receipts under present tax rates and 600 million from new taxes and proposed boosts in such things as patent fees and postal rates.

He wants 350 millions from the higher postal rates to cut down the post office deficit. In his budget message, Eisenhower did not spell out just what rates he wants raised, but the administration has pushed in the past for a five-cent letter stamp. Details on Eisenhower's postal proposals are expected to go to Congress later.

Nothing much can be done about cutting down the second biggest item in the budget—a whopping $8,096,000,000 for interest on the national debt.

But the third largest category of expenditures — for agriculture and agricultural resources — is coming down by nearly 800 millions. The new figure is $5,996,000,000.

Most of the decrease is by reason of ending the acreage reserve part of the soil bank program. As in his State of the Union message to Congress 10 days ago, Eisenhower said legislation is urgently needed to revise the farm price support program. But he saved details for a special message later.

For the time being, Eisenhower said, heavy expenditures for veterans benefits will be dropping — by 110 millions in the upcoming fiscal year. They still will hit $5,088,000,000 — the fourth biggest item in the budget.

Without spelling out specifics, the president said there should be a modification of benefits to veterans and their families for disability or death not related to military service — an idea likely to strike sparks from some veterans organizations.

Eisenhower also called for legislation to modernize the veterans pension program in the light of social developments and changes — again with details to come later.

This is a budget that had a little something for nearly everybody:

For Hawaii, statehood; for the District of Columbia, home rule. Eisenhower said it is unconscionable to delay either any longer.

For the thirsty, a start is proposed on plans for a plant to make salt water fit for farm, industrial and municipal use.

For House members there is a dig at their new office building. Mainly because of construction of that and other federal office buildings, Eisenhower said, the costs of the government's administrative and housekeeping operations is going up by 62 millions, to $1,735,000,000.

The chief executive didn't mention it, but buried in tables of figures attached to the budget message is a line showing that expenses of keeping up the White House mansion and grounds are expected to mount from $497,000 to $531,000.

Expenses of the President's executive office are slated to rise by $4,049,000, to $70,201,000, chiefly because of activities of the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization.

On the side of economy, Eisenhower considered it "both possible and prudent to take a breathing spell" in the starting of new public works projects, such as veterans hospitals and water resources developments.

He suggested, too, that states and municipalities chip in more of the cash for flood control, sewage treatment plants, vocational education, disaster relief, aid to the needy, and improving blighted areas in cities.

National Summary

High pressure that maintained a pattern of cool weather in the East over the weekend drifted off the south Atlantic coast Monday with southerly breezes spreading warmer air from the Gulf states into New England.

By noon 60 degree temperatures warmed the Gulf regions from Florida into Texas with Houston and Brownsville recording readings in the 70s.

The eastward sweep of the cold air mass from the plains to the New England states will drop temperatures at a cold wave rate into Illinois and Indiana.

The brief warming trend ahead of the cold front will give snow, sleet and then rain in an area from southern New England into the mountains of western North Carolina early Tuesday.

Warm air in the southern states will stay the cold long enough to develop a band of showers and thunderstorms from central Texas to the lower Mississippi Valley.

Pacific air across the Rockies will spread snow from the Continental Divide across the western side of the cold air mass from Montana to Oklahoma and northern New Mexico.

Fair weather will prevail in the northern plains with dawn temperatures down to 20 below in Minnesota and Wisconsin and in the southwest with mild temperatures.

93 Killed Here: Something Must Be Done

'Thou Shalt Not Drive Fast'

By PETE WEITZEL
WPB Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — If speeding were a violation of one of the Ten Commandments, County Commissioner Kenneth Foster feels, people might drive more carefully.

"But it's not and people don't seem to connect speeding with the Commandment 'Thou shalt not kill,'" he said.

"People don't see anything wrong with going a few miles over the speed limit. They don't feel they are doing anything wrong by breaking a law as simple as a speed limit. I guess I'm the same way myself a lot of the time."

Foster said Monday the toll of 93 dead in Palm Beach County in 1958 made it painfully obvious something had to be done.

A study of the traffic problem on a county-wide basis should be undertaken as a part of the proposed comprehensive plan of the county's future, he said.

"One of the greatest needs is uniformity of traffic regulation and traffic planning throughout the county," Foster claimed. "For the matter, uniform regulations throughout the 49 states are needed."

Drivers in different states, counties and cities, he explained, follow different regulations.

The divergence, however slight, could mean the difference between a serious accident or no accident, he said.

Foster suggested that, on a county level, a meeting of the County Commission, municipalities and State Road Department officials might be a step toward uniformity.

"I think it would pay for all of us to get together," he said.

The commissioner had several other suggestions:

"With today's high powered cars and 65 mile-per-hour speed limits, no main roads should be less than four lanes.

"If drivers were more courteous, there'd be fewer accidents.

"Enforcement of speed limits and traffic laws throughout the county should be as strict as on the turnpike.

"Speed laws in many places should be more realistic.

"Licensing laws should be more stringent. There are many drivers on the roads today who shouldn't be."

Referendum on Police Chief March 31

Four-Year Terms, Parking Authority Sought by WPB

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — The City Commission Monday took steps to extend members' tenure of office from two to four years and to create a parking authority.

In a meeting which lasted more than three hours, marked by lengthy and heated discussions, the commission also approved:

CALLING a referendum March 31 on making the police chief an appointed, rather than elected, official.

AN AUDIT of expenditures of the City Advertising Commission.

A "SOLUTION" to the parking problem on S. Dixie Hwy. between Evernia and Hibiscus Sts. — a plan intended to provide easier access to parallel parking spaces through the use of "No Parking" gaps.

CREATION of a Parking Committee to study immediate solution to the downtown parking problems, including Commissioners Sylvan Burdick, L. W. Kelloway and William Holland, and Carl Anthony, Paul Tilley and Joe Shaw, merchants.

The committee is intended as an interim group, to act prior to establishment of a parking authority.

Its creation grew out of an hour and a half discussion of the parking authority, and demands by merchants for immediate action to prevent "further bankruptcy on Clematis St."

The authority, as propsoed by Burdick, would be appointed by the commission.

It would be empowered to study the parking problem of the entire city, and to sell revenue certificates, or special obligation bonds, to finance off-street parking facilities it designates as needed.

No commission approval of its actions would be required.

The commission directed the city attorney to draft a bill establishing the parking authority for submission to the State Legislature.

The Legislature must approve the bill, since it calls for a charter amendment. Then the proposal would be voted on at a referendum.

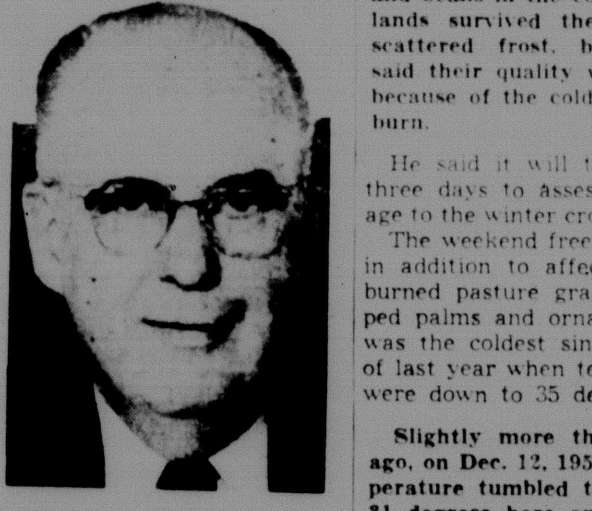
The same procedure applies to extension of terms of commissioners from two to four years. The city attorney was also ordered to draft this bill.

Doctor's Orders: Mayor Resigns

Herald Bureau

LAKE WORTH — Mayor Robert T. O'Connor at his first City Commission meeting after a prolonged illness announced Monday night he was resigning effective Feb. 1.

His action took city commissioners by surprise. O'Connor, a former city clerk, was elected mayor in 1957 and would have finished his two-year term in April.



Robert O'Connor
... to quit Feb. 1

The City Commission, under law, must appoint someone to fill out the three months remaining in O'Connor's term.

The post of mayor and two City Commission seats now held by James A. Stafford and Zell Altman will be voted on in the April 7 municipal election.

In his letter of resignation read at the start of Monday's meeting, O'Connor said he had been directed by his physician to resign. His resignation was accepted by the commission "with regret."

O'Connor was hospitalized with an asthmatic heart condition for several weeks and became so critical he was given the last rites of the Catholic Church.

Commissioners said the Mayor's announcement was unexpected and they would have to confer on an appointment.

It is conceivable that one of the commissioners will be named mayor and another person then appointed to fill that commissioner's seat. Lynn F. Myers Jr. is currently vice mayor.

In other business, the City commission adopted by a 3-to-2 vote regulations governing city-owned facilities.

The regulations included a hike of $30 on the Lake Worth Casino, an increase which was bitterly fought by tourist groups who contended the city was "killing the goose which laid the golden egg."

O'Connor and Myers voted against the measure. Myers had recommended a compromise rate for tourist clubs only but other commissioners argued this was "preferential" treatment.

WEST PALM BEACH — Eight persons were hurt, several of them seriously, when two cars traveling at high rates of speed collided headon on State Rd. 7 near the Palm Beach-Broward County line Monday.

The Florida Highway Patrol here said the autos were driven by Thomas Vegara, 32, Rt. 1, Lake Worth, and Santos Cruz, 20, of the Gill Farms at Delray Beach.

Glades Crops Damaged

Low Predicted At 56 Today

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Sub-freezing weekend temperatures killed some tender vegetables in the Glades and damaged others there, and along the coast, Assistant County Agriculture Agent John H. Cause said Monday.

He expressed fear the bright sunshine, which pushed temperatures to the low 70s later Monday, may further damage frost affected plants.

Causey said most damage occurred Sunday morning when "we had a good freeze in the mucklands and frost on the coast."

The U.S. Weather Bureau here said temperatures Sunday ranged from an unofficial 25 at Pahokee, where ice formed, to 35 degrees at West Palm Beach.

Monday's cold was less severe, with temperatures varying around 31 degrees, and as low as 42 in West Palm Beach.

Causey said tender beans and young corn were killed by the cold and frost in the Pahokee-Canal Point area. Hardier vegetables in the Belle Glade-South Bay-Lake Harbor section apparently escaped damage, he said.

Cucumbers, squash, peppers and beans in the coastal sandlands survived the cold and scattered frost, but Causey said their quality will be less because of the cold and windburn.

He said it will take two or three days to assess the damage to the winter crops.

The weekend freeze — which in addition to affecting crops, burned pasture grass and nipped palms and ornamentals — was the coldest since Feb. 4-5 of last year when temperatures were down to 35 degrees here.

Slightly more than a year ago, on Dec. 12, 1957, the temperature tumbled to a low of 31 degrees here and into the low 20's throughout the farming area.

A general warming trend was forecast by the U.S. Weather Bureau through Tuesday. A low of 56 Tuesday morning with a high of 78 was predicted.

Builder, Air Base Sessions Slated

By ROSE ALLEGATO
WPB Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — A charge that Palm Beach County's strict building requirements are keeping "big-time developers" out of the area prompted county commissioners Monday to set a Feb. 2 public hearing to air the issue.

In another move to square away "misunderstandings," commissioners set a session at 9 a.m. Thursday with city officials to talk over proposed city annexation of Palm Beach Air Force Base.

The county opposes immediate annexation of the huge airport tract on grounds it will interfere with county efforts to regain title of the land after the base is deactivated this spring.

Commissioner Kenneth Foster made public the attack on the county's building requirements.

He said he was informed "big builders" are shying away from Palm Beach County because its building standards are too high.

He called for the meeting with engineers, architects, contractors, and representatives of lending institutions, FHA, and VA for a sweeping review of the county's building codes.

Foster made it clear he was not in favor of relaxing restrictions, but conceded modifications might be advisable.

Commissioner Roy Michael said he had heard "two or three big developers" won't come into the county.

Foster said, "I don't think it's because of the standards."

County Engineer Steve Middleton retorted, "No, it's because you have to live up to them."

Michael said commissioners were not "a bunch of little tin gods" and the building requirements were not necessarily perfect.

Foster also contended the county legislative delegation is being told developments are incorporating to dodge county standards. Foster himself has made this contention. However, Monday he claimed this was not always the case.

Some developments, he said, go into incorporation for financial reasons. Incorporation makes it easier to finance water and sewer systems.

Foster also spearheaded the move for better understanding with the city over Palm Beach Air Force Base. The city has indicated it will take steps to annex the airport.

"There seems to be a great deal of misunderstanding," Foster said in urging the city-county parley.

He contended city officials did not intend to plunge into the annexation and jeopardize the county's attempt to acquire title to the land. The county hopes to sell the airport tract to raise funds for a jet age airport.

Last week Lake Lytal, chairman, proposed a legislative bill which would have blocked the city's annexation of the air base without county approval. The bill was dropped in favor of the city-county meeting to iron out difficulties.

Lake Worth Power Weathers Cold Snap

By ED PFISTER
West Palm Beach Bureau Chief

LAKE WORTH — City officials gloated Monday that its "beefed up" electric power plant was able to handle the peak demand of the weekend cold spell.

Through its publicity department, the city announced the peak load of 14,950 kilowatts, at 8:15 a.m. Monday was handled by the power system without difficulty.

It said complaints of power failures stemmed largely from blow-out fuses in homes and business places — not from failure in the power plant.

The announcement indicated Lake Worth power users had become so accustomed to electric plant failures that they called in to complain before looking at fuses in their own places.

The city pointed out that, with the addition of new units, the power plant now has a capacity of more than 15,000 kilowatts, and added that at no time during the heavy demand during the cold spell did the voltage fall.

The City officials were elated over the development because of frequent criticism in the past on failure of the power system to produce enough current to meet need.

Last winter's cold was an instance. The city had to turn off lights in some sections to provide current for others.

A segement of the citizenry became so aroused it insisted on a referendum to decide if the power plant should be leased to private interests — with the idea of obtaining better service.

The referendum lost by default and the city kept the plant. It also began quickly to add more units.

The city hastened Monday to let everybody know the power plant, this time, had what was needed.

Deerfield Man Held In Assault

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — A 38-year-old Deerfield Negro, who has a criminal record was held in county jail Monday for the rape of a Boca Raton housewife last Oct. 3.

He was identified as George Thomas Davis, alias William Dukes. He was arrested in Boca Raton last week by Detective Charles McCutcheon on complaint of school authorities that he had annoyed school children.

Greer said investigation disclosed Davis had a long criminal record. In addition to the molesting charge, he was charged with failing to register with police as an ex-felon and was sent here for a lie detector test.

George Greer, investigator for State Attorney Phil O'Connell, said the polygraph test implicated Davis in the rape case.

He will be held for the grand jury on the rape charge.

The victim was a 49-year-old housewife, who was alone in her home when the intruder entered, seized and choked her and committed the rape, Greer said.

3 Injured In 3-Car Collision

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Three persons were injured Monday night when an auto which ran a red light at Lake Worth West Rd. and Military Tr. caused a three car crash, the Florida Highway Patrol reported.

The injured are Norma Jean Petty Willis, Rte. 1, Lake Worth, possible fractured back and left elbow; and Carol Heiser, 18, and Helen Buck, 46, both Delray Beach, bruises and lacerations.

They were taken to St. Mary's Hospital here.

Trooper Robert P. Delaney said a car driven by Mrs. Willis ran a red light off Lake Worth Rd. onto the Trail, was struck by a car driven by Gerald R. Heiser, Delray Beach, and went out of control and ploughed into a machine driven by Leonard E. Wood, 42, Lake Worth.

Mrs. Willis was charged with running a red light and causing an accident, the FHP said. The other victims were riding with Heiser when the crash occurred.

The society's team of 55 persons spotted birds of 194 individual species, one more than their record-breaking performance the year before.

Lake Worth Power Weathers Cold Snap

By ED PFISTER
West Palm Beach Bureau Chief

LAKE WORTH — City officials gloated Monday that its "beefed up" electric power plant was able to handle the peak demand of the weekend cold spell.

Through its publicity department, the city announced the peak load of 14,950 kilowatts, at 8:15 a.m. Monday was handled by the power system without difficulty.

It said complaints of power failures stemmed largely from blow-out fuses in homes and business places — not from failure in the power plant.

The announcement indicated Lake Worth power users had become so accustomed to electric plant failures that they called in to complain before looking at fuses in their own places.

The city pointed out that, with the addition of new units, the power plant now has a capacity of more than 15,000 kilowatts, and added that at no time during the heavy demand during the cold spell did the voltage fall.

The City officials were elated over the development because of frequent criticism in the past on failure of the power system to produce enough current to meet need.

Last winter's cold was an instance. The city had to turn off lights in some sections to provide current for others.

A segement of the citizenry became so aroused it insisted on a referendum to decide if the power plant should be leased to private interests — with the idea of obtaining better service.

The referendum lost by default and the city kept the plant. It also began quickly to add more units.

The city hastened Monday to let everybody know the power plant, this time, had what was needed.

Builder, Air Base Sessions Slated

By ROSE ALLEGATO
WPB Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — A charge that Palm Beach County's strict building requirements are keeping "big-time developers" out of the area prompted county commissioners Monday to set a Feb. 2 public hearing to air the issue.

In another move to square away "misunderstandings," commissioners set a session at 9 a.m. Thursday with city officials to talk over proposed city annexation of Palm Beach Air Force Base.

The county opposes immediate annexation of the huge airport tract on grounds it will interfere with county efforts to regain title of the land after the base is deactivated this spring.

Commissioner Kenneth Foster made public the attack on the county's building requirements.

He said he was informed "big builders" are shying away from Palm Beach County because its building standards are too high.

He called for the meeting with engineers, architects, contractors, and representatives of lending institutions, FHA, and VA for a sweeping review of the county's building codes.

Foster made it clear he was not in favor of relaxing restrictions, but conceded modifications might be advisable.

Commissioner Roy Michael said he had heard "two or three big developers" won't come into the county.

Foster said, "I don't think it's because of the standards."

County Engineer Steve Middleton retorted, "No, it's because you have to live up to them."

Michael said commissioners were not "a bunch of little tin gods" and the building requirements were not necessarily perfect.

Foster also contended the county legislative delegation is being told developments are incorporating to dodge county standards. Foster himself has made this contention. However, Monday he claimed this was not always the case.

Some developments, he said, go into incorporation for financial reasons. Incorporation makes it easier to finance water and sewer systems.

Foster also spearheaded the move for better understanding with the city over Palm Beach Air Force Base. The city has indicated it will take steps to annex the airport.

"There seems to be a great deal of misunderstanding," Foster said in urging the city-county parley.

He contended city officials did not intend to plunge into the annexation and jeopardize the county's attempt to acquire title to the land. The county hopes to sell the airport tract to raise funds for a jet age airport.

Last week Lake Lytal, chairman, proposed a legislative bill which would have blocked the city's annexation of the air base without county approval. The bill was dropped in favor of the city-county meeting to iron out difficulties.

Deerfield Man Held In Assault

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — A 38-year-old Deerfield Negro, who has a criminal record was held in county jail Monday for the rape of a Boca Raton housewife last Oct. 3.

He was identified as George Thomas Davis, alias William Dukes. He was arrested in Boca Raton last week by Detective Charles McCutcheon on complaint of school authorities that he had annoyed school children.

Greer said investigation disclosed Davis had a long criminal record. In addition to the molesting charge, he was charged with failing to register with police as an ex-felon and was sent here for a lie detector test.

George Greer, investigator for State Attorney Phil O'Connell, said the polygraph test implicated Davis in the rape case.

He will be held for the grand jury on the rape charge.

The victim was a 49-year-old housewife, who was alone in her home when the intruder entered, seized and choked her and committed the rape, Greer said.

3 Injured In 3-Car Collision

Herald Bureau

WEST PALM BEACH — Three persons were injured Monday night when an auto which ran a red light at Lake Worth West Rd. and Military Tr. caused a three car crash, the Florida Highway Patrol reported.

The injured are Norma Jean Petty Willis, Rte. 1, Lake Worth, possible fractured back and left elbow; and Carol Heiser, 18, and Helen Buck, 46, both Delray Beach, bruises and lacerations.

They were taken to St. Mary's Hospital here.

Trooper Robert P. Delaney said a car driven by Mrs. Willis ran a red light off Lake Worth Rd. onto the Trail, was struck by a car driven by Gerald R. Heiser, Delray Beach, and went out of control and ploughed into a machine driven by Leonard E. Wood, 42, Lake Worth.

Mrs. Willis was charged with running a red light and causing an accident, the FHP said. The other victims were riding with Heiser when the crash occurred.

Committee Urges Milk Board End

Study Group Hits Agriculture Dept.

By JOHN BOYLES
Capital Bureau Chief

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. LeRoy Collins' study committee Monday harpooned the Florida Department of Agriculture, terming it a hodge-podge of costly duplication of government.

The committee headed by Sen. Tom Adams of Orange Park said, "the office of commissioner of agriculture professes to be a department consisting of 12 divisions which have grown by reason of executive fiat rather than legislative direction."

Nathan Mayo, commissioner of agriculture for 36 years, is ill at his Ocala home and was unavailable for comment.

Gov. Collins said he had not yet personally received the 88-page report.

The first of six public hearings over the state on the committee's recommendations to the 1959 Legislature will be held here Tuesday.

The committee recommended that the Florida Milk Commission be abolished, asserting that as long as the committee exists "the milk industry in Florida will never be adequately stabilized."

The committee called for creation of a department of agriculture consisting of the following divisions: administration, animal industry, plant industry, chemistry, citrus and vegetable inspection, standards and marketing.

The committee also recommended that an advisory council composed of representatives of all agricultural interests be formed to help guide the commissioner on policies, and that the office of assistant commissioner of agriculture be established.

It also recommended a full-time legal staff be set up within the department with a prohibition against the hiring of private attorneys by agricultural agencies.

Calling for abolition of several independent boards and commissions, Adam's committee said "more agricultural services are rendered agriculture in Florida by governmental agencies outside the commissioner's office than within."

It said the State Plant Board should be removed from the Board of Control, which regulates state universities, and transferred to the new Agriculture Department.

The Plant Board administers such programs as fruit fly and fire ant extermination.

"The lack of enforcement by the commissioner's office of the citrus code has become so apparent, the committee said, "that other interested bodies have been compelled to employ their own inspectors."

"The type of inspection service rendered by the commissioner's office is of little benefit to either the poultry industry or the consumer and the fees charged in the light of the benefit received are excessive," the committee said.

It said activities of the Immigration Bureau within the commissioner's office "are in competition with the authorized activities of the Florida Development Commission, and have duplicated the efforts of the Agricultural Extension Service (at the University of Florida)."

The Immigration Bureau publishes multicolored books promoting Florida which often duplicate and parallel similar publications of the development commission.

The committee asserted that trustees of the Internal Improvement Fund are better suited to conduct the business of the State Land Office than the office of commissioner of agriculture.

The report did not deal with the commissioner's constitutional authority over the state prison at Raiford, but it said the commissioner is burdened with many non-agricultural activities which take his time from agriculture.

And the report added that within the office of commissioner of agriculture "there is much disorganization and divided authority."

Dade Asks Collins for Flood Help

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Federal help for South Florida flood control could cost the state $11,000,000 during the next two years, a Dade County delegation told Gov. LeRoy Collins Monday.

Former House Speaker Ted David of Hollywood, spokesman for the group, said the federal government was ready to spend $8,000,000 on the project next year, and it would cost the state $5,500,000 or $11,000,000 for the biennium, to get all the federal funds.

Collins said "the chances are slim" the legislature would appropriate that much money, especially since it has only been shelling out some $3,500,000 a biennium up to now. But the governor had another suggestion for raising money for the project.

He said a greater contribution could be sought on a local basis from properties directly affected by the control program. He admitted, however, such a plan would not be well received in some quarters.

David assured Collins the delegation was not in Tallahassee to complain about the program up to now. He said they just wanted to make sure it didn't stop before it was finished.

He said since flood control started Dade has been contributing about two-thirds of the money.

"They have been patiently waiting in the bread line and they just want to be sure the bread doesn't run out," he said.

Most of the controversial part of the program lies between Miami and the huge Everglades area, the last part of the flood control project to be completed. The project includes completion of several canals, prevention of salt water intrusion, and reclaiming of land.

It has been feared the U. S. Corps of Engineers would pull out of the project because it thought this was merely reclaiming land. But County Engineer Frank Park assured Collins it was not.

Collins said he would send the flood control district director, Ed Dail, to meet with the commissioners to work out a program in Washington. He also said he would boost completion of the plan in the nation's capital.

$9,000,000 For Florida

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower asked congress Monday to appropriate $9 million to continue work on the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control project for the year ending June 30, 1960.

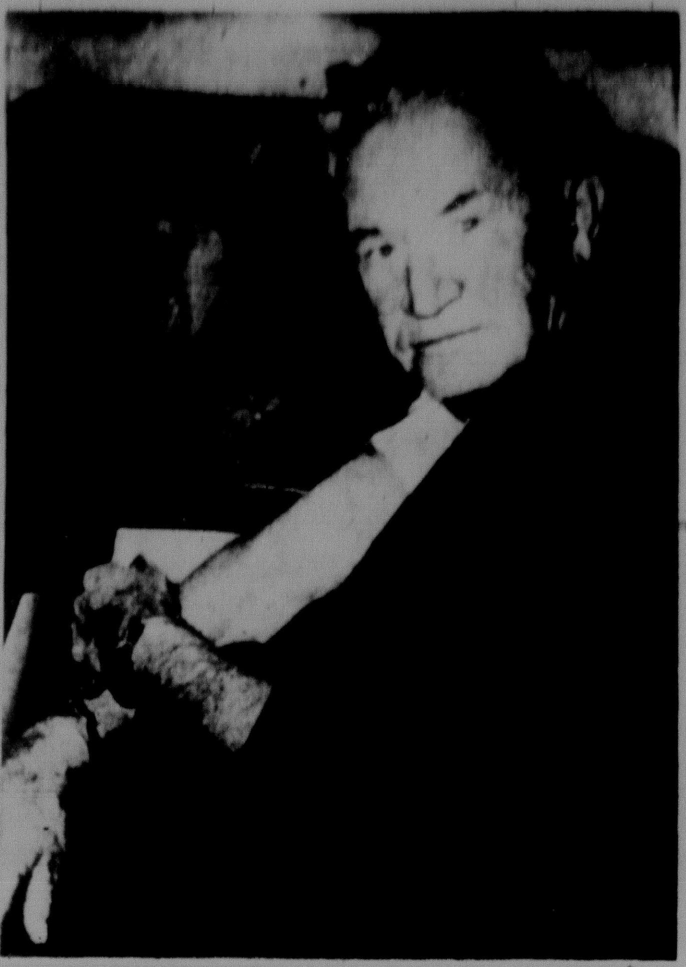
This is the largest annual appropriation ever approved by the White House for the project.

Work on the project began in 1950. The previous high was $8,750,000 for fiscal 1957.

Senator Spessard Holland also reported that the Interior Department had requested $607,000 for improvements in Everglades National Park. The money will be used largely on roads, trails and other improvements at Paradise Key and Flamingo.

Other public works appropriations requests for Florida in the 1960 budget include: $3,772,000 for continuation of construction of Tampa harbor; $1,183,000 for the harbor at St. Josephs Bay; and $1,130,000 for continuing dredging of the intra-coastal waterway.

The waterway is already 12 feet deep from Trenton, N.J. to Eau Gallie, and the project is designed to have a 12-foot depth all the way to Miami.



HANDCUFFED, Roscoe Galloway, 71, accused of killing his 68-year-old wife, sits in a police car at Orlando after deputy sheriffs foiled his attempt at suicide Sunday. They said Galloway shot and killed his wife with a .22 caliber rifle. He attempted a break for his nearby hardware store, where deputies found another gun hidden. Galloway was overpowered before he could obtain the gun.

Then Loses Her Nerve

Mom Turns Two Tots Into Human Torches

BARTOW —(UPI)— A 21-year-old mother, charged with trying to burn her two children to death because they were "interfering with her love life," told officers Monday she couldn't carry out the scheme after she heard their angonizing screams.

Mrs. Juanita Irene Hamil was charged with pouring gasoline over her children, aged 3 and 4, putting them in the bathroom, throwing a match on them and locking the door. The incident occurred Sunday at her home address as Iola, Kan., was charged on two counts of attempted murder and with adultery. Cabo, who was at work at the time, was charged with adultery and carrying a deadly weapon, a switchblade knife.

Mrs. Hamil, who said she had separated from her husband, Grover Hamil of Emmet, Ida., said she and Cabo decided Saturday they "could not tolerate the children any longer" and would return them to their father in Idaho.

But, she said, Sunday she did not think she could stand them another day. She said she splashed two gallons of gasoline on the children and on the floor.

After throwing the match on the tots as they stood in the bathroom, she locked the door and fled from the house, locking the front door behind her.

When she heard the children screaming, she lost her nerve and called for help. Two neighbors, J. Durwood Avery and his 16-year-old son, Durwood Porter Avery, broke both doors to rescue the children.
at nearby Polk City.

But when she heard their screams, she said she decided to find help and save their lives. Two neighbors broke down the door and rescued Sharon Kay, 4, and Olvin Vivian, 3.

Sharon Kay was in serious condition from burns over 25 per cent of her body. The little boy escaped with minor burns.

Polk County Sheriff Hagan Parrish said Mrs. Hamil said she set the children afire because they were "getting on my nerves" and interferring with her relations with William Ernest Cabo, 40, of Sieverville, Tenn., a 6-foot-5-inch pipe worker.

Mrs. Hamil, who gave her

1956 Perjury Case

Retrial of King May Open Today

BARTOW —(AP)— Three of the defendants in the highly publicized Harry King perjury case of 1956 face retrial in criminal court today.

The state indicated it would seek to bring King, 56-year-old former state senator from Winter Haven, to trial first. King received a five-year prison sentence following the first trial. He was granted a separate hearing for the retrial.

Other defendants are former Sheriff Pat Gordon and former deputy Sentell Monk.

Gordon, who also received a five-year term, was convicted with King of inducing two former deputies to give false testimony to a grand jury.

The deputies convicted of perjury were James L. Busbee and Rollie Arnold. They received two-year sentences along with Monk, who was convicted of conspiracy to commit perjury.

Busbee and Arnold won't face retrial. They pleaded guilty last week and await sentencing.

Concentrate Good Example

USDA to Continue Orange Research

LAKELAND —(UPI)— A U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist said Monday frozen orange juice concentrate has become a "classic example of what we can sometimes achieve with the right kind of new food product."

Dr. B. T. Shaw, administrator of the department's research service, spoke to more than 200 persons assembled here for the second annual Chemurgic conference sponsored by Florida Citrus Mutual and the National Council for Agricultural and Chemurgic Research.

Shaw said the agriculture department expects to continue at its laboratory at Winter Haven "the research needed by southern citrus growers and processors."

He said, "We also expect to increase basic research essential for future improvements and expansion of citrus utilization."

He reported that the Winter Haven laboratory had investigated the effects of storing frozen concentrate at various temperatures and that it is necessary that it be kept at below-zero temperatures if quality is not to suffer.

The Florida citrus industry has been concerned for some time over the possibility of concentrate being harmed by improper handling in retail stores.

Shaw also reported that the department is seeking to stimulate milk sales by finding a more convenient, attractive and stable whole-milk product. He said it is seeking to develop a dry, whole-milk in powdered form which could be reconstituted by addition of water.

Earlier, James Q. du Pont, administrative assistant with the du Pont Company of Wilmington, Del., said in a luncheon address free enterprise must always prevail in this country if progress is to go onward.

Polaris Test Flight A 'Success'

CAPE CANAVERAL — (UPI) — A pint-sized polaris missile shot into space like a howitzer shell Monday on an 800-mile test flight which happy Navy officials described as "fully successful."

It was the first time a Polaris test vehicle of operational shape and size had behaved properly. The missile, shaped like a bowling pin, is designed for firing from submarines lurking along enemy coastlines. It is scheduled to be combat-ready late in 1960.

The solid-fuel propellant of the 28-foot-long rocket ignited at 10:52 a.m. EST and the Polaris leaped into the warm, clear sky as if fired from a cannon. The launching was in sharp contrast to the gradual, almost ponderous liftoff of liquid-fuel missiles.

New Road Maps Due for State

TALLAHASSEE —(AP)— The format of the State Road Department's official road map is being changed for the first time since 1955, executive director Ralph Davis said Monday.

The contract for the new maps has been awarded to Robinson's Inc., of Orlando on a low bid of $94.65 per thousand, or slightly more than 9½ cents per map.

The department has been buying the maps since 1955, when bids last were taken, for $58.47 a thousand, or about 6 cents each. Davis said the improvements in the new map added to rising costs of printing generally were responsible for the increase in price.

Dade Asks Collins for Flood Help

TALLAHASSEE — (UPI) — Federal help for South Florida flood control could cost the state $11,000,000 during the next two years, a Dade County delegation told Gov. LeRoy Collins Monday.

Former House Speaker Ted David of Hollywood, spokesman for the group, said the federal government was ready to spend $8,000,000 on the project next year, and it would cost the state $5,500,000 or $11,000,000 for the biennium, to get all the federal funds.

Collins said "the chances are slim" the legislature would appropriate that much money, especially since it has only been shelling out some $3,500,000 a biennium up to now. But the governor had another suggestion for raising money for the project.

He said a greater contribution could be sought on a local basis from properties directly affected by the control program. He admitted, however, such a plan would not be well received in some quarters.

David assured Collins the delegation was not in Tallahassee to complain about the program up to now. He said they just wanted to make sure it didn't stop before it was finished.

He said since flood control started Dade has been contributing about two-thirds of the money.

"They have been patiently waiting in the bread line and they just want to be sure the bread doesn't run out," he said.

Most of the controversial part of the program lies between Miami and the huge Everglades area, the last part of the flood control project to be completed. The project includes completion of several canals, prevention of salt water intrusion, and reclaiming of land.

It has been feared the U. S. Corps of Engineers would pull out of the project because it thought this was merely reclaiming land. But County Engineer Frank Park assured Collins it was not.

Collins said he would send the flood control district director, Ed Dail, to meet with the commissioners to work out a program in Washington. He also said he would boost completion of the plan in the nation's capital.

$9,000,000 For Florida

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower asked congress Monday to appropriate $9 million to continue work on the Central and Southern Florida Flood Control project for the year ending June 30, 1960.

This is the largest annual appropriation ever approved by the White House for the project.

Work on the project began in 1950. The previous high was $8,750,000 for fiscal 1957.

Senator Spessard Holland also reported that the Interior Department had requested $607,000 for improvements in Everglades National Park. The money will be used largely on roads, trails and other improvements at Paradise Key and Flamingo.

Other public works appropriations requests for Florida in the 1960 budget include: $3,772,000 for continuation of construction of Tampa harbor; $1,183,000 for the harbor at St. Josephs Bay; and $1,130,000 for continuing dredging of the intra-coastal waterway.

The waterway is already 12 feet deep from Trenton, N.J. to Eau Gallie, and the project is designed to have a 12-foot depth all the way to Miami.

HANDCUFFED, Roscoe Galloway, 71, accused of killing his 68-year-old wife, sits in a police car at Orlando after deputy sheriffs foiled his attempt at suicide Sunday. They said Galloway shot and killed his wife with a .22 caliber rifle. He attempted a break for his nearby hardware store, where deputies found another gun hidden. Galloway was overpowered before he could obtain the gun.

Then Loses Her Nerve

Mom Turns Two Tots Into Human Torches

BARTOW —(UPI)— A 21-year-old mother, charged with trying to burn her two children to death because they were "interfering with her love life," told officers Monday she couldn't carry out the scheme after she heard their angonizing screams.

Mrs. Juanita Irene Hamil was charged with pouring gasoline over her children, aged 3 and 4, putting them in the bathroom, throwing a match on them and locking the door. The incident occurred Sunday at her home address as Iola, Kan., was charged on two counts of attempted murder and with adultery. Cabo, who was at work at the time, was charged with adultery and carrying a deadly weapon, a switchblade knife.

Mrs. Hamil, who said she had separated from her husband, Grover Hamil of Emmet, Ida., said she and Cabo decided Saturday they "could not tolerate the children any longer" and would return them to their father in Idaho.

But, she said, Sunday she did not think she could stand them another day. She said she splashed two gallons of gasoline on the children and on the floor.

After throwing the match on the tots as they stood in the bathroom, she locked the door and fled from the house, locking the front door behind her.

When she heard the children screaming, she lost her nerve and called for help. Two neighbors, J. Durwood Avery and his 16-year-old son, Durwood Porter Avery, broke both doors to rescue the children. at nearby Polk City.

But when she heard their screams, she said she decided to find help and save their lives. Two neighbors broke down the door and rescued Sharon Kay, 4, and Olvin Vivian, 3.

Sharon Kay was in serious condition from burns over 25 per cent of her body. The little boy escaped with minor burns.

Polk County Sheriff Hagan Parrish said Mrs. Hamil said she set the children afire because they were "getting on my nerves" and interferring with her relations with William Ernest Cabo, 40, of Sieverville, Tenn., a 6-foot-5-inch pipe worker.

Mrs. Hamil, who gave her

1956 Perjury Case

Retrial of King May Open Today

BARTOW —(AP)— Three of the defendants in the highly publicized Harry King perjury case of 1956 face retrial in criminal court today.

The state indicated it would seek to bring King, 56-year-old former state senator from Winter Haven, to trial first. King received a five-year prison sentence following the first trial. He was granted a separate hearing for the retrial.

Other defendants are former Sheriff Pat Gordon and former deputy Sentell Monk.

Gordon, who also received a five-year term, was convicted with King of inducing two former deputies to give false testimony to a grand jury.

The deputies convicted of perjury were James L. Busbee and Rollie Arnold. They received two-year sentences along with Monk, who was convicted of conspiracy to commit perjury.

Busbee and Arnold won't face retrial. They pleaded guilty last week and await sentencing.

Concentrate Good Example

USDA to Continue Orange Research

LAKELAND —(UPI)— A U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist said Monday frozen orange juice concentrate has become a "classic example of what we can sometimes achieve with the right kind of new food product."

Dr. B. T. Shaw, administrator of the department's research service, spoke to more than 200 persons assembled here for the second annual Chemurgic conference sponsored by Florida Citrus Mutual and the National Council for Agricultural and Chemurgic Research.

Shaw said the agriculture department expects to continue at its laboratory at Winter Haven "the research needed by southern citrus growers and processors."

He said, "We also expect to increase basic research essential for future improvements and expansion of citrus utilization."

He reported that the Winter Haven laboratory had investigated the effects of storing frozen concentrate at various temperatures and that it is necessary that it be kept at below-zero temperatures if quality is not to suffer.

The Florida citrus industry has been concerned for some time over the possibility of concentrate being harmed by improper handling in retail stores.

Shaw also reported that the department is seeking to stimulate milk sales by finding a more convenient, attractive and stable whole-milk product. He said it is seeking to develop a dry, whole-milk in powdered form which could be reconstituted by addition of water.

Earlier, James Q. du Pont, administrative assistant with the du Pont Company of Wilmington, Del., said in a luncheon address free enterprise must always prevail in this country if progress is to go onward.

Polaris Test Flight A 'Success'

CAPE CANAVERAL — (UPI) — A pint-sized polaris missile shot into space like a howitzer shell Monday on an 800-mile test flight which happy Navy officials described as "fully successful."

It was the first time a Polaris test vehicle of operational shape and size had behaved properly. The missile, shaped like a bowling pin, is designed for firing from submarines lurking along enemy coastlines. It is scheduled to be combat-ready late in 1960.

The solid-fuel propellant of the 28-foot-long rocket ignited at 10:52 a.m. EST and the Polaris leaped into the warm, clear sky as if fired from a cannon. The launching was in sharp contrast to the gradual, almost ponderous liftoff of liquid-fuel missiles.
